And during those weeks of bodily somfort and ease, as they, gathered the manna daily and sought the great rock from whose-riven side there. Sowed the refreshing waters, they-thought of God, of his wonderful deliverances, of his unfailing care. During those days which dealt so kindly and generously with them, the consciousness grew upon them that the God. of Moses was their God. indeed, and that they were his people. They recalled how he had delivered them from Egypt with a mighty and outstretched arm; how he had fought for hem at the Red sea and had swallowed up uterly Pharaoh and his irmy.

How "Protection" Works.

President Roosevelt, in his special message to congress concerning the matter of inspection laws, said that the evils brought to light in the packing houses operate "very much less as regards products sent abroad than as regards those used at home."

This is the quintessence of protection. The packers are "protected against foreign competition, and in return for the favors granted them give the foreigner the best meat at prices lower than those charged home consumers for the inferior article. "When my little boy was six months old, he had ecsema. The sores oxtended as quickly over the whole body that we at once called in the doctor. We then went to another doctor, but he could not help him, and in our despair we went to a third one. Matters became so bad that he had regular holes in his cheeks, large enough to put a finger into. The food had to be given with a spoon, for his mouth was covered with crusts as thick as a finger, and whenever he opened the mouth they began to bleed and suppurate, as did also his eyes. Hands, arms, chest and back, in short the whole body was covered over and over. We had no rest by day or night. Whenever he was lid in his bed, we had to pin his hands down; otherwise he would scratch his face and make an open sore. I think his face must have itched most learfully. "We finally thought nothing could help, and I had make up my mind to send my wife with the child to burpop, hoping that the sea air might coure him, otherwise he was to be put under good medical care there. But, Lord be blessed, matters came differently, and we soon saw a mirche. Afriend of oign spoke about Cultura. We made a trial with Culticura. The cotton crop of India was larger last year, 1905, than the general average. About 20,000,000 acres were planted in cotton and the yield was about 3,500,000 bales. During the year there were exported from India to other countries over 2,125,000 bales of raw cotton at a value of over $81,-090,000, the four countries, Japan, Germany, Belgium, and Italy, In the order named, being the largest purchasers, they together buying nearly 1,500,000 bales of 'Indian cotton, while Japan alone took nearly 500,000 bales.

Children Thrive on Grape Nuts and Cream.

A Mass. physician has found a cure for constipation in children—citing fifteen cases—by feeding them Grape-

Nuts.

"Some time ago," he writes, "I became interested in your food, Grape-Nuts, as a cure for constipation in children. Having tried it in my own family, I have advised it in mitteen cases in which all suffered with constipation more or less severe. The result has been absolute relief in all.
"I write this that other children may be benefited."

TACTICS OF ZULUS.

Adopted It.

Once more the rising of some of the Natal natives has turned men's thoughts to the famous Zulu tactics. In the minds of most these are associated with the name of Tyaka, the ruthless Zulu conqueror, who welded into the stock of the Amazulu, the people of the heavens, all the young men of the various tribes he conquered, incorporating them into regiments and thus building up a powerful military nation. Yet it was to Dingitswayo the wanderer that the inception was due. This man, the son of the chief of the Umtetwa, was driven into exile in consequence of an abortive piot to selze the relns of power.

son of the chief of the Umtetwa, was driven into exile in consequence of an abortive plot to selze the reins of power.

During that exile he lived in Cape Colony and saw the military methods of the British. With instinctive genius he saw how the idea couff be adapted to his own nation and on his return and accession to the chieftain-ship he divided his people into regiments, distinguishing them by names and by a special color of shield for each regiment, though for a time they retained the umkonto or throwing assegal as their chief weapon. He heard the great use made by the British infantry of their favorite weapon, the bayonet, and so he replaced the umkonto by the ixwa, or broad-bladed stabbing assegal.

The peculiarity of the Zulu tactics has earned it the name of the crescent formation for attack and it is note-worthy that, broadly speaking, it was the method employed by the Boers in their invasion of Natal and adopted by the Colony and it was the fear of its success which kept the Boers continually on the run. The best thing with which to compare it is the head of the stagheaded beetle. Horns are thrown out widely on either flank, while the main body forms the head itself. From the main body a small force is detached to engage the enemy while the bonns are frequently dispatched with the command: "Go, sons of Zulu, go and return no more," and death at the hands of their fellows was the fate of those who returned. While this force was holding the enemy the head or chest was launched upon the position and the upshot, as a rule, was that the whole force of the foe tasted the assegal. For in war no quarter was given or asked.

Make the Baby Work.

The physician half closed his eyes and looked at the beby, who was troubled with-indigestion, although it was a "fat baby." Then he asked for the baby's bottle, looked at the inple and grunted: "I thought so. You make eating too easy for the baby, like most foolish young mothers. You seem to think that it is doing him a kindness to make him a loafer about his milk. Now, let me tell you, that a baby is going to get every drop of milk in a bottle, anyway, because he's hungry, and wants it, and you won't starve him if you use a hard suction hipple. It's much better for him to work while he feeds, on the theory that 'Man shell earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, and if the beads of perspiration stand out on his little brow, and if he grunts and wiggles, all the better. Ten chances to one he is enjoying his milk wice as much as if the nipile was one of those easy things that fairly poured the fuld down his throat, and his digestion will be stronger."

Spectacles for the Schools.

A letter in the Times signed by Princess Christian, Lady Plymouth and Lady St. Heller may strike some as revealing one of the curiosities of charity. They write on behalf of a society for supplying spectacles to school children. Those who smile do not understand, for the matter is quite serious. Mysterious collapses of the nervous system and general poor health may be due simply, to defective sight which spectacles would remedy. It is an admirable society and it exists because the London county council have not the legal power to supply spectacles in the schools. A society to supply too brushes and tooth powder would save poor children from untold misery.

Before and After Marriage.

The same man who pretends that he likes to row a girl for three hours in a hot sun when they are engaged will be found lying in a shady hammock after they are married while she is getting him something good to eat in a boiling hot kitchen.—N. Y. Press.

ney Marked by Pin Pricks— Invariably Lead to Detection of Thief.

it is.

"The average person, no doubt, believes that money is marked by private marks placed on the bills with pen and ink; perhaps some employers thus mark the bills they place in the cash drawer which is belng, robbed by a dishonest clerk. Of course, marked money of this kind is good evidence in court on the trial of a man upon which it has been found. But a check mark in ink, unless very expertly put on, might, with the aid of a good lawyer for the accused, be shown to have been perhaps accidental, and thus would the ever-sought reasonable doubt of the accused by arricipation in the robbery be raised.
"There are several different ways accused's participation in the robbery be raised.

"There are several different ways of marking money by police experts to the end that they may establish its positive identity of having been in their hands before the thief extracted it. The way I personally employ, and which is perhaps the safest to secure certainty of conviction, is the 'pin prick method."
"Let us take the familiar silvercertificate of the five dollar denomination; one that has been somewhat worn is better than a new note from the treasury. In the center is the well-known vignette of the head of an Indian chief in dress regalia of feathers and trappings, presenting a full face view. We now take this pin and make two punctures right through the bill and directly through the pupils of the eyes—so. I hand you the bill, and even though you saw me make the punctures, they are not visible to a casual, and even critical glance.
"I now raise it to the light and you."

make the punctures, they are not visible to a casual, and even crifical glance.

"I now raise it to the light, and you can see the two tiny holes made by the pla point as distinctly as windows in a building. I then apply the pin point very nearly at the twist in the neck of the large figure five at the two upper extreme ends of the note. You will observe that these diminutive twists do not appear in the necks —of the two figures of five which are in-both ends at the bottom of the note. I then pierce the note at the extreme ends of the scrolls on either side of the word five, which may be seen in the direct center of the note at the current ends of the scrolls on either side of the word five, which may be seen in the direct center of the note at the current ends of the scrolls one or two persons in the secret for the purpose of preliminary examination and identification, and then placed in the money drawer, perhaps with several others of the same denomination, all exactly marked alike with the greatest care. The thief may be on the lookout for marked bills, usually fink marks, but he is a silek one who will get on to the invisible but surely present pin pricks. You see, this class of thierying does not admit of, a critical examination of the money before taking; it is usually done very quickly by palming the bills on the person before the thef has a chance to exchange or to spend them.

"And the pin pricks remain? In deed they do. The money is after ward carefully placed in envelopes, and is not promiscuously handled. When they are exhibited in court, and their preliminary preparation explained under oath conviction is practically certain."

Wise Old Man.

Methiselah took us down back of the house and showed us a wonderful pyramid that rivaled Cheops:

"Who built this?" we asked, in awe.
"I did," replied the old man, with a low chuckle.

"But where did you ever get so many blocks of stone?"

"Those are not blocks of stone. They are boxes of cigars. My wife has been glying me a box every birthday since our marriage, and as I knew better than to smoke them, I piled them all up hege."

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fall to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required. whenever a laxative remedy is required.

For Congress.

We are authorized to announce Jos.

L. RHINOCK as a candidate for reelection to Congress, from the sixth Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The cost of holding the State primary election is estimated at $40,000.

Taggart, in Indiana, and Har-gis, in Kentucky, are two nice ducks for party leaders.

The News-Herald, Owenton, has installed a Morgan Thaler Linotype, an omen of continued prosperity.

Will Mr. Bryan take up the case Hargis, a member of one of e Democratic State Committees the Democratin Kentucky?

The Ohio Republicans are fig-uring on that State swinging back in line this fall with the usual majority.

Mr. Gooch plunged into the race for the Congressional nomination in this dirtrict at the last minute. The golden rule is not recognized in politics.

The Frankfort contingent of candidates for office are very much up in the air yet. Genera. Haley is not equal to the task of bringing order out of chaos.

Who is I'T in Kentucky, is a question that is annoying the would-be Republican bosses since the recent handing out of some Kentucky appointments at the White House.

Both in the amount of capital invested in manufacturing and in the value of manufactured products the South has advanced during the past five years at greater speed than the rest of the country.

The best Hargis could do was to cause the defeat of Byrd for Congress in the Tenth District. Byrd is the prosecuting attorney who has been making dife a burden for the Hargises and Callahan, recently.

The American Federation of Labor has issued an appeal to wage earners to unite in an effort to drive out of office all foes of labor and to elect men pledged to legislate in the interests of the working people.

Representative Blackburn, republican of North Carolina, was defeated for renomination. The labor leaders say that they brought about Blackburn's defeat because he voted against certain measures in which organized labor is interested.

It turned out that the question of location for the State Fair was only a question as to what locality would put up the most money therefor, and as Louisville was a long ways the most liberal bidder, Lexington ought not to be making such a show of herself.

John D. Rockefeller will not be summoned to appear before the Federal grand jury in Chicago during the Standard Oil investi-gation this week. Government officials think that if Mr. Rocke-feller should testify it would be necessary to grant him immunity from future prosecution.

Ollie James will be at home in the next few days, when he will settle the question as to his candidacy for Governor. Some who pretend to know say he will be a candidate, while others who claim to be equally as well informed say he will not be, so you will have to wait and hear from Ollie.

Ollie.

Auditor Hager's campaign opener was a red hot number when applied to Attorney. Gen. Hays, who is making some very ugly charges against the administration. The peculiar thing about the affair is Hays takes the records to prove his charges against the administration, and Hager uses the same records to prove that Hays is a liar. Somebody is evidently perverting the records.

W. L. RIDDELL,

MR. W. L. RIDDELL,

Dear Sir and Friend.—Find enclosed clipping from Michigan paper that I thought perhaps, would be of some consolation to you. As you are well aware that my lot has been cast so as not to come in contact with you to place the amount that you say I always contribute when I meet you. Florence fair is not a long time away. This finds me in the wilds of Michigan in what is known as the Thumb, about eight miles from Lake Huron. Have not seen old Verona since June 11th. I have followed the harvest up through the state of Ohio and almost through this state. About two more weeks and I will land in Old Kentucky. This is a very fertile part of the state, plenty of will aland here yet, and a good many awampe, but they are cutting ditches and in a few more years the land will all be occupied. The improved land is very fine. The heaviest crops of oats and timethy I have ever seen. Wheat grows well. Sugar beets are a very staple crophere, yielding as high as 16 to 18 tons per acre, bringing from $4 to 5 per ton as they test in sugar producing qualities. Trusting that this clipping may bring you a large degree of consolation. I am Ly.

Following is the clipping accompanying the above letter:

Yours Truly,

Following is the olipping accompanying the above letter:

The preacher works for the souls of men, and generally gets his pay; the merchant reaps his reward for toil in profit day by day; the dealer in grog stands behind the bar and fills up the schooners high, while he jingles the tin that the boys blow in for their portions of good old rye. The banker sits in his office chair, with his bundle of cash to rent, and he gathers a harvest month by month by a vigorous temper cent; the doctor and lawyer find work to do that brings in the hard cold cash while the man who wields plane and spade find money to buy their hash; but the editor has a thankless task while the busy months roll by; he knows no rest of body or brain and he misses a chance to die. No reward in this world will ever come, but over the silent sea, if justice reigns, he is bound to have an elegant jubilee."

Hon. John M. Lassing, of Walton, who recently resigned as judge of this judicial district, having been appointed Judge of the Appellate Court, is very bopular here with the public and officials and on his retirement from the local bench some of his friends desired to present him with a testimony of their high esteem of his many excellent qualities and particularly his uniform kindness and courtesy to all both in his private capacity and the discharge of his official duties, and therefore the attorneys and officers of the Gallatin Circuit Court purchased a beautiful Elk's $50 watch chain of handsome, solid, gold, design inlaid with precious stones, he being an honored member of that benevolent order. The present is inscribed with the motto of the order "Gervus Alces." and "To the Hon. John M. Lassing from the attorneys and officers of the Gallatin Circuit Court."—Warsaw Independent.

The Charm of Effervescence.
What is there so fascinating about a "fizzing" beverage? Why are the soda fountains thronged by crowds who would not touch their product, after the dissolved gas had passed off? The reason is doubtless partly psychological, but does not seem to have been clearly stated. A writer in the London Lancet makes an attempt at it, and succeeds in raising some interesting questions, at least. He notes, in the first place, that artificially aerated waters are a comparatively modern invention. They were suggested, no doubt, partly by natural sparkling, waters and partly by effervesent fermented liquors. He goes on: "Whatever may have been its origin, the discovery of artificially aerated waters, as exemplified in the universality of soda water, seltzer water, and potash water, proved to be the beginning of an enormous industry, and millions of dozens of aerated waters are now made annually, involving the employment of probably at least 50,000 persons in this country alone. This fact, coupled with the numerous devices which enable the consumer to prepare his own soda water at home, would seem to indicate that the introduction of aerated waters sit only impregnated with carbonic acid gas has any prejudicial effect upon the health. It is an interesting feature of the case that total abstainers formed at one time the chief patrons of aerated waters as nowned, and so forth formed an agreeable contrast to the usual drinks of the teetotaler. The lemon squash made with soda water was a much more interesting beverage than still lemonade, and so of the minerals' made a very acceptable addition to the beverages of a class of persons whose views we all respect."

The Submarine Boat.

The French government has expertmented with no fewer than 16 types of submarine boats, yet no entirely satisfactory results have been attained. The motor question bresents one of the chief difficulties. What is wanted is an apparatus which works equally well under and above water. The present tendency is to arrange the Barger boats for offensive, the smaller for defensive purposes, and it is intended to increase the former to a displacement of 500 tons. The extension of the arranment from one torpedo tube to seven is considered by some foreign experts a mistake, as no boat is likely to fire more than two. While considerable progress has been made in the art of managing the boats within the past year, says the New York Post, the sighting question still prefents serious difficulties, although the officers claim to be satisfied in regard to the facilities for orientation and aiming. Excessive confidence in the present types of boat is one of the French faults; it fed last year, among other things, to the Bitearta disaster, by which 12 men lost their lives. Still, France leads the world in the construction and management of submarine boats. England ranks next. She adheres to the electric motor, and has reached a displacement of submarine boats. Ballooning Up the Mountains.

A balloon railway is now running.

Up the mountains at Salzburg, Austral,

Lit consists of a large captive balloon attached to a single steel railway which in turn is fixed firmly to the side-of-a-steep mountain, whose precipitous slopes no other form of railway could elimb without making a series of serpentine detours and passing through the tunnels. The balloon remains balanced in the air about ten yards by a stout wire cable, and it is moved up and down the side of the mountain at the will of the engineer. For an ascent the balloon itself furnishes the lifting force by means of hydrogen; for the descent a large reservoir attached to the balloon is filled with water at the highest station and serves as ballast. Under the balloon is a circular car seating ten persons. The wire cable passes through the floor of the car to a speed regulator beneath, which is controlled by the engineer. The investor, Herr Balderaue, of Salzburg, claims that the balloon railway will replace the functual railway in the future.

New York. — The largest fleet of battleships, armored cruisers and lorjied craft ever assembled under the American fing will pass in review before President Roosevelt in the waters off Oyster Bay, September 3. In addition to all the battleships in the Atlantic fleet, under Rear Admiral Evans, four of the new ships, all of them larger and more powerful than any in Admiral Evans' fleet, will be in line. The four armored cruisers now being made ready for the Asiatic service will be reenforced by the cruisers Washington and Tennessee. The Tennessee was put in commission last week. The Washington will be commissioned this week.

The nany department has been at work for weeks perfecting the plans for the review. Admiral Evans will be in command, his fing. fying from the Maine. As it passes in review the Maine will be followed by the Missouri, Kentucky, Kearsarge, Indiana and Iowa in the order named. The last four ships comprise the second squadron of the battleship division of the Atlantic fleet.

This order is the most sweeping one of the kind ever made by the mission, and if the commission is inclined to enforce it, in detail, it would mean the bringing of the record-of all railroads doing business in Minach and the control of all railroads, and to Commissioner Staples: "Why, if this order is enforced it would mean the removal of the offices of all the railroads, said to the offices of all the railroads to the state capitol." Mr. Staples replied by asying it would not do that if the railroads would permit the examination of the records in their own offices.

This order of the commission is the result of a request made by Attorney Manahan, representing the shippers of Hastings, Minn, made at the hearing Wednesday, after the auditor of the Northern Pacific railroad had given a lot of statistics showing how the earnings of railroads had decreased in Minnesota while they had increased in Iowa and Illinois. Mr. Manahan claimed that the statistics did not show actual facts.

MEANING OF MOLES,

On the right side of the upper, lip a mole promises great good fortune to both seres.

A mole on the neck, in man or woman, promises a long and happy life, wealth and fame.

A science, or pseudo-science, of moles has existed among the Pennsylvania Dutch for many years.

an with such a mole is foolish, idle and envious.

A man with a mole on the left side of the upper lip rarely marries, and such a mole in the case of a woman denotes suffering.

A mole on the right side or a man's forehead enotes wonderful luck; on the right side of a woman's forehead, gifts from the dead.

On the left side of a woman's forehead a mole denotes a long term in prison; on the left side of a woman's forehead, two busbands, and a life of exile.

According to this science, no one is without a mole or two, and these are some of the prognostications that mole-wearers may draw from their brown ornaments:

was Willing to Change.

According to Hisper's Weekly, Marshall P. Wilder tells of a young man in Wilkesbarre who had aspirations to the hand of a daughter of one of the wealthlest men in that place. Recently the hopeful one had an interview with the father for the purposa of laying the matter before him. "Well," growled the old man, "what I most desire to knoy is, what preparation have you made for the future?" "Oh" exclaimed the suitor, in a confident and obliging tone, "I am a Prosbyterian; but, if that denomination doesn't meet wifn your approval, I am quite willing to change."

"NO TROUBLE"

To Change from Coffee to Postum.

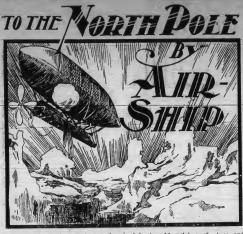

"Postum has done a world of good for me," writes an Ills. man. "I've had indigestion nearly all my life but never dreamed coffee was the cause of my trouble until last Spring I got so bad I was in misery all the time.

I got so bad I was in misery all the time.

"A coffee drinker for 30 years, it irritated my stomach and nerves, yet I was just crazy for it. After drinking it. with my meals, I would leave the table, go out and lose my meal and table, go out and lose my meal and the coffee too. Then I'd be as hungry as ever.

"A friend advised me to quit coffee and use Postum—said it cured him. Since tiking his advice I retain my food and get all ithe good out of it, and don't have those awful hungry spells.

"I changed from coffee to Postum without any trouble whatever, felt better from the first day I drank it. I am well now and give the credit to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellytile." in pkgs. "There's a reason."

By the aid of that most marvelous modern invention Walter Wellman, 165 tons of these materials, carefully Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record-Heraid and noted arctic explorer, is making a third attempt to reach the north pole. Of the countless number of attempts to conquer the elements of the far north few, if any, have ever excited the interest of this expedition of Mr. Wellman and his chosen companions.

It is this thing of going about it in a new way that lifts the Wellman and expedition to a plane high above all previous efforts in point of interest that places it in a class by itself. The devices fixed upon by Mr. Wellman were selected because they were the latest offerings acknere has—made-in thick were available for the purposes of the expeditions.

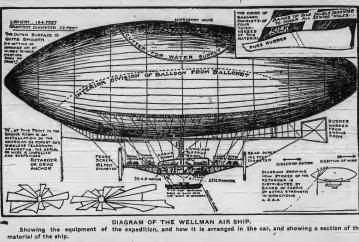

The two expeditions made by Mr. Wellman, one in 1894 and the other in 1897-38, like those of all other explorers, were made on the theory that breaks down at times and becomes utterly useless, but the proportion of efficiency is great anough to make automobile construction one of the his industries of the country. The Wellman sirship holds the same relation to the possible high-speed airship of the future as the automobile in its present stage of development does to the possible non-hreakable automobile of the future. It is possible that the preliminary flights or trials at Dane's island may indicate weaknesses or faults; but if such is the case the facilities at the base for remedying them are all-sufficient. The sirship that starts to the pole will be a well-behaved, easily managed ship of the requisite speed when the start is made. If it develops untractable traits after that it will be because conditions arise which cannot be foreseen or because machinery breaks down, a contingency which arises whenever machinery is used.

Mr. Wellman's Own Views.
It is interesting to note that in the goastpy discussions of the venture by mem who pretend to know nothing of aeronauties for the polar regions, the two objections most often urged are two which caused Mr. Wellman and his associates in the construction and outfitting of the ship the most perplexity. The manner in which he proposes to overcome one of these dangers—that from fast, adverse winds—has been explained by Mr. Wellman, thus:
"We have aiready explained how we hope to make progresse with our airship by means of our motors and screws when the winds are favorable in direction, and also when they are unfavorable, that not of too great velocity. What are we going to do when they bid wadversely and also too strongly to permit us to advance with the motors?

"This brings us to one of the fundamental features of the method which we have adopted. It is this:
"I. With favorable winds or unfavorable winds of relatively small velocities—motor at a proper-speed of from ten to 17 geographical—miles per hour, with 12 miles per hour as perhaps the mean speed.

"2. With unfavorable winds of high-Wellman's Own Views.

Mr. Wellman, and the trials were futile, except in that they furnished the explorer with a comprehensive knowledge of conditions both atmospheric and by land and water. It was this

This rudder is operated from the engine-room with a simple steering apparatus.

Description of Ship.

A general description of the alrahip is as follows:

In length it is 164 feet. Its greatest diameter is 25 feet. The materials of which the bag is made are pure rubber and silk, with the top of the bag a perfectly smooth surface, which will not accumulate frost, snow or sleet, and thereby decrease the ascensional power. By a simple device provision has been made for the removal of snow from the top of the ship.

The propelling power of the airahip lies in three motors, of the inner combustion type and using gasoline for fuel. The combined horsepower of the motora is 100, although the contract called for only 75. The largest motor is 70 horsepower, and in caim air provides a speed of from 12 to 14 miles an hour. With all motors working, the ship will be driven 19 miles an hour in calms.

The surface of the hag measures 21, 225 cubic feet. The hydrogen with whilst the bag is inflated is made of the boulevards. A short time ago Deacon Grimes and his wife were sitting together one overning, and they got to talking about their married life and their past troubles, until both of them grow quite sympathic and affectionate. At last Mrs. Grimes suggested that it might help to kindie afresh the fire of love in their hearts if they, would freely confess their faults to each other, and promise 16. Sueed them. The deacon said it struck him as being a good idea. for his part he was willing to make a clean breast of it, but he suggested that perhaps his wife had better begin. She thought for a moment, and this conversition ensued:

Mrs. G. (Indignantly)—Mr. Grimes, that's perfectly outrageous! You ought to be asheamed of yourself. Deacon—Well, you know it's so. You have got the worst temper of any woman I ever saw.

Mrs. G.—No, I haven't, either. I'm just as good-tempered as you are.
Deacon—That's not so. You're as cross as a bear with a billious attack. If you were married to a graven image you'd spat with it till you soured on it.

Mrs. G.—That's an outrageous false-hood! There isn't any woman about this neighborhood that puts up with as much as I do without getting mad. You're a perfect brute!
Deacon—I's you that's 'the brute.

Parisian Women Are Graceful.

The graceful figures of Parisian women are said to be due mainly to diet and exercise. The French girl drinks a great deal of milk until about the age of 20, after which her repasts are of a light unofattening kind. Where in other countries a woman would take a heavy meal, the Parisienne contents herself with a bowl of soup. Her outdoor exercise is mainly limited to chopping excursions or short strolls in the city. She is very active about her household tasks, both from motives of economy-and also as a means of keping down superfluous fiesh.

Ex-Senator Thomas Carter, of the St. Louis Exposition company, tells a story of a Chicago family visiting the fair who were asked what had impressed them most at the big show. "Well," said the oldest girl, who took it upon herself to be the spokesman of the party, "I rather think we liked that picture of Adam and Eve, alone with the apple and the serpent." "So that struck you most forcibly?" the friend asked. "Yes, indeed, we found it most interesting. We knew the anecdote, you see!"

Review of Eiggest Fleet in American Warships Ever Assembled Sec ond Only to Channel Squadron of Great Britain The Public Bur den of Navai Expenditures-The Various Classes of Negroes.

WASHINGTON—It is proposed in September to have a review of the biggest fleets of American warships ever assembled. It will take place either in the waters of Long Island Sound or off the const of Massachusetts and will be winessed by President Rouvers and will be winessed by President Rouvers of Long Island Sound or off the const of Massachusetts and will be winessed by President Rouvers of Long Island Sound or off the const of Massachusetts and will be winessed by President Rouvers of the Aliantic fleet before it left for the southern drills grounds in the early autumn. The secretary is now making the preparations to have the big fleet assembled some time in September, and it is probable that in addition to the president the reviewing party will include Secretary Bonaparte and Admiral Dewey and several members of the house and senste committees on navis affairs. The fleet will be assembled under the flag of Rear Admiral Robey D. Evans and will be sector of the house and senste committees on navis affairs, which is the most formidable fleet in the world. The fleet will embrace 14 first-class attroect cruisers, a torped officilla and a number of fleet auxillaries, such as coillers, repair ships, etc.

It is expected that five or six new battleships freeth of the contractors will be in this force, including the Georgia, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Virginia, Connecticut and Louislana.

ESCAPADES OF A YOUNG CENTRAL AMERICAN.

There has been running around loose in this country, creating occasional sensations and giving an undesired advertisement to his own country. A young man who ought to be one of the most prominent men in his own born. Alphonaso Zelaya, who is the son of the president of the Republic of Nurregua and been making a speciate of himself for several months. He was sent by his father to receive a military education at the West Point Military Academy, but found the discipline and curriculum of that institution at little foo severe for his southern nature. He made the acquaintance in this city of a Miss Baker, the adopted daughter of a Dr. Baker, and a few months ago married her.

The report of his attentions to the young made and he latter tried to have him arrested and myllah that purpose young aday had reached his previous his slaker had become man and wife. It was then that the rich Nicaraguan president cast the young man off and would not recognize him unless he gave up his American wife and-came home.

The honeymon of the young Zolayas did not last very long and they separated, the wife returning to her foster father in this city. Then the young man got a job playing a plano in a beer garden and earned ten dollars a week. On this slender income the pair required, but soon separated again, and Zelaya lost his job as a musical "professor." THE NEGRO PROBLEM AT THE CAPITAL.

The commercial and social circles of this city and surrounding country are terribly agitated over a proposition to establish a settlement of colored persons in a section that is being built up by white people who are in comfortable circumstances. One of the attractive sources being built up by white people who are in comfortable circumstances. One of the attractive sources of the northwest of Washington has for some property of the control of the property and felt confortable in the fact that their surroundings were all satisfactory.—Now comes a proposition for the acquirement of a targe section in this fashiomable territory which will be sold in lots to negroes Aiready a large number of lots have been burght and the white people living near by are in a state of the property one-third of the population of the capital city is colored and annong them is the most undesirable class of negroes. There is a class which, while low abiding in most respects, is very impudont and assertive and whorever possible will "but in" among the whites. This class is purchasing lots in the suburb mentioned and the old residents who have already recreated homes in that neghborhood are sure that their property will loss baff its value if this peers estimated and announce. There does not seem to be any relief to those who object to colored neighbors, as the latter have a right to surchase property if they have the price.

THIEVING SQUIRREL DRIVEN OFF

Rebine Successfully Defend Nest Against Marauder.

A pair of robins proved toe much for a marauding squirrel in independence square yesterday. While on a midair cruise he suddenly stopped as though something special had, attracted his attention, and then he came down the tree in a slow, unconcerned manner. The secret was out, when he shiply began the ascent of another-oak, in the branches of which a pair of the redbreasts had built their nest. His little eyes glistening and his whole manner that of a thief, he moved up the tree trunk, and had almost reached the little blue eggs in the nest when the mother bird and her mate saw him and dew down from their upper perch. They were on Mr. Squirrel in an instant, and the fur flew when their beaks got into action. The retreat of the squirrel was quickly effected. The watchers were amused. Then a second time the robber advanced, and was so successful as to get care of the eggs in his paws before the birds came to the receue. The squirrel was nought to relinquish his hard-won-prize. His heistation was fatal, though, as the birds, with a concerted rush, fairly shoved him out of the nest, and the robins followed him so quickly and furlously that the egg was dropped and smashed on the ground. The squirrel then gave up his purioning expedition.—Philadelphia Record.

Found in Small Stream in the High Sierras, Says Expert.

The finest trout in the world, says Dr. Barton W. Evermann of the bureau, of fisheries, is to be found in a little stream of the high Sierras in southern California called Volcano creek. The trout is named the "golden trout", and in beauty of coloring gameness and delicacy of flavor it has no equal.

So far as is known, it exists only in this stream, which is about 20 miles in length. President Roosevelt recently called attention of the bureau of fisheries to this unique specimen, with the result that Dr. Evermann was sent to California to study its habits and environment and to see whether it might not be introduced elsewhere. He reports that the trout is in damager of extermination and that fishing in the stream must be probiblied by the state of California for three years if the trout is to be saved. Dr. Evermann has also recommended that the bureau of fisheries undertake the artificial propagation of the trout and dropperate with the state of California in transplating it to a number of barren streams that can be easily reached.—National Geographic Magazine.

The RECORDER conveyed some very important news to one of its friends last week. It broke the news to him of how some of his friends in another county had made testimony unto their appreciation of him both as an individual and an official.

The members of the bar of the Boone circuit court presented Judge Jassing with a very handsome testimonial of their esteem for him both as an official and a citizen. The present consisted of a large cut glass punch bowl, one dozen glasses and a large mirror. A happy presentation speech was made by Attorney C. G. Hughes, oldest member of the local bar. The present was accepted by Judge Lassing in a brief but feeling speech.

The idis Sinners.

Every once in awhile the action of some young man who is enjoying a princely Income brings to mind the thought that money ill-spent inevitably brings disaster to the spender. The idie rich, whose sole idea is to imuse themselves, are curses in a community. They bring themselves to premature graves, but long before their deaths they are old in sin, and are so satisted with illicit pleasure that they find no enjoynent in any-thing, and, like Sir Charles Coldstream in the play of "Used Up, there is nothing for them to see with astonishment. Their constant cry is, "There is nothing for them to see with astonishment. Their constant cry is, "There is nothing in it," and they try to stimulate their jaded appetites with excesses that are suggestive of the decilining. Pagan days of Greece and Rome. Go to any of our fashionable watering places in the height of the season and you will find many indolent rich men whose faces express sennuality and a vague jonging for a new sensation. Their fathers probably tolled hard for the mosery they are throwing away in trying to enjoy themselves with base amusements. It would have been a mercy if a few years earlier they had heen deprived of their princely incomes. They might then have been of some use in the world. Now they are simply incumbrances. There is no breeder of vice like laziness, and this applies to all classes of young men, the poor as well as the rich, for all the victous youth are not to be found among the rich, says the Boston Budget. Some of them come from the homes of portry, and they rely upon poor relations for support when they do not become common thieves. Both the classes mentioned are demoralizing in the examples they set, and if they could be packed off together to some island in the sea, where they would have to work or starry, they might develop into something human and develop into something human and Lose, brutal.

Robbing of a Beggar.

The street beggar with pockets lined with money is a fairly familiar figure of city life, but one of the free dispensaries reports an instance of an attempt to get free medicine, on the plea of poverty, that deserves a place in the catalogue of good stories of "graft," says the New York Post. A middle-aged woman appeared the other day and got a prescription, after which she took her place in the line of persons waiting to have their medicine made up hy the apothecary. This particular woman, it should be said, had given satisfactory answers to all the questions put to her, designed to show whether she was a proper subject for charity. Suddenly there was a cry: "Tm robbed! I'm robbed!" The victim was this woman, who so far forgot her previous professions as to assert that Berpocket had been picked and that the thief had got away with $90. Then she lost the opportunity to get free medicine, thus adding, in her view, insult to injury.

medicine, thus adding, in age view, insult to injury.

American Goods in Mexico.

"American merchants could do 50 per cent more business in Mexico were they to study the character and condition of trade in our country," said Walter E. Grevel, of Mexico City.

"The main trouble with the slow sale of American-merchandise in Mexico is the fact that the merchants and manufacturers demand that payment for their goods he sent upon the receipt of the bill for the same, and this hill arrives a munth in advance. of the goods. Of course, our merchants do not favor-the idea of paying for goods before receiving them.
On the other hand, European merchants are liberal in giving time limits as high as six months, and, as a consequence, enjoy a good portion of pur trade."

Allases of the Great.

Some investigator of curious subjects has discovered that the inventor of traveling incognito was Peter the Great of Russia. The next after the famous Russian sovereign to adopt the practice was Joseph II. of Austria, who in 1777 made a little stay in Paris under the title of Count von Pathenstein, During the revolutionary. in Paris under the title of Count von Falkenstein. During the revolutionary period Louis XVIII. buried his temporary useless royal dignity under the privacy of Comte de Lille, while Charles X. passed as Comte de Maries. Ex-Empress Eugenie in her splendor frequently took little trips as Comtessed de Pierrefonds. King Léopold does so still as Comte de Ravenstein.

BOARD CUTS GRAIN TARIFF

IMPORTANT RULING BY WISCON SIN RAILWAY COMMISSION.

Iness in the State.

Madison, Wis.—Grain rates for the state of Wisconsin will be reduced practically one ceat per hushel hy an opinion of the railway commission, handed down Thursday.

This 4s this most Important decision that has ever been rendered by the Wisconsin commission. The order will affect all of the railroads operating in the state of Wisconsin.

The matter was started by a complaint made by 0. 6. Kingy agafist the Wisconsin Contral and later by a complaint of W. L. Houser, against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Minneapolis & Omaha and the Chicago, & Northwestern.

The matter was conducted as an investigation of grain rates between stations in Wisconsin and Milwaukee by the railroad commission acting on its own motion. The two complaints involved grain rates from Coifax and Hondovi to Milwaukee only.

The commission notified the railroad companies that a complete investigation would be made on their own initiative of the whole question and the railroad companies appeared at a formal hearing, July 10, when sworn testimony was received at that time on the matter.

The hearings in the matter of passenger rates have contributed much to an exact solution of the question.

Hering war found, not by the police, but hy newspaper reporters, to whom he made a statement Wednesday night and promised to surrender to the police Thursday.

Although a number of persons knew, the whereabouts of Hering, the police made no demand on them to produce him.

An amazing story of loose and criminal banking methods will be revealed by Hering, the police and Bank Examiner C. C. Jones believe. More specific information about Stensland's operations, it is thought, will make him out a man whose greatest asset was the ability he had to win the friendship and confidence of the people who gave him their money. There are 24 counts in each indictment of the Standard Oll company and of the Pennsylvania Raliroad company, and a smaller number against the Vacuum Oll company.

The evidence presented to the grand jury in the oll cases having indicated that shipments of oil were made from Rochester to Rutland, Vt., over the New York Central raliroad, Boston & Maine, and Rutland raliroad lines, United States Attorney Brown asked that he given time in which to prepare for an investigation into the connections of these three great roads with the shipments of the Standard Oll company's products at the alleged discriminative rates alleged to have heen given by the Pennsylvania raliroad.

North Carolina Lyncher Given 15 Years in Jail.

Salisbury, N. C.—What is said to be the first instance of the conviction of a lyncher in the history of the state was furnished here ridden yight when George Hall, a white exconvict of Montgomery county, North Carolina, who was one of the party that Monday night lynched three negroes in jail here for the murder of the Lyerly family, was found guilty of consipracy in connection with the crime and was sentenced to 15 years in the pentientiary.

Hall's trial ended Friday evening at seven o'clock. The jury was out thut 35 minutes and returned then with a verdict of guilty, after several witnesses had been heard. Judge B. F. Long sentenced Hall to the maitmum term provided by law—15 years at hard labor in the pentientiary. The evidence against Hall was overwhelming. He was remanded to jail. His counsel has appealed on the ground that Gov. Glenn was in Atlantic City when the special term at which Hall was tried was ordered and that being out of the state's bounds he had no jurisdiction.

The state aprung a surprise in the trial when the offense against the prisoner was changed from murder to conspiracy. When the court was called to order at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning, former Congressman. T. J. The Parfect Law.—That Law is described by six names. As Law it is a rule of conduct. As Testimony it is God's expression of truth. As Statutes and Commandements it is God's special and general prescription of duty, with fear of God as its cause. As Judgments it is the final judicial decision 'from which there is no appeal. The quality of that Law is variously described as Perfect, lacking nothing; as Sure, never failing; as Right, being unreing; as Pure, possessing the fragrance of Heaven; as Clean, possessing the holipess of its Divine Author; as True, the foundation stone of His character, and Righteous, the glorious temple of his manifest nature.

The effect of that Law is declared to be, (1) Converting.

The effect of that Law is decisred to be, (1) Converting, that is, transforming into Goditiness. (2) Making Wise the Simple, that is, instructing. (5) Endouring Forever, that is, abiding with an unfailing permanency.

The Value of That Law—It is more to be desired than muchine gold, that is, it is more precious than earthly tressure. It is avected than oneycomb.

That Law is Protective, for by it

"This is the message of God to Ispael," he cried when a great flush had fallen upon the assembly, "for h ims commanded me in the mountais to say to the house of Jacob, and to 'ell the children of israel: 'Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagle's wings and brought you unto myself."

As the words were reposted and all the people heard they bowed low, and the memories which the words recalled stirred them as they had not been stirred before, and roused them to that religious fervor which hung eagerly on the rest of the message as Moses might deliver it.

"Now therefore," Moses continued, "if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people; for all the earth is nine."

A great stillness rested upon the people as Moses ended the words of the Lord and then-as though moved by one spirit, that was concourse of people life and then as though moved the control of the Lord and shouted until the very mountain so avery side fairly rand shook with the volume thereof:

"All that the Lord hath spoken we will do."

The next three days the people were in a quiver of excitement, for Moses had returned saying that upon the third day the Lord would come down upon the mountain in the sight of all the people.

"We have seen God in the Cloud by day and the Pillar of fire hy night. What will this new manifestation be?"

"God hath cailed us to be priests," they said one to another, repeating the words of Moses, and with a beaultful spirit of submission they infilled all the instructions which moses had given them.

The third day broke as others had done and the people were early astir prepared to for for the was their daily custom and gather the manna, when from the mountain side about which had settled a thick cloud there burst thunderings and lightnings. In terror the people three tamp heard and trombled.

Thus Moses found them as he came through the camp and summoned them to follow him. Keep Your Nerve

It is nerve energy that runs the organs of your body. The storage battery is the nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord, and from this battery nerve force is sent out through the system of nerves. To keep the body healthy you must have plenty of nerve force; if you have not, the organs work imperfectly, the circulation is sluggish, digestion bad, appetite poor, kidneys inactive, and aches, pains and misery, are the penalty.

You can keep the system strong with Dr. Miles' Nervine. It assists in generating nerve energy; it strengthens the nerves and makes the whole system strong and vigorous.

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may leaf but a day, and he prepares for the showers which are so flable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea, and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. Weilman's Persistency.

The indefatigable Waiter Weilman has established wireles telegraph consection between the Arctic regions and Washington preparatory to smbarking on his hazardous aerial polar expedition, Interest in the venture will increase as the time approaches for the final launching of the airabily from the station off the north coast of Norway in August, the ill, fate of the Andre expedition preparing the public mind ominously for another plunge into the silences of the Arctic. The Weilman expedition is, however, equipped doubly. The dirigible balloon and wireless telegraphy were not available to Andre, and it is with the aid of these two inventions that the intreptid Weilman hopes to return. Andre made the trip one way. Wellloon and wireless telegraphy were not varisiable to Andre, and it is with the aid of these two inventions that the infrepid Wellman hopes to return. Andre made the trip one way. Wellman, the man, becomes for the moment a prominent figure among the daring adventurers of romance and history, whatever wisdom may lie in his venture, and however profitiess or profitable the undertaking may be, says the Detroit Free Press. The present expedition will be his third. Fired by ambition and moved by a spirit of geographical adventure, Wellman abandoned temporarily his work in the newspaper field as Washington correspondent for western newspapers, and in 1894 ventured north, returning with valuable information. In 1898 he made a second expedition and fixed the boundaries of Franz Josef land, locating many new Arctic islands. He returned from these expeditions broken in health and almost incapacitated for active work. A man of his indomitable courage and persistence is not to be stayed by ordinary obstacles. Instead of seeking comfort and ease, he applied himself once more to his newspaper work with the one ruling passion urging him on, to gather enough funds for a third and perhaps successful venture. Though suffering bodily from the effects of his former experience in the frozen north, Wellman devoted the past seven y years to enlisting capital, amassing funds from his, own savings and preparing for what may be the denouement of his life work. With his sort of courage and faith behind his new expedition, and the valuable experience gained by his previous dashes for the pole. Wellman's venture promises well.

Even a moment's reflection ought to show Bishop Fallows that the so-called extravagances of the rich are not without their compensations. We need not defend the giving of $50,000 because in order to realize that these are proceedings which put money in circulation. If every rich man lived as frugally as did the late Russell Sage, for instance, a great many lines as rugally as did the late Russell Sage, for instance, a great many lines of business would find themselves of business would find themselves fallen upon evil days. It is better, from the standpoint of the ordinary citizen, that the millionaire should spend his money foolishly than not spend it at all. The ethics of the matter is another thing.

The writers of the Russell Sage obituary notices are almost a unit in declaring that his great passion was money-making, a fact which distinguished him from almost the entire body of his fellow countrymen.—Chicago Inter Ocean. No, in his passion for money-making he was like-two-thirds of humanity. It was his passion for keeping money that distinguished him from the rest of his fellowmen.

The development of Alaska has been one of the wonders of the age, and it is certain to proceed still more rapidly when the network of railroads planned for the territory shall be completed. The days of the Indian courier, and the dog team as the chief means of communication are fast disappearing. The Yukon river is navigable for many miles and has afforded means of access to the interior, but it is frozen over a large part of the year and does not reach some of the more important areas. Several big steam railroad lines in Alaska have been mapped out, and before many years it will be possible to visit and travel about the "Seward purchase" in frawing room cars and with as much comfort and even luxury as the tourist in any other part of Uncle Sam's possessions can command.

Martial law is in force and the authorities have suppressed any disorder. Little work on the identification of bodies has been done. Steamers have been dispatched in haste to the north and south for provisions and troops.

The number of dead at Valparaiso can not be accurately determined, but may reach 1,1000, while very conservative esmattes place it at 2,000, and United States Minister Hicks says 500 are known to be killed.

The property loss is estimated at $250,000,000. Sixty per cent of she city has been demoished by earth-quake or fire. The disaster is proportionately greater than San Francisco's and probably exceeds it in actual number killed and amount of damage. One hundred thousand people are homeless, camping on hills and in the parks and streets. Thousands are fleeling from the city.

The water supply is giving out and tool is running low. Famine is feared, and the city and the city of the control of the property loss. GOOD COLORS FOR HOUSES.

It is not generally known-not even among painters—why evertain this and colors wear much better than others on houses, and the Rhowledge of Just what this are best to use is, therefore, rither hazy.

One writer on paint, in a recent book, says that experiments seem to show that those colors which resist or turn back the heat rays of the sun, will protect a house better than those which allow these rays to pass through the film.

Thus red is a good color because it turns back, or reflects, the red rays, and the red rays are the hot rays.

In general, therefore, the warm tones are good and the cold tones are poor, so far as wear is concerned. In choosing the color of paint for your house, select reds, browns, grays and olives which, considering the various tones these tints will produce, will give a wide range from which to choose.

Avoid the harsh tints, such as cold will give a wide range from which to choose.

Avoid the harsh tints, such as cold yellows (like lemon), cold greens (like grass green, etc.), and the blues. It must be understood that no virtue is claimed for tints in theinselves, irrespective of the materials used in the paint. Any color will fade, and the paint will scale off, if adulterated white lead or cammed paint is used, but if one is careful to use the best whige lead—some well-known brand of a reliable manufacture—and genuine linseed oil, the warm tints mendoned above will outwear the sagne materials tinted with the cold colors.

At this point an interested listener in the car leaned toward their chairs and asked; "is it really true that ex-Gov. Powers is of Indian descent?"

"Well, the indians demy it," Mr. Pattangall answered, in his inimitable manner.

GAS- USED UNDER LIME KILNS.

Innovation by Connecticut Company is a Success.

The New England Lime company, of Winstead, Conn., asserts that it is the first to introduce gas as firel for lime burning. The method is pronunced an entire success. The growing scarcity of wood fuel led to the discovery of gas as a substitute for wood, and the company no longer considers the gas method an experiment. The efficacy and reliability of gas have been demonstrated beyond a doubt. Had it been impossible to find a substitute for wood, said a member of the company, it would have meant the restriction and perhaps the total abandonment of the business. Gas, fires are absolutely blean at all times—no clinkers and no cinders—and the limer produced is such whiter than that burned by wood. Gas also produced a more intense heat, and consequently increases the capacity of the kins. The daily output at the company's kins is increased from 80 barrels per kiln to 100 barrels, or a total of 700 barrels daily.

George, Stephen Ledford and several other parties were congregated on horseback, as he thought, to block his way. Butner asked them to clear the street, but they refused. He went into the store, coming out with a revolver in his hand. Then the shooting began Johnson, Ledford, McCarty and George were lodged in jail. Johnson's pistol was emptided. Two other men identified were seen firing at the negro, but both escaped on horseback.

SENTRIES

Reach the Barboursville Jail.

Barboursville, Ky.—An attempt was made at two points to enter the picker line of the troops guarding the jail. The intruders did not obey the order of sentries to halt, and swere fired upon, but no one was hurt, and the men escaped in the darkness. Great excitement resulted, many thinking the soldiers had been attacked, and the entire militia force was called out. Officials summoned 80 men from Whitley contry to be brought here for the jury to 'try Jesse Fitzgerald, one of the negro murderers of Mrs. Robert Broughton. They were selected from the mountainous districts, where the fact of the murder is not generally known.

Be Captured.

Columbia, Ky.—Lizzle Hancock, who resides at the home of B. F. Tupman, a farmer on the Green river section of Addir county, was the victim of an outrageous crime. Mr. Tupman and family were away from home at the time, and Miss Hancock was in the kitchen preparing dinner. A negro entered the room and assaulted her. The brute was armed with a pistol, and warned Miss Hancock not to make any outcry. As soon as the negro went away Miss Hancock gave the alarm and a posse was quickly formed to search for the negro. Every cabin in the county was visited, but he has not been "captured. Miss Hancock thinks she can identify her assailant, and, when he is caught, a necktle party will doubtless be in order.

Greensburg, Ky.—J. E. Franklin and Jasper Judd were affected charged with the murder of Ed. Hoggard, who was assassinated as he lay asleep in his house. Franklin is a brother-in-law of Hoggard. There is no positive proof in the case, only circumstantial evidence.

London, Ky—At a big rally of the friends of Congressman D. C. Edwards, candidate for congress, speeches were made by B. F. Johnson, James Sparks and R. Boyd, Fr. of this county, and J. W. Multins, of Jackson, and H. F. Farmer, of Clay.

HIS ROOM

Took Life and Ran Away, Said Mad Guest, Who Posed as Guard.

CRIED OUT

That He Was Murdered, and Arnett Fell on the Ground Dead.

Salyersville, Ky.—The worst feud battle in the history of Megoffin county was fought about dusk on Middle Fork, four miles east of this place, between the Risners and Arnetts on one side and the Guiletts on the other. The one dead is Warner Arnett, an farmer of Hendricks. Clay Guilett, of Middle Fork, is fatally wounded. John Guilett and Leander Risner are silght hunt. Arnett was stabbed in the back, the knife point barely touching the heart, but he died without teiling who was responsible for the knife thrust.

It appears that Leander Risner and Clay Guilett were engaged in a friendly shoting match, while a number of their friends atood about siding with one or the other. Others were in the house talking to the Risner girls. Arnett guidenly ran out-of the house crying that he was killed, and dropped dead in full view of the crowd watching the shooting. Instantly there was a rush for guns, and soon nearly every one who could secure a gun was shooting, and witnessees say that the wonder is that many more were not killed.

LID MAY BE OFF.

Mayor Barth, Louisville, Makes Con-cessions to Hotels.

Cessions to Hotels.

Louisville, Ky.—It looks very much as if the lid will be lifted in Louisville within a very short time, and that saloons would be selling drinks on Sunday on the quiet wiltin two weeks. Mayor Barth in an interview says that hotels will be allowed to sell drinks with regular meals hereafter, but they must be bona-fide meals and not sandwiches. Many regard this as an entering wedge whereby the administration is to come down gracefully and soon permit-the sale of liquors on the quiet on Sunday in all the saloons. The saloon keepers affect to be displeased because of the mayor's order, and say they regard it as unfair that hotels should be allowed to sell whilst the regular bars are closed. Both pay the same license fee, and the character of the permit to the saloon is the same as to the hotel. A meeting of the Retail Liquor Dealergi-Protective association has been called to discuss the siluation.

COUNTY JUDGE

Central City, Ky.—Suit has been filed by Dr. T. J. Staton, a member of the last legislature, against S. J. Sparks, former county judge, to recover about $1,750 that Sparks is alleged to have received in fees while he was in office. Sparks claims to have been instrumental in settling, the railroad tax of the county, and was allowed as fee of $1,000 for nis services. It is also claimed that he was allowed about $750 as road and bridge commissioner. These allowances are said to be lilegal.

The annual house cleaning is now in progress at the White House. It would require an expert mathematician to figure out just how many coats of paint, how many yards of plastering and how much expenditure of money there have been layshed upon this historic old building. Every year the interior is gone over and the glistening whiteness may be retained.

The decorations of the executive manison need careful attention always, and the paint and it marks and scratches. The multitude of pligrims who annually visit this building is disposed to be critical, and if any dirt or any defacement of decorations or walls is discovered, there is a faw is seen in their finish.

The ceiling and wood work of the East Room is being gone over, and the Green Room and Red Room have both been overhauled. A good deal of attention has to be given to the magnificent State diding room. THE NUMBER OF ANARCHISTS INCREASING.
Considerable alarm is felt in official circles over the rapidly increasing number of anarchists, that are finding their way to the United States. The immigration authorities are, of the opinion that unless something is done by treaty or otherwise, the United States will soon he overrun by this undesirable class. In the naturalization law recently passed, there is a restriction on giving citizonship to anarchists and regulations are now being formulated to make this effective. That, however, soes not prevent anarchists coming to this country and preaching their doctrine. It is a comparatively gazy thing for this disorderly congress will be asked to consider more drastle regulations regarding them.

We have no means of picking them, out at the ports and turning them back. Here comes a man down the plank who gives a name that might did not not not consider the comes. "No, no," said the pontiff laughing, "It would be known to the press at once; I should be killed and buried by them before he could arrive!" Those surrounding him would have liked to make the slight mishap an excuse for stopping the audiences, but Pius X. was someghat annoyed at the suggestion, sayifig, "Enough, enough! What is a pen-prick! You make me ridiculous. I have not ceased to he a man and become a baby!" So he was present at the ceremony in commemoration of his predecessor, making jokes about his bandaged finger.

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of naknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constiputes and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience, that it is a most excellent laxative remedy of known quality and excellent is twill cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

STANFORD WHITE AND THE WHITE HOUSE.

The recent tragic death of Architect White, who was shot by Harry K. Thaw, attracted unusual attention in Washington because he was of the firm of architects that made the plans for the renovation of the old, White House and the construction of the old, White House and the construction of the old, White House and the construction of the executive office buildings. There has always been a diversity of opinion as to whether the expenditures, amounting to about a quarter of a million dollars, in restoring the White House to its original design, were justified. THE NUMBER OF ANARCHISTS INCREASING.

Considerable alarm is felt in official circles over the rapidly increasing number of ansrchists that are finding their way to the United States. The immigration authorities are of the opinion that unless something is done by treaty or otherwise, the United States will soon be overrun by this undesirable class. In the naturalization law recently passed, there is a restriction on giving citizenship to nanrchists and regulations are now being formulated to make this effective. That, however, does not prevent anarchists coming to this country and preaching their doctrine. It is a comparatively easy thing for this disorderly element to obtain admission to this country, and regulations regarding them.

An immigration official in discussing the increase of immigrants of anarchistic tendencies and the other day:

"It would be impossible as a general rule to spot them. The man with whom you sat at dinner at your restaurant last evening may have been one. In a word, there is no way now by which you can tell an anarchist unless therefore a falling out among the craft. We have no means of picking them out are given a name that might fit any one of 100,000 ordinary persons. He tuillist all the requirements of admission. He says he is a tailor and in he comes. That man may be one of the most noted anarchists, and yet we are absolutely powerless to keep him out."

The immigration officials believe that the United States government whould lose no time in making treatles with foreign nations, by which this government will be fully informed as so to the movements of anarchists. With the liberal use of the cabic, the United States could keep out many bome otherwers who gain easy admittance under our present system.

Uncle Sam has in his employ a landscape gardener who, for 35 years, has been engaged in beautifying the public parks and reservations in Washington. In the recent report of the Super-Intendent of Public Buildings and Grounds Bromwell, this faithful servitor is recommended for a promotion—in—the point of salary. The superintendent asked for an increase of $400 a year and asys: "The gentleman who occupies this position has held it for 35 years and has had charge almost from the beginning, of the park system of Washington. He is constantly receiving offers of any there."

The extent to which Uncle Sam indulges, in nowers in the national capital is shown by the fact that last year there were plainted 23,000 panies and 31,000 flowering bulbs for early bloom. There were plainted and vases 272,250 bed.

Roosevelt Now a Protectionist.

New Zealand, through her prime minister, has offered to reduce her tariff on our goods to the same preferential duties as she grants England. But after, an interview with President Rooseveit the prime minister declares: "Reciprocity is not an easy thing to bring about with this country." Evidently the president told his visitor that to let in New Zealand wool at a lower duty would disturb the whole protection fabric and that the standpatters, who control the Republican party, could not think of permitting it. Trade, however favorable to ous manufacturers or exporters, which would come through meddling with the sacred tariff, would interfere with the monopoly the trusts and combine now enjoy. From this we may draw the conclusion that President Rooseveit has now Joined the Protective Tariff league in spirit, if not in fact, and the only hope of tariff revision must come through a Democratic congress.

Pushing Cape to Cairo Line.
In a report in the London Times it is stated that the Cape to Cairo railway in South Africa has been opened so as to rur over the Kafue river on a bridge, which stands on 13 spans, each 100 feet, with pillars resting on a bed 16 feet under the water. Kafue river is 256 miles north of Victoria falls, and the distance from Cape Town is 1,908 miles. The railroad, however, is now at Broten hill, 347 miles beyond the falls, the line having been pushed on while the bridge was building over the Kafue river.

His Interest Was Personal,
An eccentric member of the British parliament who died recently endeavored valuly during a quarter of a century to get passed into law a bill for preventing persons from standing outside windows while cleaning them.
During his last session the old fellow complained to a colleague that his object in introducing the bill had been quite misunderstood by the house for these 25 years. "I introduced the bill," said he, "not for the sake of the window cleaners, but for the sake of the window cleaners, but for the sake of the people below, on whom they might fail. The idea of the bill was suggested to me by the fear that a window cleaner might fail on myself."

A Minister Talks About Grape-Nuts

A Minister Talka About Grape-Nute.

"My first stomach trouble began back in 1835," writes a minister in Nebr, "resulting from hasty eating and eating too much. I found no relief from medicine and grey so bad that all food gave me great distress." It was that sore, gnaving, hungry feeling in my stomach that was so distressing and I became a sick man. Grape-Nuts was recommended as a food that could be easily digested. "Leaving the old diet that had given me so much trouble. I began to eat Grape-Nuts with a little cream and sugar. The change effected in 24 hours was truly reparkable, and in a few weeks I was back to health again, "My work as a minister calls me away from home a great deel, and recently I drifted back to fat meet and indigestible foods, which put me again on the sick list.
"So.I-west back to Grape-Nuts and, cream and in four dave I-was put right again. The old dull headnehse are gone, atomach comfortable, head clear, and it is a delight to purase my studies and work.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co, which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constiputes and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known axide; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them water their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer initations of the

The features of the game with Hebron was two or three beautiful pick-upe by Couner, Smith's long run and catch of a fly, and Quick's batting. He was at the bat five times and mada, four hits, one of them a two bagger.

The Burlington team went up against the strong Anderson Ferry team last Sunday afternoon, and won the greatest victory of the season, Brady covering himself all over with glory. He pickhed thirteen innings in the Burlington—Hebron game on Saturday afternoon, and then followed it up the next day with nine innings in which he held his opponents down to two hits and they were very much on the scratch order. Had it not been for the fast work in the out field behind Miller and Percell, they would have been in terrible distress. Brady's great pitching confined the work behind him almost entirely to the infield which was looked after in great shape by Hughes, a Hebron player and Jackson. When the game closed, a large crowd, many of whom were strangers to him, rushed to Brady and almost shock his arm off in congratulating him on his phenomenal work. Slayback caught like a professional, and his and Brady's battery work was a great surprise to the Buckeyes. The Burlington team feels grateful to the two Hebron players and appreciates their assistance in the game. Following is the score:

NEW DEPOT NEARING COMPLETION.

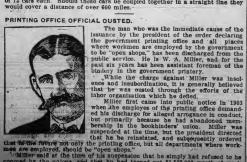

NEW DEPOT NEARING COMPLETION.

The new union station, which when tompleted, will be the finest in the country, is fast nearing completion. The engineers in charge of the extensive operations have attacked the difficult problems that confronted them from three different points, and are working on the terminal depot, the north approach and the south approach at the same time. The extensive tunneling, bridging and filling necessary for the approaches is well under way. The concrete forindations for the building, which are about 45 feet deep, have been placed, and the material for filling in between them has been delivered. The granite and brick work of the east end of the building is almost finished.

The amount of material and the extensive as brick work of the east end of the building is almost finished.

The amount of material and the extensive excavation necessary in the work of construction is extraordinary. The filling within the limits of the terminal amounts to 900,000 cubic yards—enough to cover an acre lot to a depth of over 550 feet. To fill the plaza and raise adjacent streets to the new grade, about 1,000,000 cubic yards of material will be required. If all this filling were deposited on an average city block, the sides beink kept vertical, it would form a mound 450 feet high. If all the sides beink kept vertical, it would form a mound 450 feet high. If all we have been shared to be a side of the search of the search. Better Still, Support Democrats
Who Are Working for the Country's Relief.

Now Speaker Cannon has induced President Roosaveit to joint him in making the paramount issue for the campaign for the election of congress, which the speaker so euphoniously expresses as "standpat and pass the hat," what are those Republicans, who helieve the tariff should be revised, going to do about it? For instance, the South Dakota Republican convention put itself on record in favor of the abolition of the tariff tax on lumber, "for the benefit of the American home builders and the protection of our forests." But if the voters of that state elect the Republican candidates for congress and there is a Republican majority, Speaker Cannon and President Rooseveit, uniess the latter again changes his mind, will refuse to allow a bill to abolish the duty on lumber to even be considered. "It would be dangerous to disturb the lumber schedule, or to relieve the people of the tax on homes, unless they determine to yote differences to the Republican candidates to keep out of the Republican cancus for speaker and wote for Democratic candidate for speaker In Minnesota and Michigan similar tairiff deas are prevaient, with even more pronounced ideas on reciprocity with Canada; but the same obstacle of the standpoint programme stares them in the face, with similar necessity for electing Democrats, or pledging the Republican convention just escaped a boit, by compromising with the standpatters, so the Republican force, will be compelled to join in the procession that considers it a sacred duty to allow the protectionists hand and foot.

In Iowa the Republican convention just escaped a boit, by compromising with the standpatters, so the Republican and independent voters of that state can only sid tariff revision by voting for Democratic candidates for speaker and unique the sacred duty to allow the protectionists hand and foot.

In Iowa the Republican convention just escaped a boit, by compromising with the standpatters, so the Republican and independent voters of that state can only sid tariff revision by voting for Democr voting for Democratic candidates for congress.

There are signs of alarm in Republican machine centers that show that tariff reform sentiment is so strong even with Republican voters that they fear the result of the election in all the close districts, but promises by Republican candidates for congress that they will vote for tariff revision, are felt to be worthless, as far as the action of the next congress is concerned, as they have been futile in the past.

The Republican voters who helieve their interests require tariff revision have the result in their own hands They can accomplish it in two ways, either by pledging Republican candidates for congress to keep out of the congress of the republican caucus and vote only for a speaker who is pledged to tariff revision. To vote for a Democratic standidates for congress and for members of the legislature who will elect United States senators who are also pledged to tariff revision. To vote for a Democratic the bolder step and more certain to produce the result alimed at.

An Old-Fashloned Idea.

An Old-Fashloned idea.

Bishop C. H. Brent, of the Episcopal church in the Philippines, has old-fashlond—notions about -tainted money. He does not believe, as the Republican leaders do, that "all is flat that comes to net," and has therefore refused to accept $1,000 offered for charity by agents of the Manila Jockey club. "It is claimed by the churches that gambling is carried on to such an extent as to be seriously impeding the development and progress of the fasiands. The clitzen churchen of Manils have organized a Moral Progress League, and it was a donation to this hody that was refused."

Now, if Bishop Brent, was laboring.

a donation to this hody that was refused."

Now, if Bishop Breat. was laboring in the United States he might think that subscriptions from the life insurance corporations to the Republican national committee in 1904 were taken from funds that should have been sacred to the widows and orphans of policy-holders, and were therefore tainted money. His old-sabinoned ideas would coubtless domand restitution, and if confronted with President Rooseveit, for whose campaign and on whose behalf the with President Rooseveit, for whose campaign and on whose behalf the man'l' return this tainted money, or order restitution to be made by Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican national committee, to clear your skirts of the scandal.

Disregard Farming Interests.
Of the $226,000,000 of Increase in the exports of the United States during the past year, more than $76,000,000 was contributed by the single item of breadstuffs. And yet, when western farming interests ask for a little consideration in the matter of tariff reciprocity, Republican leaders get together and decide that they will make no tariff concessions to the farming interest.

GERMAN ULTIMATUM

The news of the "stand pat" agreement between President Rooseveit and Speaker Cannon has evidently been taken by the Emperor of Germany as meaning that the administration has gone back on its promises of urging Congress to grant reciprocal trade agreements with Germany but la operation a maximum and minimum tariff, the maximum rates being virtually prohibitive. To prevent this closing of the German markets against our products a temporary arrangement was made by the two governments, by which the minimum tariff was to he only exacted for the time being, or until legislation was ended to believe that the president would more strongly urge action at the next-session. But when the news was flashed across the ocean that the president had surrendered to the ultra-protectionists, and that the sacred tariff was not to he disturbed, the German government valurally believed that it was being played with, and on July 31-the German porter maximum rates against imports from the United States.

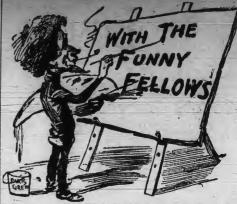

The question amongst the diplomats now is, who will back down, the German position, for the maximum rates against imports from the United States.

The question amongst the diplomats now is, who will back down, the German position, for to concede now that he will urge congress to make tariff concessions to Germany would he to go back on his declared policy of standing pat and would bring derision upon the management of the congressional camplagn. It's pretty hard for a diplomat to ride two horses going in different directions, but perhaps President Rooseveit will he congressional camplagn. It's pretty hard for a diplomat to ride two horses going in different directions, but perhaps President Rooseveit will he congressional camplagn in the Republican chandidates for conceden on concessions on the tariff, and the question must naturally arise in their minds whether it is good policy for them to

THE LIFE OF A BATTLESHIP. Costly Engines of War Soon Become Obsolete.

The "new nay," is very rapidly being retired to other uses, or to the scrap heap. The cruiser Bancroft has just been transferred to the revenue service, and this is the third ship of the "new nay," to go off the active list, the Philadelphia, built in 1883, being the first and the hattleship Texas, built in 1889, the second. The Philadelphia cost about $1,500,000 and the Texas over $3,000,000. The fife of our war vessels, therefore, is about an average of 15 years, and the expenditure for repairs during that period very nearly equals the original cost. As the isarse cruisers and battleships are worthless for other uses and cannot be sold for use in the merchant marine, we may expect to see in a few years all the fine ships of to-day broken up as worthless. In case of war the slow old hattleships are an incumbrance, and the new and faster ones, which, by the way, cost two or three times more than the old so nes did, would be compelled to limit their movements to the speed that their consorts could develop.

This shows the vast cost of constantly building and repairing a fiest of battleships, and the people who years the state of battleships, and the people who years the state of battleships, and the people who years the state of battleships, and the people who years the state of battleships, and the people who years the state of the sta

One of the greatest difficulties encountered by the authorities is the interment of the bodies recovered from the ruins, as all the gemeteries were A Tals of a Snake and Interchanged Baggage.

On the docks in the town of A. were two basket trunks among the countless cargo; one belonged to Mr. G. and contained a massive snake of considerable size and very valuable.

Mr. G. arrived at his rooms, where he had to wait for a nine a. m. train.
He proceeded to read the London
Graphic for ân hour-or so, and wascontentment personified. After awhile the thought of his valuable snake came before him. He proceeded to unlock the trunk, and with a stubborn jerk the lock unclasped, and out roiled garment after garment of feminine apparel. For a moment he was in the greatest dismay, a thousand thoughts rushing through his mind. On close inspection he discovered the address of Miss Pippin, Leigher, Brunswick.

Miss Pippin and her friend, Miss Kate, were weary of travelling; their trunk was brought up stairs, and as Miss Pippin heard the thud, thud of the trunk, she ordered the man to teave it in the hall. Through carelessness the lock was broken, and had the expressman known its contents he would have made a hasty departuredarily, both being tired of travelling; but his snakeship was evidently plananing his own course. About midnight,

HAD SRIEF TIME OF FREEDOM ERRORS ABOUT THE WHITE HOUSE.

To the Editor:

I noticed somewhere recently—I would not say positively that it was in your columns—an article on the White House which contained several misstatements.

In the first place it was stated the White House was first occupied in 1809 and that its first occupant was President Madison. The fact is, its first occupant was President Adams, who took up his residence there in 1800.

The original mansion was begun in 1792. In 1814 it was burned by the

The original mansion was begun in 1782. In 1814 it was burned by the British and rebuilt in 1818.

Another of the errors in the article referred to was the statement that ready) repared paint is used on the White House to make it beautifully which was the statement that ready) repared paint is used on the White House to make it beautifully which was the statement of the statement of the statement had been always and the statement and wondered that "canned" paint should be used on such an important building when all painters know that pure white lead and linseed oil make the best paint.

It so happened also that I knew white lead and linseed oil—not ready mixed paint—were used on the White House, because I had just read a book let published by a firm of ready-mixed paint manufacturers who also manufacture pure white lead. In that book the manufacturers who also manufacture white House nothing but "the best and purest of paint could be used," and said that their pure white lead had been selected.

Above all people, those who attempt to write on historical subjects should give us facts, even if it is only a date or a statement about wood, or brick, or paint, or other building material.

Yours for truth,

YOUNG COLONEL IN DILEMMA

At the Army and Navy club in Washington a number of veteran offi-cers were telling stories, when Gen. Chaffee told this anecdote of Gen. Carr, who, died in New York some cers were telling stories, when Gen. Chaffee told this anecdote of Gen. Carr, who, died in New York some years ago:

It appears that Gen. Carr, at the outbreak of the civil war, had left Troy to take command of a regiment. The engagement in which, as colonel, he first figured was at Big Bethel. His regiment had been halted for rest and refreahment in a pleasant place and had not yet experienced the excitement of a skirmish. It happened however, that confederates were in ambush in the immediate neighborhood and from a safe hiding place they opened fire on the northerners. Carr, so the story runs, instantly put supers to his horse and dashed up to a group of officers. Excitement and young face as he approached the party.

"They are firing upon my regiment" he shouted. "My God! Now what is to be done?"—Harper's Weekly.

French State Monopolles.

State monopolles are more than ever in favor in France as a means of raising revenue to the prejudice of private enterprise. A committee of the chamber of deputies has been appointed, with a foreign minister of finance as chairman, to collect information on the possible working of monopolles on sugar and petroleum refining, the rectification of alcohol, and insurance.

Spreading india's Fisheries.
India is learning a lesson from Japan, where fish ekes out the agricultural situation. There, ten per cent of the population are engaged in the fisheries industry, as against one per cent, in India, where all the fishing is still done within six miles of the shore, and in the most primitive manner.

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP.

No Medicine so Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights-makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating, to 6 tape. Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and irwould vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape. Nuts.

ing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloating feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhea before commencing the Grape-Nuts she could not digest ner food. Since using Grape-Nuts she would live without it.

"It is a great brain-restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a "bad stomach." There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts."

THE WHITE RIVER COUNTRY.

In the opinion of one who has traveled much and observed closely, the most truly and rightfully contented people in the United States to-day are the small landowners in what is known as the Upper White River Country, anywhere from Newport, Ark, to Carthage, Mo. They are contented because their surroundings are ideal and, until recently, the great, uneasy, disquieting world, with its artificial needs and inadequate compensations, has been to them but little more tangible than a dream. Here, still existent, and by reason of their very rarity at this day, and time more detectable than in the past, are the conditions which have ever appealed with irresistible force to the independent-spirited Angio-Saxon. Every use is the supreme ruler of his own little principality; acknowledging no master save the law—and possibly his feminine helpmeet; cringing to no employer; asking no favors from the world, save those that his neighbors freely extended and expect as freely in return. He lives in a latitude where the extremes of heat or cold are never known, and at an altitude where the extremes of heat or cold are never known, and at an altitude that insures perfect health. The richest bounty of Nature-has been showered upon him with unsparing hand, but it is a question whether he more than dimiyrealizes the fact. He accepts as a matter of course the fertile soil which produces in abundance every-cultivable growth common to the north temperate zone, the surrounding for ests of valuable woods and the underlying siratas of precious minerals, the spirity and streams of translucenty fings siratas of precious minerals, the spirity of the siration of the produces in abundance every-cultivable growth common to the north temperate zone, the surrounding for ests of valuable woods and the underlying siratas of precious minerals, the spirity of the siration of the siration of the second that the precipital state of the region, and the unaccustomed rustle of bank must soon give place to otherwise than content? Immense Leaves of Palm.

The paim family bears longer leaves than any other known tree. The langa palm, growing on the banks of the Amson, has leaves which reach from 35 to 50 feet in length, and 10 to 12 feet in breadth. Specimens of the talepot palm, a native of Ceylon, has been met with 20 feet long and 18 feet broad. These leaves are used by the natives to make tents, and, thus employed, they make very efficient shelters from rain. The leaves of the double, occoanut paim are often 30 feet long and asveral wide. The leaves of the cannibal tree of Australia resemble broad planks and are frequently 15 feet thick at the base. These boardlike leaves arl shoot out at the top and hang down so as to form a sort of umbrella around the stem. The umbrella tree of Ceylon has leaves of such enormous size that a single one will cover from 15 to 20 men, and often serves as a canopy to a boat, or a tent for soldlers. A specimen leaf taken to England measured 36 feet round.

Ajum Baking Powder is Wholesome.

Dr. Herman Reinbold, the expert German chemist, in a recent official report concerning Baking Powders, declares that a pure alum baking powder.
is better and leas injurious than the so-called cream of tartar powders.
He says that if the quantity of alum contained in a sufficient quantity of baking powder for a batch of bread or cakes for an ordinary family, be concentrated to one mouthful of food, and taken into the stomach of any one person, no matter how delicate, it could do no harm. On the contrary, alum is wholesome in proper quantities. This is undoubtedly the reason the State of Missouri quickly repeated a law that prohibited the manufacture of the most wholesome of all baking powders. So much for Alum Baking Powders.

Immense Steel Plates.

powders. So much for areas.

Immense Steel Plates.
The shell and boilers of the new Cunarder being built at Wailsend, England, are said by Consul Metealf to be constructed of the largest steel plates in the world. They are silicon steel, weighing ten tons cach. The boilers alone will weigh over 1,000 tons. Massive ingots and slabs weighing 12 and 14 tons, are continually passing through the rolling mills there for this work.

The First Striking Clock.
According to historians, the first striking clock was imported into Eutrope by the Persians about 800 A. D.
It was brought as a present to Charlemagne, from Abdels, king of Persia, by two monks of Jerusalem.

Christian Langer, a Danish lifeboat man, who died recently at Harboe, Juliand, at the age of 83, saved more than 500 persons from drowning dur-ing the last 48 years.

DIAMONDS IN UNITED STATES

Never in the history of the United States has there been such a demand for diamonds as there was in 1905. Large quantities were imported, but the country produced none. In 1903 it produced diamonds to the value of $50, in 1901 it had an output worth $100, in 1900 its production was valued at $150, and in 1893 the country boasted native diamonds to the value of $30.

Diamonds have been discovered in the United States in four different regions, but their actual place of origin is unknown. All have been found in loose and superficial deposits, and all accidental will be supported to the control of the

Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his hody, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. Strange Story—But True.

L. Vandegrift-has a new story. It is illustrative of the marvelous fecundity of the English sparrow.

I was pending Sunday with the Dumont Smiths, at Kinsley," said Van, in recounting his experience. "We had been up late the night before and I was a trifle drowsy. I sat out on the front porch listening to the church bells and gazing off into the climintable space that Hes between a shortgrass town and the horizon beyond.

"Presently I dropped my hat into a bed of virginia creeper and dozed off to sleep. I could not have slept more than an hour, for the children were, passing the bouse on the way from Sunday school when I awoke. I rubbed my eyes and glanced over at my hat. In it sat an English sparrow brooding a setting of eggs. While I slept the sparrows had built a nest in my hat, the mother bird had laid a full complement of eggs and had begun the work of hatching them."—Kansas City Journal.

The body of a young woman has been discovered in the ancient Priddy lead mines in Somerseablire, Engiand, some 16 or 17 feet deep in the waterbone slift that has been accumulating since the days before the Romans came. The hair is wonderfully preserved, and remains in the plait in which it was worked. Beside the body were found fire large blue and green glass beads.

Denaturized Alcohol.

Many inquiries show at the same time interest in and ignorance of denatured alcohol. In a word, denatured alcohol is alcohol, so changed by the addition of some other substance as to prevent its use as a beverage. Commissioner, Verkes is , in Europe investigating methods there. The commissioner, under the law, must see that sufficient wood alcohol its added. Twenty per cent, was mentioned in congress as the proper quantity, but in Germany ten per cent. its considered aufficient. In Great Britain five per cent of wood alcohol and a still smaller proportion of napths are used. Dr. Willey recommends ten per cent. of wood alcohol and one per cent. of pyridine. The tax on slochol is now $1.10 a gallon. This makes its use for mechanical purposes impossible. But free from tax and denaturized it is thought that alcohol can be made for less than ten cents a gallon, and could be sold at a profit for a few cents more than that. In that event its use in piace of gasoline and kerosene as a power_producer_and event its use in place of gasoline and herosene as a power producer and for light will undoubtedly be very great, as in Germany.—It-will-be a boon, says the Indianapolis News, especially to the farmer and small mechanic for small power engines. With a mantle, its use for light is economical. Alcohol can be distilled from any number of things, as po-tatioes, beets, corn—the stalks as well as the grain—the waste of molassee factories, etc. The agricultural de-factories, etc. The agricultural deas the grain—the waste of molasses factories, etc. The agricultural department thinks that potatoes will be a chief source of our supply. Curability of Lepresy.

Unna, of Hamburg, like many oth er conspicuous dermaologists, is of the opioin that there is a possibility of curing leprosy. In his report readbefore the linernational Medical congress at Lisbon he states that he has been successful in attacking cutaneous leprosy, not macular or anaesthetic leprody, and gives his experience, gained from treating 60 lepers during a period of 22 years. His aufferers were private patients, more or less well to do, all leading a useful life and wishing most emphatically to be cured so that they could again take up their several occupations. This fact is important, Unna thinks, in contrast to what is observed in the patients of leper hospitals, for example, in Norway, who are very poor people, coming from the worst surroundings, shunned by their neighbors and finding in the hospital an asylum with all possible comforts—cleanliness, sympathy and freedom from the cares of poverty and the daily fight against hardships. Externally, Unna advises hot baths of natural waters containing sulphur and sodium or potassium, but especially his so-called ink bath (Dintenbad), containing ferrous "sulphate and tannic acid; the washing, with carboile acid or green soap; massage and pressure upon the skin; the use of pyrogaliol and resocin, chrysarobin and lehthyol, and later the use of pyrogaliol and resocin, chrysarobin and lehthyol, and later the use of pyrogaliol and resocin, chrysarobin and lehthyol, camphor, sallicylic acid and chalumugra oil, which he calls the specific par excellence for cutaneous leprosy.

An 18-year-old girl was the assassin. She sent five bullets into the general's body and he died instantly.

Every shot took effect, the first in the back, the others in his side and breast, as he wheeled in the direction of his assailant.

The crime was highly tragic. Gen. Min's children scramed with terror and clung to him as he recied and fell. The general's wife was the coolest person in the station. Sullivan, of Chicago, vindicated and the demand for his resignation as national committeenan made by Mr. Bryan from Europe voted down by 1,065 delegates to 570, was the outcome of one of the hardest political battles ever fought in the state Tuesday. From start to finish Sullivan and his cohorts completely dominated the state convention. From the election of ex-Justice Boggs as chairman to the defeat of the resolutions condemning Mr. Sullivan there never was a moment of doubt as to who controlled the gathering. Incidental it its importance was the nomination of a slate of state officers. These nominations were made just preceding the Dryan-Sullivan fight and were as foll-ws:

For state treasurer—N. L. Plotrowski.

The feature of the platform that almost ended in a riot was the indorsement of Bryan in these words:

This precipated the one big row of the convention.
The principal feature of the pistform is the indorsement of William J. Bryan for president, in the Reo of the Nebraskan's protest that he opposed such indorsement unless Sullivan was ousted as national committeeman.

How Educator Succeeded in Desire to Address Students.

A distinguished educator of Boston, who once visited a western college during examination week, was, for some reason or other, not asked to address the students, as he had expected he would be. In chapel he was merely requested to lead in prayer, which he did in this wise:

"Be pleased, kather in Heaven, to guide the steps of the president of this college. Thou knowest that he was a clasmate of Thy servant, as graduate of the class of '84, taking high honors. Thine, eye hath looked with favor upon the happy choice that resulted in his appointment, with the consent of the trustees, as the head of this institution. THE TABERNACLE

TENTH-In Cloud and Pillar Series

ipture Authority:-Exodus

The Tabernacie was the dwelling place of Jehovah among israel. In its every detail of material and construction it typified the character and attributes of God, and expressed his attitude towards man, and indicated man's way of approach unto him. The Tabernacie and its appointed service was a type of the Christ and his redemptive work. It set forth in symbol, that which found full and complete and glorlous expression in the Christ. For full and beautiful unfolding of the meaning of the Tabernacie, read Needham's book, "Shadow and Substance."

The Temple of God.—God's dwelling place to-day is in the spiritual temple is the dwelling place of the Holy Spirit, God's Viceregent on earth. In this spiritual house believers are the spiritual priesthood and 5:10) with Jesus Christ, our high priest, as the Ilterial priesthood, the one through whom our spiritual sacrifices are offered and made acceptable to God.

THE STORY.

IT WAS evident that the inspection of the busy groups of workers in the camp of 'ierael had proved satisfactory, for Bezaleoi, and Aholiab came into Moses' presence with beaming faces, and reading their report there, he exclaimed, before they had time to speak:

"Ah, it is a good report that thou bringest."

"Ah, it is a good report that thou bringest."
"Yea," replied Bezaleel, who as chief artificer, and the one in charge of all the work of preparing the materials for the Tabernacle and its fittings, acted as spokesman. "Yea, the workmen are putting the finishing strokes to the work, and all will be completed to-day, even to the cloths of service and the holy garments for his sons, to minister in the Tabernacle."

"Tis well," responded Moses, tervidly. "Knowest thou what day tomorro will be to the the second year and Moses added."

"Tomorrow will be the beginning of the second year as appointed by the Lord when he spoke to us in Egypt and gave us the Passover. How fitting, that upon that day the Tabernacle, should be set up in our midst. The Lord reward thee, Becaleel, and thou, Aholish, for thy faithfuiness."

The two men bowed for in grateful recognition of the commendation of their leader, and then Bealeel, conscious of the ready spirit of the people which has wought the work. Thou recallest how eagerly they brought of their offerings of gold and silver and brass, and precious stones and cloths and skins and fine line."

Everyfody had some part in the work, even the children catching the cager splitt of their cliders and gladly doing what they could to help.

How-swiftly the weeks and months had passed. So occupied with the task in hand had they been that they had no time for murmuring. It hardly seemed 'possible that they were the same people who had threatened Moses at Rephildim, or had forgotten God and made for themselves the golden calf there at Mount Sinai. Day by day they had received instruction at Moses' hand in the laws and ordinances of God, which he had received while on the monnt with God, and while they wrought in the work they vied with each other in seeing how faithfully and well they could perform their tasks.

They had talked together of that day, when the Tabernacle should be served in the way appointed, and it is no wonder that when the 'tidings' came to them that on the morrow they would see the Tabernacle and its and of iaughter and singing filled the camp.

"See," whispered the people, one to another, as the Levites bearing the ark disappeared, "see what Moses has done with the rod, and the tablets of stone given to him on the mountain, and the pot of manna." "Yea," cried Moses, turning towards the people, and noting the solemn hush which had fallen upon them, "yea, it is the testimony of the Lord. Beneath the mercy seat where God will now have his shding place in the midst of Israel, rest the evidences of God's presence with Israel thus far. The rod through which God worked such mighty deliverance, the pot of manna the evidence of God's miraculous feeding of his people in the midst of the wilderness fastnesses, the tables of stone, the revelation of God's perfect will for the guidance of his people. These tokens of God's dealings with his people rest-beneath the mercy seat, even as you, the children of Abraham, are preserved under the mercy seat of God's tow."

The French in the Sahara.

The activity of the French in the Sahara is the marvel of recent exploration. They claim more than two-thirds of the great waste, and the present prospects are that they will seek out and map every sand dune, well and grazing area throughout their domain within the next two or three years. The latest flying trip has been made by Capt. Fipe Sainte-Marie, who has traveled west and east through the heart of the desert, his outgoing and return routes being from 50 to 160 miles apart and nearly every mile of the way leading through regions never seen before the most of the first of the desert his outgoing and return routes being from 50 to 160 miles apart and nearly every mile of the way leading through regions never seen before the north and south tracks of, other travelers. The French have practically put an end to banditism in the Sahara, and one of their most effective expedients is to guard the wells against put an end to banditism in the Sahara, and one of their most effective expedients is to guard the wells against all those whose business on the road is not manifestly legitimate. If the development of the Amazon basin does not take a more rapid pace, sayathe New York Sun, large areas of it will still remain untraversed and unknown when every important feature of the Sahara will have been spread out on good maps for the information of the world.

Baseball in England.

Baseball seems as slow in taking root in England as cricket is in this country. Yet it has a good start and the prediction is finde that before the summer ends of the real state of the summer should be a summer and the prediction is finde that before the summer ends there will be 20 league clubs in Great Britain. The game was introduced in England in 1874, when the Philadelphia Athletics and the Bostons made a tour of the country. In 1889 a game of baseball was played on the historic Kenslington oval, with the present king in attendance. Buffalo Billis cowbys played several games in England afterwards. Later the National Baseball association was formed and also the incorporated London. Baseball association. During the inhetices, five clubs were playing regularly in and about London. A few weeks ago a match game was played in London, in which all the players were English except the cathers. The American boys who are in England with Rhodes scholarships are doing much to develop the game there. As yet the Englishnee do not seem able to master the art of the catcher. Neither do they understand the slang of the game, which adds so much to its enjoyment. The spectators also miss many of the fine points of the sport, says the Cleveland Leader. Baseball may grow on King Edward's Islands, but there is little likelihood that it will supersede cricket.

All Like to Travel.

In fact, the bulk of the summer exodus business is pure restlessness or the result of the ordinary human love of travel. The practice of ""going somewhere" in summer is a mere excuse in the majority of cases for the gratification of the nomadic instinct. We lack the frankness in this respect that the poor Mexican peon possesses. Since railroads were introduced in Mexico, with their amazingly cheap-third-class cars, which the roads are compelled by law to carry, all Mexicans travel when they can rake or scrape the price. It does not matter to them where they go. If somehow the peon becomes possessed of 75 cents, he takes a bag of acorns and a blanket, goes to the nearest railroad station, puts down the silver and says: "Vialse por sels reales!" which means, "Six bits worth of travel!" And the agent sells him at ticket to any point that he can reach with that amount of more." Thither, blusfully, he goes, and trusts to the Lord to get him back again, somehow, some time. We are not exactly like this Mexican peon, says the New York Mail, because he takes his idle voyage at any old time. We take ours in the hot weather and call it a "summer out-ing."

Havana,—No news of the oper.

Havana.—No news of the operations of Col. Avalos, commander of the government forces in Pinar del Rio, has been received at the palace, military headquarters or elsewhere here since he left San Juan de Martines Wednesday in search of the main insurgent body, commanded by Pino Gnerra. Government circles continue hopeful of his success, but the fact is not lost sight of that the government troops are moving into the center of their opponents territory, and that the numbers of the insurgents are not known. New bands are reported to have been organized in various places in Pinar del Rio and elsewhere, which gives the situation a gravity which there is no attempt to disguise. Up to noon Thursday no reports of engagements of importance had been received, although desultory, skirmlahes with minor bands or insurgents especially westward, had taken place. No suggestions have been received at the palace from any body of a settlement of the insurrection on-political lines. It is stated that the government would not encourage such a course under the present circumstances.

CONSULTING ENGINEERS' PLANS LIKELY TO BE FAVORED.

Gement Problem.

Washington—Locks for the Panama canal probably will be built according to the dimensions recommended by the majority of the consulting board of engineers, which favored the construction of a sea-level waterway, instead of the smaller type planned by the minority of the board. Under this change of programme the looks would be 100 feet wide with usable lengths of 1,000 feet. The plans adopted by congress provide for looks 95 feet wide, with usable lengths of 900 feet.

The larger locks will require a much greater amount of concrete work and the commission has not yet determined just how much cement will have to be purchased. Engineer Stevens estimated the amount at 1,250 car loads. As the climate of the Isthmus of Panama is such that cement cannot be kept in good condition for more than three or four months, the problem of shipping is of no little concern to the commission, which points out that as the facilities for shipping from England to the Isthmus are better than from the United States and the, foreign price frequently has been found to be below the domestic price it is not unlikely that the greater part of this gigantic contract may be given to foreign dealers. It will be about two years before the work of constructing the locks will be begun. The association of cement manufacturers in the United States has shown considerable activity in getting more advantageons shipping facilities between the isthmus and ports on the coast of the United States, and may therefore be prepared to compete with foreign cement.

Washington.—To disenss certain phases of the railroad rate law which took effect Monday, there was a conference which lasted the greater part of Tuesday between the members of the interstate commerce commission and representatives of the railroads and shippers of the country. The railroad representatives uniformly gave assurance of their interion to fully comply with the new law, but presented their views as to the operation of certain provisions, among the polnts urged being extension of time in which carriers may file their tariffs with the commission.

The shippers' representatives nrged the protection of their interests, particularly against the railroads shifting classifications so as to put up rates and contending for the discretion of the commission in the export and import changes and for the publication of tariffs in the full acceptation of that term. The commission reserved decision of the questions brought up.

Though down in the gutter, he still had a little shame left and would not ask Mr. Beit for help. The South African diamout magnate sent for one of the uniucky one's friends and sald: "Go and see So-and-So, ask if he wants any help, and give it to him, but don't let him think it is from me. I have had a difference with him and perhaps it would annoy him!"

Troubes of an Author.
Robert Louis Stevenson's mother wrote in one of her letters from Samoa: "The people here are now discovering that Louis writes, as "The Bottle-imp" is coming out in the native paper, having been translated by Mr. C.—. It is much appreciated, but leads to some enrious results. For instance, the house, in it somewhat resembles ours, and a good many of the natives suspect that Mr. Stevenson has the 'bottle' himself."

Trust Issue Paramount.—While men may differ as to the relative importance of issues, and while the next congress will largely shape the lines upon which the coming presidential campaign will be fought, I think it is safe to say that at present the paramount issue in the minds of a large majority of the people is the trust issue.

Where the Wheels Stop.
"Most of our patients," said the superintendent of the insane asylum, subject."

"And what is that?" queried the vis-

"They think they are sane," answered the superintendent.

Hubert Beemon cut a very fine field of millet near Limaburg. It had immense heads.

The Boone county farmer could not ask for a better crop of corn, but he is a little short of hay.

Mrs. J. E. Rouse, of Scott county was visiting her mother, Mrs. O. P. Conner, last week and attended the fair.

A protracted meeting will begin at the Burlington Baptist church, Monday night after the second Sunday in this month.

It is claimed by some that there were twenty-one rains in the mouth of July and twenty-seven during the month of August. That is some rain, it is, now.

The Recorder's were printed and mailed on time last Wednesday, but a lip in a cog of Uncle Sam's mail service did not get them "a goin" on time over their route.

The tobacce crop in this county grew rapidly during the last days of August, and many fields the owners of which were very greatly discouraged will make goodtobacco.

It was a welcome drop in the temperature, which came after the rains Sunday and Monday of last week, and those who attended the Boone fair were not annoyed by the heat and dust as in previous years, Chamberlairs' Pala Palm.

Nervous Worn-Out

Worn-Out

If you are in this condition, your nerve force is weak—the power is giving out, the organs of your body have "slowed up," and do their work imperfectly. This failure to do the work required, clogs the system and brings distress and disease. When the nerves are weak the heart is unable to force the life-giving blood through your veins; the stomach fails to digest food; the kidneys lack power to fifter impurities from the blood, and the poisonous waste remains in the system to breed disease. Nerve energy must be restored. Dr. Miles' Nervine will do it, because it strengthens the nerves; it is a nerve medicine and tonic, that rebuilds the entire nervous system.

"Several years ago I was all broken out sleep, and was in constant pain! I doctored for months, and finally the doctor and healthy, and I became strong and healthy, and I became it if I trails. SERMONETTE.

Nadab and Abihu, the sone of Aaron, had been consecrated to the service of God in the Tabernacie, and for this reason their sin was all the more glaring and called for summary punishment, for this first instance of contempt for accred things demanded swift judgment, just as at the commencement of the Christlan dispensation the sin of Ananias and Sapphira called for speedy punishment. (Acts 5:1-11).

This sin of Nadab and Abihu indicates an utter lack on their part of appreciation of their place in God's service, of the holliness of God, of the necesity of obedience, of the fact that there was but one way of approach unto God.

We cannot too eften remind ourselves of the three facts which this incident brings out. First, the holliness of God and the sacredness of the approach unto him.

Second, the pronences of the human heart to fall to under-unto him.

Second, the proneness of the human heart to fall to understand and appreciate the reverence due God and the necessity of obedience to the Divine order of worship and service.

Third, the recognition of the righteoueness and faithfulness of God's Judgmenta against ein, even though such judgments, and saved soul be happy in Heaven if its loved once are lost?" so often asked, finds its answer, for in the recognition of the righteoueness and justice of God's judgments the soul will find the real joy and satisfaction. The natural serrow of the human heart will give place to the pure and perfect joy of Heaven, for we shall find the purified heart so at one with God that his perfect will will be our will indeed.

A holy God demands a reverent worship.

He who would venture into God's reseence must come in God's way.

If in the opinion of some the prohibition against the use of wine and strong drink in the verses which immediately follow this incident indicate that Nadab and Abihu were intoxicated when they committed this terrible sin, what a temperance lesson we have here. How strong drink deadens the soul to God and hie righteoueness!

THE STORY.

IT WAS the hour of the evening sacrifice, and Aaron and his sons were busy making the offering of the lamb. With all the earnestness and devotion of his beart, Aaron, the high priest, was observing each detail of the service in accordance with the instructions, he had received from Moses. The lamb had been selected with due care, and it had been slais and prepared for the aitar, and Aaron was about to place it thereon, when he noted that the wood had not been laid in the proper order, and he paused to rearrange it, at the same time pointing out the mistake to his two sons, Nadab had Ablhu, who had prepared the wood and had placed it upon the aitar.

An impatient grunt was the only response offered to the father's kindly admonition, and he looked up quickly into the faces of his two sons in time to catch the flash of aingry resentment which rested there.

"My sons," he said, earnestly, "is it not important that we perform the service exactly as Moses has instructed us?"

chem. But without in any sense catching the spirit of the service exacted of them, and with exalted opinion as to their importance in the priestly rank; they test a sort of disdain for the small details and exactions of their duties.

Then, too, without realisting it themselves, they had become enamored of the wine cup, and in their priestly function they had found the opportunity of graiffying their appelite, so that more and more they had yielded to the enticements of the sparkling beverage.

Aaron, their father, had on one or two occasions observed the sparkling beverage.

Aaron, their father, had on one of two occasions observed the sparkling beverage.

Aaron, their father, had on one of two occasions observed the sparkling other speed on their spirits, but had dismissed the thought from his mind that it was other than the natural enthusiasm arising from their priestly service, in fact, as fathers often are, he was only too ready to offer excuses for his sons and accept their onduct without question. So it was that upon this occasion when they had slighted their work and had carelessly laid the wood upon the aitar that he was ready to excuse their conduct, and after his quiet yemonstrance sought to dismiss the matter from his mind, but as we have Sald, Aaron could not altogether it dis heart of the uneasy, troubled feeling growing out of this lack of reverence and obedience on the part of his sons.

"They will come more into the spirit of it as they perform the service," he said to himself but the remark of Abihu kept sounding in his ears: "What matters it, if the wood is there to consume the sacrifice?" and he could not subdue the feelings of apprehension which arose in his heart.

Thus the days sped by and on more than one becausion following the incident with which our story opens Aaron found it, necessary to admonish his sons, as to the performance of their duties.

"One would think," Nadab craimed to his brother one day, "that no one knew how to do anything right but our father. Aaron."

"Yes, he acts

our father, haron."

"Yes, he acts as though we could not think for ourselves," responded Ablhu.

"Have we not been chosen to the priestly office as well as he?" exclaimed Nadab, rising and stretching himself to his full height as though it was a matter of physical measurement and priestly robe. "Why, the other day when serving in the holy place and I spoke of the place behind the vell where the ark has been placed, he toid me that the high priest alone, and that only once a year, could enter the place. Why, should he go there if we caano!"

"Perhaps he fears lest we understand as much as he of the Tabernacie service."

"And why should we not?"

The voice of their father at that moment eut short further conversation, and rather ungraciously they stringed to the duties which their talk had interrupted.

The next day the two young men chanced to be in the holy place in the course of their duties, and their father had stepped to the outer court to attend to some details for the evening service. The latter had been too bay and preoccupied to notice the funded conditicity of his two sons, and that frequently they drank from the small aparkment they came opposite to the vell belory he holy of boiles, and paused. An impatient grunt was the only response offered to the father's kindly admonition, and he looked up quickly into the faces of his two sons in time to catch the fash of angry resentment which rested there.

"My sons," he said, carnestly, "Is it not important that we perform the service exactly as Moses has instructed us?"

EXPLORER RIDES A FURTLE.

De Rougemont Showe a London Audience How Essy It is.

Six years ago M. de Rougemont appeared before the geographical section of the British association at Clifton and described with much wealth of detail his remarkable adventures in the heart of the Australian continent. He included among them some striking reminiscences of the pearling industry in Australia, and added that, having been wrecked, he occupied some part of his leisure by riding turtles in the lagoon of his desert island. Yesterday, after the lapse of many days, he appeared—in a striped bathing blanket and a bathing sult-before a British audience at the Hippodrome to demonstrate the truth of his part of his narrative.

There is no ground for supposing that it is the same turtle which shared M. de Rougemont's solitude in Australiasia, or that it is a confederate in any way. Yesterday it lay placidly by the Hippodrome lagoon while M. de Rougemont lectured once again on his entertaining experiences, and it gave no sign of intelligence while he described the whole art of turtle riding. Suddenly the explorer fung off his blanket, and seizing the turtle unceremoniously by the scruff of its neck and the back of its shell holsted it into the water. The turtle sank, but nose again. M. de Rougemont was on its after it and in a moment was on its acknown of the same turtle and the once more rose. This time the rider graspod it furmly, crying. "Ta "Ra "Ra!" and slapped it with some severily, it was an specting and amusing entertainment from—the speciators' point it was an specting and amusing entertainment from—the speciators' point of the turtle sologoment did ride it—London Dally Graphic.

FOR THOSE NEARING OLD AGE.

FOR THOSE NEARING OLD AGE. Writer in Scribner Gives Some Advice Worth Heeding.

With increasing enlightenment in matters of hygiene, the period of old age is deferred, and the tides of life how flow strongly at a time when our forefathers and, still more, our foremothers were laid on the shelf; and yet, put it off as we may, it is bound to catch up with us, unless we be of those whom the gods love. To the earlier period of meek acceptance belongs the assertion, so often repeated as to be sometimes caretessly taken for truth, that contact with youth more than anything else makes old people forget their age. Never was a more mistaken statement. In a way, it is true that the society of young persons does keep their elders young, by stimulating their pride and preventing them from giving way to certain folibles incident to their time in life. It is in the nature of a salutary discipline; and those persons, who are brought in contact with the little segregated communities of old men and old women who. are collected in homes' will probably agree that it is a discipline which is most desirable! For of all the pitfalls which lie in wait for old age the most distressing is that lack of self-control which lays have the weaknesses hitherto kept under cover by a normally strong will. The constant presence of the younger generation is at the same time a moral goad and a support. The very instinct of self-preservation leads on to adapt oneself to their standards. The Old Plane Tree of Ges.

In the island of Cos, in the Aegean sea, there stands, jealously guarded, a huge plane tree, measuring nearly 18 yards in eircunference. It is aurorounded-By a podlum, or raised platform, breast high doubtless built to support the trunk of the tree after it had become hollow and weak from age. The lower branches are still well preserved and have been shored up by pleces of antique columns, over the upper ends of which the bitmehes have grown like esps in consequence of the pressure of their own, weight.

Close by the tree is a solid harble seat, which is said to be therefair of Hippocrates, the father of medicine, and it is supposed that he suight that art of healing from that seed, it is was born at Cos 460 B. He is undombtedly among the high chemical autorities of the world, and his condemnation of the motor bases and freight vana secus conclusive, unless invention provides innocuous motive power. Sit James Dewar attace that the combustion of petrol or gasoline in these motors throws off vast quantities of noxious gases. Some of these are absolutely polyposus and all fariurious. He holds that the aire of London is bad enough aiready without the addition of carbonic acid gas, the sulphurous gases, and, worst of all, the asphysiating carbonic oxide. Moreover, while he asimits that science can improve motors, he declares that it is impossible for it to burn petrol and render the swalting gases innocaous.

At the muzzle the relocity of the bullet is 2,300 feet a second, which means 2,760 turns a second, sasuming that the bullet does not strip in the riffing. The circumserence of the bullet is .942 of an inch, which gives a peripheral velocity of 2,600 inches each second, or 13,000 feet a minute.

Vanishing Rurai Industries.

The gradual cessation, one after another, of the countryside industries is one of the principal reasons why the peasant owner has vanished from the land. Thatching and woodcraft have been killed by "ural councils, with their crass for slater toreds, and by the substitution of other materials for timber. The cottager can no longer even burn wood, but must bey coal, since his direplaces are not fashioned for the consumption of fagots.—London Estates Gazetts.

The Homesteads, of Newport, came down, last Monday, and took the Barlington team's scalp in a closely played twelve inning game. Not until the twelfth inning was anything doing in the run getting line when a single, a two-bagger and an error put one across the plate for the visitors. Burlington was unable to tie or ovecome this small margin and the victory went to the Homesteads. Following is the score:

The celebration of the centennial of the discovery of Pike's Peak, September 24th, at Colorado Springs Colo, is to be an event of national importance. A statue of General Zebulon M. Pike is to be unveiled and Vice-President Chas. Fairbanks will deliver an address. The matter is of local importance to Kentuckians, as General Pike lived in Boone County, nearly one bundred years ago, on a farm on the banks of the Ohio river, and on this farm were born his children, grand-children and great-grand-children.

this farm were born his convaren-grand-children and great-grand-children.

One great grandson, Mr. Leslie Harrison, who is also a great-grand-son of William Henry Harrison, atill resides there. His grandmoth-er, who was a daughter of General Pike, is buried, with other mem-hers of the family, in the old bury-ing ground on the farm, on a green knall overlooking the waters of the Ohio.

Mr. Leelie Harrison has in his possession a life-size portrait of General Pike, in oil, which he prizes very highly, supposed to be the only one in existence. He expects to attend the celebration in bonor of his great-grand-father, in September, which will be of four or five days' duration.

The writer has just returned from a veation spent in Boone County, on a farm adjoining the old homestead of General Pike. To those who are fond of old colonial residences, forest-covered hills, green valleys, extensive river viewe, forming the most picturesque accency imaginable, I would recommend a trip to Boone County long the river hills. A New Leader.

A New Leader.

The people of Greater New York have unexpectedly discovered a new leader in their fight against the elevater railroad trust. His name is Andrew Bretz, and he is described ag a smill, mild-mannered, clerical-looking man, 23 years old. But he is a practical trust-buster that leaves Teddy far behind.

The New York World of August 13, says: "The hero of the great crowd of ejected passengers who had gathered at Avenue U, Coney Island, last light, was Andrew Bretz, of No. 1323 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn. Bretz not only refused to pay a second fare on the way back to the city, but whipped four inspectors, a conductor and a motorman, and then rode triumphantly into Brooklyn in the same carthat he started out in. That's the kind of man to regulate freight and passenger rates."

That's the kind of man to lead the Democratic forces of New York in an anti-trust crussde. He does things, and does them right.

Three Great Conversationalists.
The three greatest conversationalists with whom it has been my good fortune to come into touch were Mazzini, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes and Bismark.
Of these, Dr. Holmes was the most spirited in the bel eaprit sense; Bismarck the most imposing and at the same time the most entertaining in point of wil, sarcasm, ancedote and narrative of historical interest, brought out with rushing vivacity and with lightning-like illumination of conditions, facts and men.

In Mazzini words there breathed such a warmith and depth of conviction, such enthusiasm of faith in the sacredness of the principles professed and of the aims pursued by him, that it was difficult to resist such a power of fascination.—Carl Schurz, in McClure's Magazine.

His Scheme Worked.

It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone out of town on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to her to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of each of the local papers with one item clipped out, and when she wrote to find out what it was he had clipped out he refused to tell her.

The scheme worked admirably! In less than a week she was home to find out what it was that had been going on that her husband didn't wents her to know about.—Pittsburg Prest.

PEACE COMES SLOWLY

CUBAN REBELS MAKE ONEROUS DEMANDS ON PALMA.

nelet That Vice President Shall Suo ceed to Executive Office and Re-store Insurgents to Positions in the Government Service.

Ilavana.—While peace projects have caused a general suspension of revolutionary operations, no appreciable progress towards anything like a satisfactory understanding has been made. The ilberal leaders insist that it is unjust to regard them as insurgents, and assert that they are mere yseeking for peace, at the same time declaring that not only must the terms of peace be better than heretofore talked of, but that there must he some unquestionable guaranty that the conditions will be carried out to the letter. The mederates meanwhile continue in a waiting attitude. The demands while come from the insurgents themselves as the price of a cessation of rebellion are regarded in the capital for the most part not to be considered. These demands include the restoration of deserters from the rural guards to their former positions, the reinstatement of liberals who last year were deposed from municipal of faces, the retention of their arms by the insurgents, and other equally radical propositions.

The liberalis have not yet relinquished the hope that they may be able to force the restgnation of President Palma and all the high government officials. The succession of Vice President Mendez Capote to the presidency is also discussed, liberals seeming to think they could reach an understanding with him that would be satisfactory to all.

Many business men of Havana ridicule the whole effort for what they call a patched-up peace, which they allege can be no more than temporary, and some go so far as to assert that the country never can be governed rightly or investments be absolutely safeguarded unless the United States intervene. This is frankly stated in some cases, also by high government officials, and hrings the record that those who make such statements are not good Cubans.

Despite all drawbacks, however, the fact that peace proposals are pending and that hostillites have been suspended has brought niore or less hopefulness to the people of Havana.

Nearly Two Billion Fry Propagates—During the Past Year.

Washington.—A preliminary statement made by George H. Bowers, United States commissioner of fisheries, to the secretary of the department of commerce and labor of the operations of his bureau for the past-fiscal year, says that the aggregate output of fry from the commission's hatcheries during the year was only a trifle less than 2,000,000,000. The actual figures were 1,931,845,699, an increase of nearly 200,000,000 over the output of 1905.

"The fish cultural operations of the government," the statement points out, "appeal to the tastes and satisfy the needs of all sorts and conditions of men. For the people of the New England coast, where from the earliest colonial days the rich harvests of the sea have been gathered by hardy fish-ermen, cod, flounders and lobsters have been produced in Immense numbers, and nowadays when one of these is caught it is lever likely to bear Uncle Sam's hall mark if a person only know where to look for it. The very successful operations of the new marine hatchery in Maine will do much to Keep up the abundance of fish in these waters."

Washington.—As the result of the new pure food la which goes into effect January 1 next, the department of agriculture is making preparations for the increased abor and aupiment involved in its enforcement. The working forces and the appliances of the laboratories at Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore and New Orleans will be largely increased, while at the ports of New York and Boston there will be erected new laboratories in which to conduct the necessary examinations of all food products coming into this country.

How many of us thank metallic lead for the comforts of paint? Yet the best house paint is nothing hut metallic lead corroded by acid to a white powder known as 'white lead.' Of course, there are many limitations of 'white lead,' some of which are sold as white lead,' some of which are sold as white lead, and some which are offered by the name of ready-prepared paint under the familiar pretense that they are 'just as good' as white lead. But all good paint is made of the metal, lead, corroded and ground to a fine white powder and mixed with linseed oil.

White lead is also used in the coating of fine oil cloths and for many purposes besides paint.

"Red lead" is another product of metallic lead and is what is known as an oxide of lead, being produced by burning the metal. Red lead is the best paint known to preserve iron, steel or tin, and is used largely in painting metal structures, such as skyscraper skeletons, mills and bridges.

There are many other products of the metal lead, such as litharse, orange mineral, etc., which are essential to many of the arts in which we never imagine that lead would be of the least use.

Verily, we live in an age of lead as well as of iron.

Fail to Select Food Nature Demands to Ward Off Ailments.

A Ky. lady, speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating all kinds of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in.

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary hreakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream.

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a strength that I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a polse of mind that amazed me. It was entirely new in my experience.

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing, with blind spells of dizzliness, rush of blood to the head and neuralic pains in the chest.

"Since-using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when-l-have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity, then I would be warned hyapain under the left shouler blade, and unless I heeded the warning the Jid trouble ordiginated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left every quickly." I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts. Name given by Postum Co, Battle Creek, Mich.

The Age of Lead.

We are wont to speak of this era as the "age of Iron," and there is no galusaying that, industrially speaking, fron is a "preclous inegal."

Nevertheless, few people realize how useful. If not shabilitely necessary, to modern civilization, is that other metal, lead. Soft, yieldig, pilable, it is not much like is sister metal, but those distinguishing qualities are what give it such a prominent place in the arts and industries. Modern plumbing, requiring many turnings and twistinas, but withat light joints, would be almost jupperable without lead pipe. The greatest civilizing agent in the world—the printing art—is absolutely dependent on lead. Handset type, linotype "sugs," monotype type—all are its the chief positions of which lead and the positions of which lead is the chief positions of which lead will as all place. It has remainery in which "babbitt" metal is used. Solder is another lead is put—pain, that necessary material which keeps our houses looking proty—insule and out—and preserves them from decay.

Lincoin as a Lawyer.

A leader of the Lincoin party told the other day in Philadelphia a story of the astuteness of Lincoin as a lawyer.

"When Lincoin was practising law," he said, "he had a case involving a disputed will. The opposition claimed the will was genuine and for several hours adduced proof of this. For Lincoin, who had to prove the will a forgery, things looked black.

"Lincoin, however, only called one witness, a retired paper manufacturer, renowned the country over for his wealth and prohity.
"Mr. Dash, 'Lincoin said to this witness, handling him the disputed will, 'please hold that paper up to the light and tell us what is the water mark on it."

"The water mark of my own firm. Blank & Co., 'the witness answered.
"When did your firm begin to manufacture paper?"

"In 1841."
"Angust 11, 1836."
"That is enough. Gentlemen of the jury our case is closed."

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third-It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system-not by stupefying it-and our readers are entitled to the information. -Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

addressed to Chas. II. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills, says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory." Dr. William Belmont, of Cieveland, Ohlo, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Tatt, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria sate extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's treatistic, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's treatistic, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's treatistic, as I have never found about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience. I have in my years of practice Sound Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remody."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo, says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will John me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

"Cut out but cream of tartar biscuit" used to be a common, every-day remark among physicians when discussing items of diet for their patients. But alum baking powder biscuits are never mentioned in this respect. Why? Because it's the cream of tartar that is objectionable and injurious, and yet there are some people who to-day continue to use the old cream of tartar baking powder, and wonder why they are always alling.

States of Brazil.

Politically, Brazil is divided into 21 states (including the federal district), but so unequal is the division that three of these embrace practically her entire lowlands, as well as a portion of the western uplands, and exceed in area the remaining 18, which lie within the highland region, except for their narrow margins upon the coast. These latter, however, contain more than 96 per cent. of the population.

Mr. Bryan is not as strong with the Democratic party today as he was the day before he made his speech at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Mr. Bryan was given a rousing non-partisan reception upon his arrival at his home, Lincoln, Nebraska. His speech on that occasion was not along political lines.

Uncle Sam is having trouble to find a location for his colored soldiers. No community wants them in its midst. Even the Philippines are protesting against there being sent there.

Ex-Gov. D. R. Frances, of Mis-EX-Gov. D. K. Frances, of Mis-souri, says he does not agree with Bryan in the Government owner-ship phase of his New York speech, but thinks Bryan will bow to the will of the party.

Everybody seems disposed to get into the Bryan Band wagon, and if he gets off on the proper foot in his speech in New York City, on the 30th inst., his nomination will be clinched then and there.

Illinois Democrats have served notice on Mr. Bryan that they can attend to their own affairs by giving Mr. Sullivan, the State's member of the Democratic National Committee, who is so very objectionable to Mr. Bryan, an emphatic endorsement, The resolution asking Sullivan to resign was defeated in the State Convention, last week, 1,038 to 500 votes.

While the Democratic candidates for nominations for State offices are pouring hot shot into each other, the Republicans are sitting back enjoying the proceedings hugely, but when they are out for party nominations their speeches are as acrimonious as those now being made by the Democrats. As an example—in the Eleventh district during the canvass for the congressional nomination.

Senator Bailey, of Texas, Gov. Folk, of Missouri, and other leaders in the Democratic party take issue with Mr. Bryan in regard to government ownership of railroads—in fact his declaration in favor of that policy will place the party at a great disadvantage if he should be nominated for the presidency, notwithstanding his effort to hedge on that part of his New York speech in which he came out squarely in favor of government ownership of trunk lines while the States own the shorter lines.

Senators Foraker and Dick, of Ohio, desire an endorsement at the hands of the next Republican convention, but just how they and President Roosevelt can be endorsed by the same body of delegates is giving the politicians considerable trouble to figure out. The Senators have opposed the President in some of his leading policies, thereby creating a very awkward position for the next convention, and who will get the throw-down is a matter of speculation. The Ohio complication is quite interesting to outsiders.

Time to sow your wheat.

Everything indicates the proach of fall. Born-On the seventh inst., to Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson, a girl.

Now is the time for planting business advertisements if you desire fall trade.

Alonzo Beemon, of Limaburg neighborhood, is completing a large stock barn.

The indications are the Erlanger fair which begins today, will have fine weather.

The foliage on the trees has begun to show the approach of frost and cold weather.

Two public sales advertised in this issue—one for the 18th and the other for the 25th, inst.

The fair at Erlanger, this week concludes the circuit in this part of the country for the year 1906.

Nobody rides with rural mail carriers now. This is a recent rul-ing of the Postoffice Department. Dr. Crouch has about all the stock subscribed for the consolidatione of the Boone Ccunty and the Hughes telephone systems.

A. M. Acra took his poultry exhibit to the Alexandria fair, last week, where he captured quite a number of premiums.

Considerable complaint of petty thiering about the country. Some of the non-workers are supplying their pantries for the winter.

It requires about $6,000 to pay the premiums and the running ex-penses of the Florence fair for four days. You did not think that.

A considerable portion of the 1906 tobacco crop has been cut and housed. The pounds this year in Boone county will be about equal to last year's yield.

The weather was all that could be desired, last Thursday, and quite a crowd attended the convention of the Christian churches of Boone county at Bullittsville.

B. L. Cleek and wife, of Union, spent several hours at the county clerk's office, last Friday, securing copies of records he will need in his work of assessing the county.

Jailer Adams worked his colored prisoner out last Friday. He put him to mopping the floors in the various rooms about the court house. The negro appreciated the outing.

The corn has not dried up very rapidly, consequently the work of cutting corn has been delayed. It will be heavy work this fall, as on every stalk will be found one and very often two large ears.

The stock of watermelons is on ne decline in the bottoms. Some ery fine melons were produced his season despite the quantity of ain, too much of which is consid-red not good for that particular

At the convention of the Christian-churches of Boone county, held at Bullittsville last Thursday, it was decided to have preaching once a month hereafter in Burlington, and a committee was appointed to collect money to pay the pastor.

It will save Assessor B. L. Cleek considerable trouble if persons who have had mortgages on their lands and the same have been paid off, will see that the record in the county clerk's office shows a release. In many instances mortgages have been satisfied but the party holding them has failed to release them on the record. The assessor has to go by the record.

A pair of large hawks have been feasting on Mrs. Leslie Nichols' chickens this summer, and last Thursday Mr, Nichols went gunning for them and killed one which measured three and one-half feet from tip to tip.

Jury Could Not Agree.

Jury Could Not Agree.

Henry Aylor, of Limaburg neighborhood, was put on trial for lunacy, last Thursday, but the evidence adduced was not sufficient to satisfy one of the jurors that he is of unsound mind and no verdict, was returned. Mr. Aylor is about seventy years of age. Another jury was called Monday and decided that he is of unsound mind.

A Cracker Jack.

Dony Cook, of Bellevue, presented the RECORDER with a 463 pound watermelon, last Thursday. It was of light color, thin rind, and delicious red meat. He brought to town a two horse wagon load smaller but nice melons, which he disposed of readily at a good price.

They Are Grape Hungry.

A squad of about half a dozen colored bove have been raiding grape arbors about town. So great have been their appetites for that fruit that they have not waited for the cover of night under which to make their unlawful calls. They have been caught on one or two occasions while in an arbor.

The Pastures Still Green.

The Pastures Still Green.
Here it is the middle of September and pastures look as green and as thrifty as they did at the first of May, and at no time during the summer months did they become dry and parched as is usual during the months of July and August. Showers have fallen at regular intervals and kept the grass green and growing nicely all the time.

Not Caused by the Washtub.

The brown forearm so common with the ladies now is no proof that they have spent hours over the wash tub, nor that they have indulged in other pursuits either in the sun or in the shade that required the bearing of the arm to the elbow until the flesh has necessarily become thickened and browned. No, no. Don't be deceived.

Another Old Citizen Gone.

In the death of Reuben Acra, of the Middle Creek neighborhood, the county loses another old citizen,

A Big Snake.

A Big Snake.

As Herbert and Howard Kirkpatrick, who live just beyond the toll gate on the Florence pike, were coming into town, last Thursday afternoon, they discovered a very large spreading adder near the cemetry gate. They began planning a campaign for the destruction of the reptile, which outgeneraled them and drew itself into the hedge fence at the road side. The boys were greatly chagrined at their failure to capture the snake, which they described as an ugly monster.

Small pupils can not wade through mud or snow to attend school, and the later school begins the more of such exposure will they experience. The month hi August is a much more favorable period for school than are some of the winter and spring months.

Ground Hogs Worm Tobacco.

Ground Hogs Worm Tobacco.

R. J. Underhill, who lives out on Gunpowder, was in town, last Thursday, and in speaking of worming tobacco, said that he was being assisted materially in that work by several ground hogs that have a den in a cliff near his tobacco patch. He accuses the hogs of being rather careless in their work, breaking too many leaves, but he is willing to lets them continue as their work are more labor for him than the tobacco they destroy is worth. Mr. Underhill also says that black birds are fond of tobacco worms, and when a flock of them comes into his tobacco patch, he withdraws and let them have the field to themselves as long as they want to stay.

The Universal Clifts.

An old farmer was talking of his boyhood to a group of young people not long ago. It had been lived—that faraway boyhood—early in the last century, in a country place remote from towns. He described its meager conditions—the houses, in which such things as "conveniences" had never been dreamed of, the coarse food and poor clothing, the scanty schooling, the few holidays; no magazines, almost no books, no entertainments or sports except an occasional sleighing party; no "junketings," no celebration of Christmas or New Year, no vacations from work. "Nothing that you young folks have to-day," he finished, "except weather and other folks; but I tell ye," a flash kindled in the faded eye, and the fine old head lifted proudly, "I tell ye, folks cared jest as much for life in those days as they do now," "Weather and other folks" and the opportunity of living—the great universal gifts to all mandind through all the ages. They standlike mighty mountain peaks, steadfast and -unchangeable among all—the hanging philosophies, civilizations, and unchangeable among all the changing philosophies, civilizations and unchangeable among all the changing philosophies, civilizations, powers. Sorrows come often, and sickness and defeat; there are lives eaten by poverty and dwarfed by constraining circumstance, yet, says the Youth's Companion, to every life these three things are given—the joy of sunshine and blue skies, the cheer' and comradeably and inspiration of other lives pressing upon his, the opportunity to hope and dream and do battle, to learn dally more of himself and his fellow man and God. All over the country are eager young people looking for "chances" to do, to learn ard the season only the longing means watchfulness, not discontent. "Chances" come only to open doors. But while he is waiting let every eager soul remember that the three great gifts are his already to use or to neglect—Nature and "folks" and the privilege of living.

The American "Drummer."

A United States consul sends to the state department a bit of advice for American business houses that intend seeking trade in Spanish-American countries. "Cheap traveling salesmen who can pick up orders in a brisk and breezy fashion," he declares, will not be able to do much business there. Salesmen of culture and education, with polished manners and a knowledge of the languages and customs of the people among whom they go, he believes to be essential. The consul's intentions are good, and it is easy to see the point he seeks to make. American business houses would-doubtless do well to remember his words of caution. But he has a wong conception of the American traveling salesman. The type he has in, mind flures more largely on the stage and in the books of fiction than on the road. The roystering, flashy "spelibinding" drummer has practically disappeared. The knights of the grip, while they may not be composite Lord Chesterfields and J. Pierpont Morgans, are quiet, level-headed, capable men of business. They seek, says the Cleveland Leader, to obtain and hold trade by a thorough knowledge of the branch of it they are in and by deserving the confidence of the men they deal with. The commercial traveler of to-day does not resort to tricks. He transacts business on a business basis, and succeeds on his merits. Such accomplished gentlemen as are described by the consul would doubtless have an immense advantage over their less gifted brethren in Latin-America, but the supply of them is bound to be limited. It is a safe prediction that the plain, ordinary American traveling men will get their full share of the business in Mexico and Central and South America.

No convict has been guillotined in Paris for ten years, and the sentences of those condemned to death have been commuted to imprisonment for ille. The reason for this lies in the fact that the law provides that all capital executions shall be held in public, and since the guillotine was removed from the Piace de la Roquette ten years ago, no other place has been found for it. The residents in the neighborhood of every places suggested object to its erection near them. The authorities were lately put in a quandary when a condemned man refused to ask for a commutation of his sentence, and declared that they must put him to death.

BANKER IN OLSON'S CHARGE

esident Takes Hand in Bringing Fu-gitive to Justice—May Return on Refrigerating Ship.

Chicago.—Paul O. Stensiand is aboutedy in the custody of Assistant State's Attorney Harry Olson at Taugter, Morocco. This information was obtained in a cablegram from Mr. Olson, received Friday by Acting State's Attorney Barbour, as follows:

Olson, received Friday by Acting State's Attorney Barbour, as follows:
"Stensland turned over to me."
The brevity of the dispatch leaves much to conjecture, but Mr. Barhour believes that Mr. Olson has hrushed saide all difficulties and is in a position to start for home with his prisoner as soon as a ship is available.
The action of the United States representatives at Tangier in turning. Stensland over to Mr. Olson is believed to be due to the cahegram sent from the state department at Washington, in accordance with the instructions of President Romer Washington, in accordance with the instructions of President Romer Mr. Of state to go to any necessary extent in the effort to bring Stensland to Justice, adding:

"He is one of the most obnoxious types of criminals. He robbed hundreds of very poor people, and is said to have caused several suicides."

The present indications are that Stansland will return to America on the United States refrigerating ship Glacier, unless some better method of transportation is found by Mr. Oil son.

son.
It is undesirable to take the prisoner through any foreign country, for fear of possible extradition entanglements. The ship Glacler, if it is available, will solve the problem, for this vessel is expected to sail direct for the United States without stopping on the way.

DECISION OF LOWER COURT CON-

Chief Justice Start Says Statute Does Not Authorize Sale of School or Swamp Lands of State.

Not Authorize Sale of School or Swamp Lands of State.

St. Paul, Minn.—The state supreme court Friday handed down a decision in the case of the state of Minnesota aversus Mabel C. Evans, upholding the decision of the St. Louis county court at Duluth, which held that the state law governing mineral leases is constitutional. This case involves the title to the famous Virginia Silver mine, located on the Minnesota range and which is said to be worth, several million dollars. The action was brought by the state against Mahel Evans, the holder of the lease on the ground that mineral leases are invalid because school and swamp lands can only be sold at public auction. In this case the lease was taken out privately, there being but one party to make a bid on the lease. The court, in its decision by Chief Justice Start, held that "on a full consideration of the question it is the openion of the court that this mineral lease statute does not authorize a sale of any of he school or swamp lands of the state within the meaning of the constitutional prohibition; that it is constitutional and the leases are valid."

constitutional and the leases are vaild."

The court held that a lease to the mineral righte did not carry with it the title to the land, which was still vested in the state. Judge Start explained that while this view was rather far fetched, the court decided the question in this manner in order that the extensive business interests, involving an Immense investment of capital, might not be seriously disturbed.

The decision affects all the mineral holdings of the United States Steel corporation, J. J. Hill's iron ore interests and many other small holdings.

As the Mayfiower dropped her anchor at the head of the fleet on the completion of the review the president descended from the hridge, his face wreathed in smiles, and enthpsisatically, throwing his arms around the shoulders of a group of senators and representatives exclaimed.

"Any man woo falls to be patriotically inspired by such a sight as this is a mighty poor American, and every American who has seen it ought to be a better American for it."

"And yon, gentlemen," he said, addressing the naval committee, "are responsible for it. It is your handlwork and it has all been done within the past ten years. TITLE AND A FORTUNE IS LOST

THAT A POOR GIRL'S HONOR MIGHT BE RESTORED.

Count Von Hochberg Flad From Parental Roof, Sending For the Maiden
He Had Wronged.

New York, Sept. 10.—In the wedding at Ossining, N. Y. of Count Hans Ferdinand, Von Hoebberg, heir to the duchy of Rhonstock, playmate and companion of the German crown prince, nephew of Prifecess Marle Von Saxe-Weimar and consist of the grand-duke, Michael von Saxe-Weimar, a remarkable romance, the strange story of the supreme sense of honor that prompts a man to sacrifice name and fame and fortune to marry a poor shop girl, was revealed.

It is a story that has agitated the German court, that has caused the resignation of the superintendent of the Royal Opera in Berlin, that has estranged a dozen ancient families, that has separated a father and a son.

Duty alone destined Count Ferdinand Von Hochberg to marry a woman so far beneath his station in life. Louise Carow was her name, the daughter of a workman, while he was once in daily attendance at the imperial palace as an officer of the first regiment of German foot, the kaiser's personal bodyguard.

The line of duty that he chose was beset with many obstructions. First of all there came the disgrace, for at the time of his decision he was to have married a princess of one of the reigning families. Then there was his father's threat of disinheritance, later carried out. Lastly, there was dismissal from the army.

He Could Not Forget.

But he was determined in his decision, in spite of the supreme sacrifices that had to be made. And when they sent him to America, hoping that he would forget, he gave up the remittance that came monthly and angaged limself as a chauffeur in Tarr, town. Then we such sent him to America, hoping that he would forget, he gave up the remittance that came monthly and angaged limself as a chauffeur in Tarr, town. Then we sate saide by the kaiser. So he married her again in the presence of a little daughter that had been born to them a week ago.

The ceremony was performed in Miss Helen Evera's boarding house on their to be his wife.

He had married her morganatically in Germany, but that marriage, at the request of his tather and his mo choir, nothing but the clatter of dishes as dinner was being laid in the next room.

And when it was over they christened the baby Johnnan Louise, and by the domestic relations law of the state of New York the child, through the marriage, is legitimized. So when she is 21 years of age she will come into her title as Counters Johnnan Louise von Hochberg.

The young Ferdinand is a son of Count Bolko von Hochberg, the lord of Rohnstock Castle in Silesia, the super-intendent of the royal opera in Berlin and the composer of "Claustine" and "Waterwolff." His mother, formerly the Princess Christene Eleanore von Schonauh-Caraloth, is a cousin of the Crown Princes Cheelia, and as a youth Yor Hickher at tended the Bloen millitary college with the Crown Prince William. They were inseparable rilenia, and at his wedding the latter appointed the young Count von Hochberg chief usher.

When Woman .sn't Young.

The report is that a local religious institution which is for "young women that has drawn the deadline of youth at 35. Every woman over that age will be marked 23 and requested to skiddoo. This is painful. It is unkind. What is worse, it is impractable. We are gigd the task is to be performed by women. No man nor set of menwould ever have dared tackle such a prohlem—not they. This is simply another example of woman's inhumanity to woman.

We have been told for many ages that a woman is as old as she looks and a man is as old as he feels. Just now, we say it with regret, most women look like 60 and most men feel like Methuselah. But the general rule seems a good one. It is a plain, unpaitatable fact that women will deceive as to their age as long as possible and then openly lie ahout it. There are many women who were born during the ravages of the civil war who still claim-sweetly to be in the thirties.

SERMONETTE.

Hobab, the brother-in-law of Moses, had been sejourning with israel at Mount Sinal, and when the time came for the people of God to take up, their journey towards the Promised Land, Moses in-vited and urged Hobab to go with them, promising him a share in all the bleasing while God had said he would give to his people. Moses Invitation to his people. Moses Invitation brought Hobab face to face with the most solemn issue which can come to any soul. A most momentous question had to be answered:

Should he follow God or follow self!

Should he follow God or follows self?

Should he go to the Land. of Promise, or should he continue to dwell in the old land?
Should he choose God's people, or the world's people?

The acceptance of the Invitation involved: (1) A separation, for God calls those who would receive his blessing to "come out . . and be separate." Man cannot have the world and God, too.

(2) A Journey, for God's call la always to go onward and upward. And that Journey is not always easy, for Jesus said: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me." But note that Jesus asks the soul to go only where he leads. But if acceptance of the invitation means separation from the world and worldly living, and a somewhat hard and weary journey, still on the come of the invitation means separation from the world and worldly living, and a somewhat hard and weary journey, still on the other hand is given promise of (1) A better land. (2) An, enlarged aphere of life. (3) The ostrainty of an enduring habitation. (4) A share in the divine blessing. (5) Fellowship with God and God's people.

Why is it so hard to bring people to accept the invitation? Why is it that, lilk Hobab of old, people choose temporal gain, worldly associations and worldly possessions, rather than God and his blessings?

Only 'Come thou with us and we will do these God rather than the world.

Hobab's no shut him out of the Promised Land.

No is a small word, but it bars many a soul from Heaven.

There was a place and a duty for Hobab among God's people, and there is a place and a duty for Hobab among God's people, and there is a place and a duty for Hobab among God's people, and there is a place and a duty for Hobab among God's people, and there is a place and a duty for every soul in God's kingdom.

There was a place and a duty for every soul in God's kingdom.

THE STORY.

SINCE his return nothing had seemed of his unwillingness to admit it, was dissatisfied. The old scenes and old associates did not satisfy as they used to do. He was surprised and shocked at the change, and wondered whether the reason was to be found within himself or in the old home and old friends. He had spent a long time with his brother-in-iaw, Moses, and unconsciously had been influenced by his associations with him to higher ideals and to a more intimato knowledge of the true God.

Ever since his positive rejection of Moses' kind invitation to cast his lot with God's people he had felt a strange unrest within his soul, as though there was something there demanding gratification which was denied it. He had tried to fight the feeling off by plunging more determinedly than ever into the old life. He was a man of much power and influence in Midlan, and more than ever he sought to have the interests there gratify his ambitions. New riches and honors as a result had come to him during the years which followed, but down deep in his soul there was that sense of lack which annoyed and troubled him.

When some untoward incident occurred among his people, such as the robbery, of some caravan from Egypt, or the killing of some defenseiers foc and the taking of his possessions, he would think within himself:

"Things are not so among Moses" people."

"Things are not so among Moses people."
It was then-that the invitation of Moses would ring in his ears:
"Come thou with us and we will do thee good for the Lord hath spoken good concerning srsol."
And the half-formed resolve would rise in his heart to go even at that iate day and join himself to lsreel. But each time as the thought had come, he had turned to consider all that he must leave behind, and his heart failed him. He could not. He would find the center of his life and his ambitions there where no had always lived. But having once known the way of a better life, with a hope in the true God and a place with his poople, there could be no real peace for his soul peace for his soul peace for his soul had been of the wanderings of the children of largel in the wilderness, whither they bad been driven by the Lord after their failure to enter the Fromised Land, and a new purpose began to form within him. Here was opportunity to yet accept the invitation of Moses and so with them. But when he broached the matter to his family, for the wilderness was dotted the matter to his family, for the little wilderness was dotted with their graves. What was he to gain by such a move?" they demanded, and when he apoke of the Promised Land to which God was leading his people, they can be sould you want than that where your father and your father's fathers have dwelt bofore you?"

Hobab made no fesponse, but turned away with a troubled sigh. Ah, he thought, if he had only make the right choice away back there years ago as he stood by Moses dean the wild wild had been done to so thither? And what had only make the right choice away back there years ago as he stood by Moses dean hours and the wild had been the world have been. Then it would not have been. Then it would not have been. Then it would not have been they are the wild had been the world had been the permanded the promptings of his heart, and Hobab found himself settling back to the old life, and as is always the right one to follow the course which his heart dictated was the right one to follow the course which his heart dictated was the right one to follow the course which his heart dictated was the right one to follow the course which his heart dictated was the right one to follow the course which his heart dictated was the right one to follow the course which his heart dictated was the right one to follow the course which his heart dictated was the right of the permanded his house his permanded his house his permanded his house his hear

DEATHS BY LIGHTNING.

Are so Few It la Hard to Get Statistics for Them.

Timid people who are afraid of being killed by lightning should take refuge in statistics rather than in feather beds. The one victim of the storm which swept over Boston recently was leaning against an iron bar, says the Boston Transcript. Yet even in this dangerous environment his chances of being killed were sorement that the experience might be safely repeated by somebody else thousands of times. The number of people who are actually killed by lightning is hard to ascertain, because it is so small that in most cases such deaths go into the table as "other causes," or are concealed in some other fashion. The Boston board of health, for example, uses the Bertillon registry system, and here deaths acaused by lightning would be hidden under "Electrical disturbances." which includes also executions by electricity, third-rail casualities, fatal fails from electric light poles and live wires, fatal shocks from dynamo, etc. The registry department, which classifies deaths more correctly, does not record a single instatice of a person killed by lightning in Boaton since 1901. In the whole state there appear to have been but three persons killed by electric shocks from the clouds in the last three years.

These figures ought to be reassuring to those whee a fash of lightning to those whee a fash of lightning that the reasoning facutities of certain people seem to be auspended during thunderatorms. They shrrink from the waterious power, even though it may be shown that more people die from the bite of the common house cat than from lightning. Such has been the case in the past.

Another reason for the common fear of lightning is our unfamiliarity with it. If thunderstorms happened every day of the year, we should probably lose our fears. Tuberculosis kills more men than war, and we do not spend the millions for the common fear of lightning is electric the past.

I have taught in schools ranging from the State the common school in the beech command woods to the lower classes in one of trenches.

Por more than twenty years I have been attending the State Teachers' Association and in 1896 was president of that honorable body. The published proceedings and addresses show that I was active in all movements for the betterment of public schools, originating some of them. This is particularly true as to the agitation for normal schools, longer school terms, better shoolhouses, modern equipulation and compulsory attendance. As chairman of a Legislative Committee appointed by the Kentucky Education al Association, I pressed upon the General Assembly divers amendments looking to those ends and procured their passage. I am the author of the plan by which three and four months' schools were abolished, and wrote the amendment that effectuated the plan. The selfsame committee brought about mest of the beneficial changes that have been made in the school law in the past afteen years, the result being a grachul development of the common school

THE END NOT YET.

If neminated I shall be elected, in which event I shall devote whatever time and talent I have to the great cause in which are centered the dearest interests of the children and the Common-wealth. We shall make progress along all the lines indicated, for a brighter era has evidently dawned. It shall be my highest and most cherished ambition to foster and develop the State's normal echools until they shall be adequate for all and good enough for the best-unsurpassed by those of any otherState. To bettar correlate common schools with high schools with high schools with high schools with necessary will also be a matter for my best thought and effort.

HIDES AND LEATHER

TARIFF ON THESE COSTS PI

Former Gov. Douglas of Massachusett, has been ediling attention in a late speech to the $30,000,000 anded copt to the boot and shoe bill of the American people through the territ divity in hieses and sole leather. The territ fax on hieses and sole leather. The territ fax on hieses and sole leather. The territ fax on hieses is 15 per cent, and 20 per count on sole leather. The beef pechacy, control the market for hides and have farrensed the price 30 per count and yet the price of cattle has declined. This conclusively shows that the farmers and stock relieve do not not be noted by the duty, but that the beef trutt does. Gov. Douglas declares, as one of the largest boot and shoe manufacturers in the United States, that he will be quite willing to part with the taylif duty of 25 per cent on manufacturers boots such shoes, in order to obtain free hides and free sole leather. He also declares that with these taylif duty of 25 per cent on manufacturers and can invade foreign markets on an extensive scale and that the exports of boots and shoes would be increased to $400,000,000 which are now hat $50,0000.

Foreyone has noticed that their boot and shoe bill has been gradually increasing since $897, when after 25 years of free hides the present tariff duly was imposed. There are about 100,000 families in the United States wor that this tariff tax aline on hides and sole leather costs each family swerzing fave persons, two dollars a year and a great deal more if the family is larger. This tax is especially hard on the workingman and farmers who wear out lots of shoes and senterally have a large family. Regarding any loss to farmers and stock, Helse are an incidental product of the buther-ing business. It is absurt to suppose that putting a tariff on one of the byroducts of the beef industry will materially change the prices paid for cattle. These fluctuate, or would fluctuate if there were no combinations to interfere with cenomic law, in accordance with the supply of and demand for cattle for beef and their prices are throw stones.

As long as we continue to keep up our hish protection wall, of course, we have no right to spleet to any other country building up a like prohibitive structure. As all nations but England and one or two small countries have enacted high protective walls, to prevent the findiux of American trust-made goods, which are sold there cheaper than in the United States, how long will it take before international trade is a thing of, the past, except for raw products, which he protected countries cannot produce enough of to supply the wants of their own people?

Trade and commerce must in a great measure be reciprocal—that is, as a rule, securities only buy of other countries which trade with them. It would not pay for run ships leaded only one way, there must be return curgoes of the freight would be double what it should be.

As we have an average tariff of. 75 per cent. on manufactured products, we cannot biame other countries for collecting a similar tariff on our manufactures. As the United States has the most to sell, it would seem that in the end we have the most to loss by this dog-in-the-manger policy. It has already been very costly to our own people, having increased the cost of living 48 per cent since 1897, when the present high tariff law was enacted. It is the "standpatt" policy, under which the price of creas are declining and the price of trust manufactured products are advancing. If protects the trusts and plunders the farmers and the workingmen and those with limited incomes, for those whose wages and incomes have not largues and the price of trust manufactured products are advancing. If protects the trust and plunders the farmers and the workingmen and those with limited incomes, for these whose wages and incomes have not largues, and the workingmen and those with limited incomes, for these whose wages and incomes have not largues, and the workingmen and those with limited incomes, for these whose wages and incomes have not largues and the price of trust manufactured products are as the ment exclusively by their value for beef purposes."

Renovating the G. O. P.

The Protective Tariff league followers appear to be getting resides and excited in Jowa and are failing of knifing Gov. Cummins and other chandlates who are not sound on the protection gnose. Over the Body—Skin Cracked and Bleeding—Cured by Qutteura.

"I was afflicted with paoriagis for thirty-five years.—It was in patches all over my body.—I used three cakes of Gutteura Soap, alx boxes of Ointment and two bottles of Resolvent. In thirty days I was completely cured, and I think fermaneatily, as it was about five years ago. The psoriasis first made its appearance in red spots, generally forming a circle, leaving in the center a spot about the size of a silver dollar of sound fieth. In a short time the affected circle would form a heavy dry scale of a white silvery appearance and would gradually drop off. To remove the entire scales by bathing or using oil to soften them the fieth would be perfectly raw, and a light discharge of bloody substance—would Goze out. That actly crust would form gain is twenty-four hours. It was worse on my arms and limbs, although it was in apoit all over my body, also on my scalp. If I let the scales remain too long withour removing by bath or otherwise, the akin would crack and bleed. I suffered intense, then it would be almost upbearable. W. M. of the Churches of Christ of Boone County.

The Convention of the Christian Churches of Boone County, convended as Builitateille Sept. 5-6. It was one of the best conventions held in the county. The inspiring addresses and the meeting of old friends, made the day a "least of good things" and we all felt it was good to have been there.

While the absence of the President, Bro. E. C. Riley, was regretted Bro. Duncan efficiently filled his place and the convention is lortunate in securing his service as President, the coming year.

On account of the absence of Bro. Ranshaw, Bro. Runyan spoke at the evening service. He gave an interesting address on "The Power of Literature,"

After song and devotional service the convention opened the next morning with able discussions by the speakers present, on the Giving to God's Cause and how Rewarded, and Why does church. Cooperation Fail in Boone county?

Great Night for the Onion.

The onion has served as the basis for many quips and fings at the hands of the humorous paragraphers. And yet it is an extremely wholesome plant and one of high rank with the anclasts, particularly the early Expyllans. For these reasons it is pleasant to note that the tabooed edible net with deserved recognition at what was termed an onion reception and banquet in an interior. It was arranged, says the Cleveland Plain Desien, in honor of the sixteenth anniversary of the special guests of the igvening and the onion was the center and scenter of attraction. The house was decorated with onion blossoms, as onion center piece graced the table and the bill of fare included onions, allocated in the control of the special state of the guests, who departed at a late hour, went away breathing many encombinums of the fragrant builb of honor.

Far Too Speedy for Speech.

The tremendous speed made in the daternational automobile race over the Ardennes circuit. In Belgium is aimost beyond conception. To maintain an average of nearly 70 miles an hour through a run of 371 miles, which was the record of the winner, must have meant a speed neighboring on 100 miles an hour for much of the distance. Only in this way could time lost on curves be made up. The race makes very pat the story of a Boiston millionaire who recently visited one of the young Vanderbilts at Newyork, says the Springfield (Mass.) Republican. The visitor was taken for a run in a big racing automobile. He stood the experience until the speed rose to upward of 30 miles an hour, when, in terror, he tried to call to the driver beside him to slow up. But instead of being able to call he found, so runs the story, that once he had opened hie mouth he could not shut it, so violent was the blast. Fortunately, the stretch permitting such speed was abort.

Dr. Washington Gladden rose to deliver the invocation, but he spoke only a few sentences when the roar of voices forced him to stop, Gov. Harris then attempted to quiet the crowd. "Keep back" he should. "You are crushing these people in front to death."

The governor's voice could not be heard 20 feet away, however, on account of the din. The commotion then became so alarming that those on the stand asked Mrs. Longworth to come forward in the hope that a glimper of her might satisfy the crowd. She came to the front of the stand and it was seen aconce that something must, be done, and it was decided to unveil the states at once.

Mrs. Longworth then pulled the ribbon attached to wires which drew the fags covering the status aside. A man holsted on another's shoulder grasped the ribbons and the wire fand they were quickly torn into fragments by reile seekers.

The crush was stopped for a few moments, but it was soon resewed, and Mrs. Longworth again came to the front of the platform and bowed to the throng. In the meantime, however, the committee on arrangements had decided to defer the addresses until evening at the Memortal ball, and as soon as Mrs. Longworth refere the announcement was made. The people struggling for their lives in the crowd around the stand cheered, but a storn of hisses came from the people on the outskirts of the crowd, who did not understad the aituation. The programme of exercises which had been arranged for the unveiling of the McKinley monument was carried out at Memortal Ball at night.

In control of the great saling have especially for the shigh officers. In control of the great saling have especially for the shigh officers. In these instructive facts were brought out:

"Strictly speaking," said a prominent officer, "the Connecticut ought to be the choice of the government for the honor of 'taking the president to Panama for the reason that it is made for a flagship of a facet and has accommodations for an admiral. Now, the average landsman does not shall be seen that these accommodations means that these accommodations means with the said of the ship's living quarters. They are big enough for a good stand dancing party to enjoy itself. There are rooms for baths, smoking, libraries, writing, entertainment, and dining that remind one of a suite in a luxurious Manhattan hote!

"There is no other ship in the American navy that will have such fine quarters for the head of the nation as the Connecticut, and it would be a fitting tribute to the first ship of the navy to be built without asking any odds and a privac building concern, if it were selected for the presidential journey"

Lowerhouse members are elected for three years, senators for six years, but senators forms are so arranged that half the senate must be elected every three years. Taught by our misfortunes the framers of the Australian constitution ordained the choice of their senators by popular vote and put it out of the power of their supreme court to dran the nation.

Candidates for commissities in the army will now have to face an increased stringency in the regulations with regard to the examination for eyesight. Since the war they have been somewhat relaxed.

In the details issued for the examination of officers of the militia and imperial yeomanry for commissions in the regular forces it is expressly laid down that 'no relaxation of the eyesight test can ever be allowed. On other points it appears that candidates who are pronounced unfit by the medical board will be allowed to present themselves for reexamination by an appeal board.

The regulation does not apply to those who are going up for a commission direct.

Should it be enforced to the full, it probably involves the disappearance of the eyegiass as a military adjunct.

The spider-web gown may soon bot a reality, for the threads of thousands of spiders are being carefully gathered, unwound and woven into shimmering silken fabrics. On the island of Madagascar this odd industry is carried on under the direct manbeen appointed by the Fernch authorities nuanages to what is perhaps the strangest factory in the world. Here strangest factory in the world. Here spiders tolf day and night and die from overwork and from ignorance on the part of the attendants. Therein lies the chief difficulty. The spider seems perfectly willing to spin out in the mango groves of his native land, but it grows sulky when transplanted to the specially prepared cells in the sik-spinning factory, of Madagascar.

Why Musio Attracts Spiders.
It has often been said that spiders are fond of music, but a French investigator, M. Lecalilou, now asserts that this is not true. He says that their musical sense must be attributed merely to greed or to hunger. When a fly is caught in a spider's web it buzzes, and the spider immediately makes for the place from which the buzzing comes. M. It was only after a week's hard ferreing that I discovered through a native journalist the whereabouts of the greaf man.

Even now, in his seventieth year, he is a big man; in his prime he must have been immense. White hair and beard a broad, thoughtful forehead, surmounted by the Turkish tarboosh; kindly eyes, dulled a little by age, but lighting up wonderfully when he talks about things which interest him; a straight.—powerful—nose; a large mouth, which must once have been hard and cruel, now, softened by adversity. Though the day is warn, he wears an overcoat, and he walks heavily on a massive ebony stick.—Pall Mail Gazette.

Hunters Mauled by Lioness.
A fight between two hunters and an infuriated lioness is reported from British East Africa.

Messrs. Lucas and Goldfinch left Nairobi on a shooting expedition, and when five miles from the town the lioness was observed.

While the men stood at the edge of the thicket the brute pounced on Mr. Goldfinch and threw him to the ground. It bit bim on the thigh before Mr. Lucas lodged a builet in its neck.

Maddened by the wound, the animal turned its attention to Mr. Lucas, whose horse it felled and then pinned the rider to the ground, inflicting lacerations on bis face and bitting his right arm. He was saved by Mr. Goldfinch, who, sitting up, rolled the lioness over with a well-atimed shot.

Of the male bluebird Tboreau said:
"He carries the sky on his back." To this John Burroughs added, "and the earth on his breast." The bird's back, wings and tail, chin and throat are a vivid blue, while his breast and flanks are a chestnut brown and his abdomen a dirty white. The female is very much duller in coloring, often having a reddish tone that extends from the middle of the back over the shoulder. The Seminole Indians say that the male bluebird once flew so high that his back rubbed against the sky, which imparted to, him its own azure tint. Returning to earth, his wife so admired bis new coat that she determined to have a like one for herself and the next morning flew away to get it; but the day proving somewhat cloudy, the color given to her dress was not so brilliant as was that received by her mate.

Curning Off Paint Makes insurance Void.

It seems that considerable danger to property exists in the practice of burning off old paint before repainting. The question bas long been a subject of debate in the technical journals, and now householders and the newspapers have begun to discuss it. Those of us who, with trembling, have watched the painters blow a flery blast from their lamps against our houses, and have looked sadly at the size of our painting bill because of the time wasted on this preliminary work, are interested in the investigation by the Greenfeld (Mass.) Gazette and Courier, which gives considerable space to the reasons for the practice, questions its necessity and suggests ways to prevent the risk of burning down one's house in order to get the old paint off. It says:

"There is a good deal of discussion among householders as to the desirability, in painting houses, of burning off the old paint, a practice that has grown very common of late in Greenfeld and elsewhere. Insurance men are strongly opposed to this method. It makes void insurance policies for fires caused in this manner. Several houses in Greenfield have gotten afire as the result of this method, and in some places bouses bave burned as a result.

"It is undoubtedly true that when a house has been painted over and over again there comes to be an accumulation of paint in bunches. If new paint is put on top of these accumulations of paint are unnecessary. These old-timers lay the blame partly on the painter who fails to brush his paint in well, partly on the custom of painting ind amp weather or not allowing sufficient time for drying between coats, and partly to the use of adulterated paints instead of old-fashloned linseed oil and pure white lead. The paper says:

"Many of the old householders say that if care is taken at all these points it is absolutely unnecessary to bave paints burned off. They advise that people who have bouses painted should be restwent to make the write lead. The latter is more often tampered with than the oil. Earthy substances, and pulverized roc

The Ohio Republican convention praised President Roosevelt because of railroad rate legislation and then endorsed Senator Foraker who lead the fight against the railroad rate bill—consistency with a vengeance.

The primary election on the 6th of November must go through without the semblance of fraud, or the boys in the trenches will be heard from as never before. Party ties are not near so binding as they were years ago, and a square deal all around only will retain the voters in line for the final clash.

The farmers of Butler county have the best corn crop they have ever raised in the history of the county, but the tobacco crop has been greatly damaged by rains. The farmers also claim the worms are the worst they have ever known, and hands cannot be secured at any price. A great many of the farmers' wives and children are helping to kill worms.

A statistical paper on India, just issued, shows that in 1904 there were killed in that country by snakes and wild beasts 24,034 persons—21,850 by snake bites, 796 by tigers, 399 by leopards, and the rest by other animals. The number of cattle killed was 98,582. The other side of the account shows that 65,146 snakes and 16,121 wild animals were killed.

The United States consumes 26,872,700 barrels of salt annually or a barrel for every three persons in the land. Last year 95.7 per cent. consum-ed. was produced within this country. In 1880 the consump-tion was 9,384,263 barrels. Thus we see that the United States uses three times as much salt as they used twenty-six years ago.

The Indianapolis Star says: "If Mr. Bryan had kept himself entirely free from poitics, if he had presented the ideas he had drawn from a study of conditions in other countries, treating them in an purely impersonal way, and as having no bearing on party conditions in his own country, in short, if he had posed as a simple citizen instead of a partisan, his Presidential boom would still be growing instead of being a punctured balloon."

His balloon does not seem to be badly punctured.

Kentucky's financial and commercial prosperity has been proven by the statistics of banks and capital in the Southern States, noted by the Manufacturer's Record, which says: "Texas leads in the number of new bank organizations, 388, and in the amount of aggregate capital, $14,570,000. with Kentucky second in number, 61, and in capital $4,195,000. Contrast the respective areas of the two leading States and the statement is a greater source of pride to Kentuckians. Other statistics show that the entire South is on the financial upgrade, and that it rapidly taking its place as a serious factor in the business interests of the United States. Of Interest to Farmers.

It is a well noted fact that land constantly improves under the influence and practice of dairying. What is grown on the land is largely returned to it by cow feeding. This is quite fully shown in some European countries. It is said that in the dairy countries there, the land grows better crops than it did 50 years ago. Denmark is the best example of this. Thirty years ago agriculture there was at a low beb, and the people were coming to America in swarms. Now, after, their dairy industry has been built up, very few are leaving home, and the Danish farmers appear to be the most intelligent and the most prosperous in all Europe. What has been said above in regard to the increase in fertility in soil is also true of Germany, Switzerland, the Channel Islands and the dairy parts of England. The same is true in this country where dairying has become the leading industry, is shown in Iowa and Wisconsin.

Much excitement and comment has been created in political circles by the declaration made by Secretary of War Taft in his Bath (Maine) speech last week that he favored a revision of the tariff. Democrats as well as Republicans gave it much thought. The Democratic feeling was one of glee, while Republicans were inexpressibly surprised. Revision has become the Democratic battle cry for the congressional campaign, and "stand pat" their slogan after the conference at Oyster Bay three or four weeks ago. Speaker Cannon and other leading Republicans have been proclaiming the doctrine of "stand-patism" on the stump, and the Republican Committee has been flooding the country with literature of that character. Even the President subscribed to it in his carefully prepared letter to Represen tative J. A. Watson, of Ind., a few weeks ago. On the other hand, Democratic leaders have been advocating revision with much earnestness and consistency, while their Campaign Committee has been disseminating revision literature throughout the Union. Therefore it is easy to understand why Secretary Taft's declaration of revision has stirred up the politicians. He virtually repudiated the Republican program and indorsed the chief issue of the Democrats. His famous speech at Akron, Ohio, last October, assailing George B. Cox and bossism, did not cause such amazement as his utterances at Bath.

The taxpayers of Boone county should remember that all taxes must be paid by the 1st of November which is a month sooner than under the old law. Within fifteen days after, the Sherifi is required to make out a list of all delinquents and file it with the County Clerk. The clerk must then make out tax warrants, return them to the sheriff who must levy and sell to collect the taxes at once. To avoid the penalty, advertising and cost, see the sheriff, who is making his last round of the different precincts, and pay your taxes and save him the trouble of levying on your property.

Many Difficulties.

Many Difficulties.

The tobacco growers have had more than the usual difficulties with which to contend this sesson. In the first place the crop was slow about starting to grow, but it finally got a start; and the frequent rains kept it too busy growing to have time to ripen as it should. Some of the crops that have been cut and put in the house is house-burning, while in some instances the crop has grown until it exceeds the house room at command, and is so late in maturing that help to house it in time can not be secured. Just now the indications are that some of the growers will lose a considerable per cent of their acreage unless the weather for the next few weeks is decidedly favorable to the work of saving the crop.

An exchange says: "A local newspaper is absolutely necessary to any community. It is the home paper that keeps the people of the community in touch with each other by giving them all the news of their own neighborhood and county. For that alone they are of value and worth far more than the small sub-cription price. They keep the local pride and in various ways are worth far more to a community than a community ever spends on them. The daily paper, with its large news service and quicker facilities, may, in some instances overshadow the weekly, but the weekly home paper fills a place in the hearts of the people that a daily camnot fill. It comes to your home as an old and tried friend, while the daily enters as a stranger.

An Impertant Election.

On the first Saturday of October school trustees are to be elected in every district. There is no election that is of as much real importance. It is more important to Kentucky—to all of us—to have the best men in control of the eshools than to have an able Gersenor or popular Senator. There is no election held under the laws of Kentucky. Women participate and money and whisky don't. There is no election easier to attend, for it is within a mile or two of your home. No other election, fact it is within a mile or two of your home. No other election, affects your home and family so directly; for school "affairs are practically home affairs, and school interests are home interests. As you value your rights, as you recognize your duty to your community and regard your children's welfars, you are urged to go to this election, and not to leave these matters to chance and neglect. The polls will open at one o'clock, p. m., and close at six. Two officers are necessary, a judge and a clerk; and they are to be chosen by the voters at the opening of the polls. If two or more assemble, hold the election and certify it to the County Superintendent. If the trustees don't come out to bring the poll-sheet and open the school house, hold the election anyhow and it will be legal.

Early last. Wedneeday unorning a telephone message was received from Constance requesting that an officer be sent there at once to make an arrest. The request was so urgent that it was surmised that Constance had had another eruption, and constable J. M. Eddins hastened to what he expected had been or would be a scene of blood shed, but when he reached Constance there was not a speck of a war cloud anywhere in sight, his services being wanted only to arrest one Nunnery, who was indicted at the last term of the Boone circuit court for ascanling and beating Southpate Anderson. Nunnery lives in Kenton county, close to the Boone and Kenton line, and when he goes to the city he passes over a road in Boone county for a distance of several hundred yards, and as it was known he was going to the city that day it was planned to arrest him while on Boone county territory. When the constable arrived Nunnery had gone to the city, and the officer went into camp and awaited his return, while those who expected to see trouble watched him from a distance. For several hours and in a denohing rain constable Eddins guarded the road. Some time in the afternoon Nun nery crossed into Boone on his way home, and was accested by the officer, who informed him of his business, and no resistance being shown, those who expected trouble were very agreeably disappointed. Nunnery and the constable started to find some one to sign his bond for $100 for his appearance for trial at the next term of the circuit court. The bond being given Nunnery was discharged, and he went on his way rejoicing, while the officer made a break for Burlington none the worse for his experience although he braved a drenching rain for several hours.

The College Degree.

The degree, giving habit, says the World's Work, came to us from the English universities, and the medieval badge once meant something to educated men. But now, remarks the writen it no longer has any special significance to any body of men, and men of actual attainment are quietly dropping the explanatory letters that are supposed to indicate their educational achievements. Nowadays a college, graduate has spent from two to they years in an institution where he may have eaten a substantial intellectual meal, or may have tasted instead a vast aumber of tempting educational dishes—or merely had a good time and hired a coach to do the required thinking. He may have entered college after a thorough training in a good fitting school, or he may have been "cally unprepared for any higher studies. Under such conditions the conferring of degrees is a piece of scholissite buncombe, endeared by tradition and of some supposed commercial benefit to the recipients. It is natural enough that young people in college should confound the taking of a degree with the getting of an education. But what is really more ismentable is that American colleges seem unable to put their stamp upon their graduates in some more enduring manner than 5y giving them little rolls of parchment and the right to add some capital "letters to their names.

Earthquake a Health Tonlo.
There was too, in San Francisco, an improvement in the general health of the people after the earthquake. It is an undoubted fact that a great many women who were in a poor state of health before the shock, with bad appetites and defective digestion, are now eating sil they can get and digesting it without trouble, while the mental condition, which so often accompanies the dyspeptic state, has equally improved. The explanation, says the London Hogsital, is as simple as it is rational. These people were fortunately deprived of their drams, alcohol and luxuries; they had nothing but simple food, and they were compelled to take exercise in the open air to get it. The men have found it possible to live without cigars or whisky and the ladies with open air to get it. The men have found it possible to live without clgars or whisky and the ladies without candy. They have cooked their simple meals in the streets, to the better ventilation of their houses; for lack of light they have gone to bed early, with the compensation that they have risen with the lark. They have had the enforced benefits of a sanitarium, and good health is the result.

Women are sometimes regarded as likely to lose their heads and grow hysterical with fear in times of suden danger, but every little while some incident occurs which puts them in another light. An open car billed with passengers ran away down a long hill in New York the other day. When it was found that the car was beyond spontrol many passengers screamed and jumped and some were badly hurt, says the Youth's Companion. A woman who had a baby in badly hurt, says the Youth's Com-panion. A woman who had a baby in her arms stood csimly up in her place, motioned to a man on the street who was watching the ap-proaching car, tossed the baby to him as the car-passed, and then sat down. The man caught the baby, and in a few moments the mother walked back, thanked him, and took the child. Nothing panicky about that!

Ocean reight rates are kept remarkably firm considering the tree mendous increase in the world's output of ships. There were put in the water on the Clyde in June a greater tonnage than was ever before floated in any one district. Lloyd says there are now 377,500,000 tons of merchantile ships and over 30,000 vessels. Of these two-thirds are steamers and the others saliers. British yards alone floated 207 vessels during the first half of the present year, the tonnage of which exceeded that of any previous six months by more than 100,000 tons.

All the old sayings seem in a fair way to be disproved. That lightning does strike twice in the same place has been demonstrated. In fact, down at Cape Henry, Va., it struck the same place twice in the same day, and that was the rekson why the wireless tel-egraph station went out of business temporarity.

The explosion occurred at eight o'clock Friday morning. The freight car, belonging to the Pennsylvania radiroad lines, contained 450 boxes, about 20,000 pounds, of high explosixes consigned to the Rand Powder company, at Clearfield, Tenn.

SAGE WILL CASE COMPROMISED.

Heirs to Get Double Amount of Their Legacles.

New York.—The will of Russell Sage was presented to the surgest Friday, and proved without contest. Counsel for the executor announced that Mrs. Sage intends to give to each of Mr. Sage's relatives who are beneficiaries under the will an additional sum equal to the amount of his or her legacy, provided there is no contest. Under this settlement Coonrad will receive $12,500, instead of $6,250, and each of the 26 nephews and nieces of Mr. Gage who wore to receive $25,000, will be given $50,000.

tire Fishing Fleet of 600 Vesseli Lost in Typhoon—Troops Ald in Clearing Up Wreckage.

Hong-Kong. — The entire fleet of 600 flshing junks was lost in the typhoon. This increases the mortality to 10,000 persons.

The losses are estimated at several million dollars. More than 1,000 sampana and junks are insting from Hong-Kong atone. Wharves were swept away and houses collapsed. The military barracks are in ruins.

Twelve ships were sunk, 24 were stranded, seven were damaged, and one-half of the native craft in port were sunk.

The steamers Monteagle, Fatshan, Keungshan, Wing Chai, Hermania, Castellano, Tak Hing, Emma Luyken, Sam Rosario, Slava, Pakhong, Petrarch, Chum Lee, Sexta, Sunon, Chang Sha, Signal and Chinkal Maru are ashore.

The American ship S. P. Hitchcock was also driven ashore, as were many of the launches that run shout the harbor.

The steamers Kwong Chow, San Chewng, Sorsogon and Kongmoen were sunk. The steamer Apenrade and Johanne are partly awash.

Practically all the Bsiuchistan troops and 300 of the West Kent regiment are co-operating in clearing the wreckage of the recent typhoon. Prodigious efforts are being made in the recovery of dead bodies, which are being carried off in cartiodas. Cogstable Munday, who is superintending the work-collapsed and has been removed to a hospital.

As a result of the typhoon the Royal Dutch Petroleum company's lighter, loaded with oil, while being pumped ont into tanks, was stranded, but was subsequently refloated. The company's pier was damaged to the extent of 330,000. Manager Murray and staff were instrumental in saving the lives of 100 men and women and children, who have been housed, clothed and fed on the company's premises.

Shipping has been resumed, but is ampered by the inadequate supply of steam launches and lighters. The former command $180 and the latter, $100 for-hire each working day.

The Chinese are evincing the most remarkable spontaneity in subscribing to relef funds. for the typhoon surferers. A senattance of $10,000 has been received from the Chinese of San Francisco.

DEAF TO THE CRIES FOR JUSTICE

THE FRENZIED ATLANTA MOR

Though Assailed Victim Finds Him Innocent—It is Thought None of the Victims Was Gulity.

the Victims Was Gulity.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 24.—Unawed by the presence of the state troops, over 1,000 men strong, who are patrolling the principal streets of the city, some of the rowdy elements, still thirsting for negro blood, tried to reorganize the mob that successfully lynched 11 megroes Saturday.

The rioters managed to gather only a few dangerous crowds, one of which quickly dispatched another negro in the afternoon. This man, like those killed previously, was apparently innocent of crime.

Two negroes had been arrested on suspidon of being concerned in the asault on Mrs. Arnold. The prisoners were taken to the woman's house, but she evened unable to positively identify either of them as her assallant. She thought, however, that one of them, who called himself Jack Murray, was the gulity man. She refused to make any charge against Henry Moore, his companion.

was the guilty man. She refused to make any charge against Henry Moore, his companion.

Took the Wrong Man.

The officers-started to jall with both negroes, but on the way Jack Murray, who was suspected by Mrs. Arnold, escaped. The officers continued with Jack Movre. On Marletta street some one raised the cry that the officers had Mrs. Arnold's assailant.

Almost instantly a crowd surrounded the officers, took the negro and riddled him with bullets. With his dying breath he asserted his innoceace. The tragedy was witnessed by many people, among them some children who were playing on the street.

Gov. Terrell, having placed the city practically under martial law, there was no general recrudescence during the Sabbath of the negro hunting by white mobs, which resulted in the death of 12 negroes and two white men and the ounding more or less seriously of fully 100 negroes and half as many whites.

It was 4 o'clock in the morning before a semblance of order was restored in the city. At 2 o'clock Gov. Terrell ordered out all the state tro-ps in the city and placed the situation in charge of Coi. Clifford Anderson. As soon as Ool, Anderson could get in touch with his subordinates he distributed squads over the city, placing them at strategic points, and in a short while the situation was greatly improved.

This meant passing through the rebei camp. Gen. Guerra sent a message to Gen. Avalos that this might lead to an excounter, sand that he would not be responsible for the outcome. Gen. DIETS AND THE DOCTORS.

Not Condemned.

With what the vegetarians who est no meat and the rheumatic-sufferers who est no fruit and the gouly who takes no nitrogen if they knew it and the dysapptics who est only foodless foods, life stands to lose one of its chief loys, a square meal, says the Medical Journal. And it is not quite true that instater rises superior to theory and that after all people est what is good for them. Readers and thinkers are deeply influenced by chemical symbols and it is not rare for a pallid dysapptic of thegulosis tendencies to endeavor to practice the economies of metabolism ingeniously set forth by some of the physiological chemiets. It is high time somebody raised avoice in sprotest, for surely no people stand is so little need of this counsel as do ours. Our hustling population requires a good deal of nutriment and is suffering from leak rather, than repletion.

As a race possibly we have not counset as 500 ours. Our nustump population requires a good deal of nutriment and is suffering from lack rather, than repletion.

As a race possibly we have not lived long enough in America to be thoroughly acclimated.

* We apeak of the effete populations of Europe, but no one who has seen them would ever call the European peoples effete, and the impression is inetfaceable that what we need here is better cooked food and more of it, rather than the diet of fads that now captivate our nervous countrymen. It would certainly be difficult to construct any scheme of diet on which the profession would agree.

There is scarcely an article but finds condemnation somewhere among us. The banana, dear to childhood, is denounced by the paediatriet as unwholesome, though whole populations live upon it; while no printed diet list would include pork and bacon, which pr. Woods Hutchinson insists are the keystônes of our national greatness. Even in the dietetics of disease—this rather than health being our chosen realm—utter confusion and disagreement reign. Chemical formulas of horritying elaboration lead one to condemn red meat in gout, another to pronounce it a nutriment readily assimilable and easily disposed of. And the quarries over foodsuffs permissible to the rheumatic are equaled only by those over carbohydrates in grave diabetes. It is a crying need of the time that the profession reaches a consensus of conviction and teachings on the basic facts of nutrition in health and disease before they attack the more verial's supersititions and absurdities of a much beset laity. First of all, better, shall we not cast out the beam that is in our own eye?

TYPICAL INDIANS.

The Average Person So Considers Northwest Plains Tribes.

The northwest plains Indian is, the average person, the typical American Indian, the indian of our schoolday books—powerful—of physique, statuesque, gorgoous in dress, with the bravery of the firm believer. In predestination, says Serbner's Magazine. The constant, fearless hunting and slaughtering of the buffalo trained him to the greatest physical endurance, and gave an inbred desire for bloodshed. Thousands of peace-loving, agricultural living Indians might cilmb book in the clouds, and attract homes, till their miniature farms, attend their flocks, and at night time cilmb back up the winding stalrs to their home in the clouds, and attract no attention. But If a fierce band of

The plains tribes in earlier times were certainly-true—nomads. For—time, in the depths of winter, they camped in the shelter of some forest along the streams. Other than that, wherever roamed a herd of buffalo there also wandered the bands of northern indians. The very existence of these tribes seemed bound to that lodges were built. With the hair off, the hiddes durnished the robes for the coverings. The meat, prepared in many ways, with the addition of a few roots and berries, furnished their entire food. Advancing civilization

TARIFF WAR IN SIGHT DILEMMA FOR STAND-PATTERS

GERMANY RESENTS STAND OF 1

Protection is allowly nearing the end

This stand-pat policy with hold good a few years longer if the Republicans fall, and then cerry the national election in 1905, as they would then have more than an even chance of doing.

Yet there is a canker worm eating at the heart of protectionism that will compel tariff revision in spite of the stand-patters, for the markets of the world are about to be closed to our manufactured products, although our exports of food and raw material will still continue as long as we can sell the cheapest to those countries that must purchase.

Short-Sighted Avarics.
The canker work is the avarice of the trusts and manufacturers, who have prevented the ratification of recipracity treaties with foreign countries, notably Germany, and inretailiation she has created a new maxmum and minimum tariff law, which as to its maximum raices is virtually prohibitiver.
Germany now holds that we have no favored nation agreement with her, in her sense of the term, and is incensed at our not fulfilling our agreement-to-revise commer the administrative conditions imposed on imports as provided in the Payme bill of last our administration has broken faith with her by accepting modifications of her tariff, while still imposing the utmost requirements to four own. Germany evidently believes that President Roosevel, who exhibited such control of congress on many matters

So great has been the Increase in the world's gold supply since the discoveries of gold in Alaska and South Africa, and the Invention of new and better methods of treating the ores, that it has been necessary to revise, the dictionaries used in Wall street, where an abundance of money was formerly called "inflating" and denounced as an unmitigated evil. They now call abundance on the gold basis "expansion." A dispatch sent out from Wall street to the Washington Star of August 5, says:

"In speaking of the continuous increase in the world's volume of money, due to the enlarged production of gold, care is taken in financial quarters to avoid the use of the worl "inflated." Bankers and business men do not like the idea which the use of that word expresses. They prefer 'expansion." It sounds better and does not give rise to such unpleasant thoughts. They prefer to foster the theory that the stupendous increase in the quantity of money which is constantly going on represents an entirely healthy growth and that the money structure is building solidly from rock foundations. Some discussion is going on about what the Republicans would do towards revising the tariff, if the Demorate elect a majority of the next congress.

Such a slap in the face to the vested interests, as to have to

Such a slap in the face to the vested interests, as to have to settle with a Democratic majority would bring protectionism to the point where it would be politically would bring protectionism to the point where it would be politically dangerous to stand-pat any longer.

As protectionism is the principal issue in the present campaign for congress, the defeat of the Republicans would be a declaration by the majority of the voters of the country for tarliff reform.

Could the Republican leaders afford to finore such a mandate by refusing next winter to pass tariff revision bill at the session of the present congress, or would they continue to atand pat and allow the trusts and combines to continue their legalized plundering of the American people?

What would President Roosevelt do in such a dilemma? Would he call congress in special session, or continue to stand pat, notwithstanding the expression of public opinion that protection of trusts must cease? To attempt to postpone the matter until the regular session of the Sixtieth congress convenes in December, 1907, would only bring the issue more plainly before the people in the following national campaign.

The Democratic majority in the house of representatives would, or course, pass a tariff reform measure, and the Republican senate would have to reject it, or amend and pass it. To amend it, in the interest of the trusts and protected monopolists, or refect it, or refuse to consider it, would only add fuel to the popular fire that has been for some time difficunt to keep within control.

It will be an inferesting political condition that the Republicans will have to face, if the voters decide to elect a Democratic majority to the Sixtieth congress.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN BOOK Roosevelt to Paint Word Pictures of Party'e Accomplishments.

Partye Accomplishments.

It is comforting to know that "the proof" of the Republican campaign text-book is in the hands of President Roosevelt-for-revision and approval. We shall soon thus know where the G. O. P. and the president stand on disputed questions. We know that Speaker Cannon has induced the president to stand pat on the tariff, but it will be more certain how strong the stand-pat attitude of the president is, to see it in print, revised and approved.

Chairman Sherman, of the Republican congressional committee, after an interview with the president, informs a waiting public, that "the book will be a stand-pat document, with word pictures of the record of the Republican party and reasons why that party should be kept is power."

What picturesque language may we not expect when the editor has added the word painting. The chapter on Panama and Santo Domingo and the Philippines will be worth all the dollar and to think that Mr. Roosevelt's achievements—for he, at present, is the Republican party—edited my himself, with his inmost thoughts laid hare and his trumpet appeal to the voters to once more stand pat for the O. O. P. and victory, can all be obtained for one dollar and your name enrolled on the scroll of fame as a subscriber to Republican success.

Chance for Roosevelt.

Why does not Neighbor Roosevelt.

Chance for Rossevit.

Why does not Neighbor Rossevit break into the riparian rights game at Oyster Bay and settle this old standing feud amongst the neighbors? It needs some stout champion to stand up for the people, for their access to the water they own is being cut off by corporations, or individuals in eyery direction. It is getting so in many places that the people have to pay to see their own see and reach their own lakes and rivers.

Republican Stench.

The people of the United States have had a big job of political house cleaning and the Republican house-cleaning and the Republican house-keeper that allowed things to get into such a rotten mess wiff have to be dismissed before a thorough reformation can be expected. The scandals, corruption and gratting are a stench in the nostrils of the nation and there is nothing else to do but to "turn the rascals out."

When Rooseveit is Inactive.

Just before the senate voted to yield to the demands of the Standard Oil company by emasculating the rate bill, Senator Tillman said: "The public is bamboosile devery day, but the burrah goes on. The president assures us from time to time that crimes of the Standard Oil company are to be punished, but when it comes to a real fight and when there is an opportunity to do something, he sits dumb."

Serrow Style From Britain.

As the Republicans borrowed militarism from Europe they now propose to import and pay a British tailor to see that the clothes of the American soldier fit properly and are made ornamental eaough to suit "the borrowed practice of a large standing army.

FOOT RACE

Suggested to McCreary by Beckham to Settle Senatorial Battle.

Louisville, Ky.—There might have been a unique day in Kentucky's history if Gov. Beckham and Senator McCreary had reelly meant what they said when one submitted a proposition for a foot race to settle the senatorial question and the other quickly took it up. The governor and the senator met at the state fair and hobnobbed together for a large portion of the time. They were in the judges' stand waiting for the calling of a race when the governor suddenly said: "Senator, we might as well settle this question now as any other time. Suppose we go out on the track and have a foot race for the nomination for senator." Quick as a fash Senator McCreary came back: "That is perfectly agreeable to me," the said, "but I would suggest that the distance be a mile, that we may better test the running qualities of each." Among those in the stand was Gen. John B. Castleman, and for a moment every one accepted the challenge seriously. But the proposed foot race passed into the 1996 campaign joke book.

The Value of an Education,

The Value of an Education.

The average educated man gets $1,000 per year. He works forty years, making a total of $40,000 in a life time. The average day laborer gets $1.50 per day, 300 days in the year, or $450 per year. In ten years he earns $4,500, or $18,-000 in a lifetime. The difference between $40,000 and $18,000, or $22,-000, equals the value of an education in dollars. To acquire this earning capacity requires twelve years of school of 130 days each, or a total of 2,160 days. Divide $22,000 value of an education, by 2,160, number of days required in getting it, and we find that each day at school is worth a little more than $10 to the pupil.

Bacteria in Milk.

It is suggestive, if not in fact a cheering, sign of the times that in the published lists of exhibits at the numerous county fairs round about there appear so many inventions and devices for the better care and handling of milk. It was the statement of a member of the state department of agriculture, recently publicly made, that one-fourth of the farmers send their milk to the butter and cheese factories with enough bacteria to contaminate with the county of cleanlines and healthfulness in milk supplied direct to the consumer does not give sufficient concern. With the question of the treatment of milk the inventors of appliances, the scientists and authorities must deal; the question of cleanliness is simpler and one with which all with ordinary intelligence may deal. And lack of cleanliness is the great failing on the average farm. Even in the cleanest possible modes of milking by hand there directions. cleanlness is the great failing on the average farm. Even in the cleanest possible modes of milking by hand there are 300 serms to the cubic centimeter of milk, and in the average milk there are 10,000 to 13,000, while the number in cases of unclean milk sometimes rises as high as 40,000. Nine-tenths of the foreign matter contained in the ordinary can of milk may be kept out without expense by the exercise of care. But as there is no effect without eaues, so in this multitude of inventions for the better handling of milk there may be traced a growing desire on the part of the farmers to meet the demands for improvement, says the Troy Times. That the demand is apparent and growing in popular vigor each approach the remotest doubt. ent and growing in popular there is not the remotest doubt.

Alcohol as a Fuel.

We have in ethyl alcohol an ideal fuel—colorless, limpid, of moderate boiling point, about 50 degrees below that of water, non-freesing, burning without smoke, mixing with water in all proportions, and therefore its fiame extinguished by water, cleanly, drying off completely when spilled, not attracting rubber gaskets or packings, and noncorrosive for metal tanks and holders. The fact that its fiame is bluish, or so-called nonluminous, means-that the flame is almost devold of free carbon particles, with their intense heat radiating power, a fact of considerable importance. When gasoline or heavy olfs are burning, the flame, loaded with free carbon or soot, of considerable importance. When gasoline or heavy olis are burning, the flame, loaded with free carbon or soot, radiates heat to such a degree that it is not possible to approach near the conflagration, and combustible surroundings are readily fired by pure radiation of heat. The production of alcohol on a large scale is simple, and the raw materials already exist in considerable variety. All saccharine or starchy growths are available. Saccharine wastes are now largely used in Cuba for alcohol production. This alcohol will, in a properly originated engline, equal, volume for rolling, gasoline now sold at a much higher price in producing power, says Cassier's Magazine. Even in the jimmediate future, then, it is evident that alcohol has a large field of usefulness. The farmer need not depend on wood, coal or oil for his power. His agricultural wastes will furnish it. His fields need only receive the sumbles and the contractive of the contractive the sumbles and the contractive of the co furnish it. His fields need only re-ceive the sunshine and be given sufficient water, and thence any crop yielding starch or sugar, however un-marketable otherwise, may be made the source of power, light and heat.

It has been many years since the Wall street district has been so overrun with gamblers and criminals as now, says the New York Times. There was a time when the Wall street police had a "dead line" beyond which no known crook was allowed to pass, but it seems to have gradually disappeared. Gambling in divers degrees, distinct from stock exchange speculation, and petty graft and a myriad form, of "low finance" flourish in an amazing measure in the financial district and its purificus. Small bucket shops are numerous. At a place on Broad street a faro bank is running full blast. It is usually filled with brokers' clerks. "If these young fellows cannot get sway at any other time of the day," said a former detective, "they come here at their tunch-con hour. The proprietor furnishes them with an elegant free Junch from noon until three o'clock, and they drop a few dollars on the game."

Water in Epidemics.
The relation of water to germs and epidemics is a subject full of interest from the standpoint of public hygiene. In the "Revue Scientifique" Dr. Malmejac discusses the whole subject of the experiments which have been made from 1885 to the present day to test this question, and especially with respect to Eberth's bacilius, which is that of typhus. All that is known of this bacilius—its vitaiity, habits and reproduction—is dwelt upon, with the result of showing that it subsists longer than any other in sterilized water. Dr. Maimejac's conclusion is that water should be regarded as a true am, blent for germa, and not as an accidental channel, and, above all, that pathogeneous germs may live in water or a sufficient length of time to cause epidemics.

a bucket of water. An old pot handle, a snail shell, or anything of the sort would do.

But the thing he loved best of all was an empty bottle. Clasping it in his fore paws he would waddle slowly to the bucket with the bottle clasped close to his breast and then roll it and rinse it in the water. If anyone wentured to disturb him he was furrous and threw himself upon his back, clinging so tightly to his beloved bottle that he could be lifted by it.

Groos says that bears will do the, same sort of thing. He relates the case of a polar bear which used to roll an old iron pot to and tro in his tank, and then, lifting it out, rub it up and down in a trough of running water. He stood on his hind legs and used his fore paws exactly like awasherwoman washing clothes.

Y WAY FOR PEOPLE TO

The appropriations made by the congress at its last sees on reached the enormous total of $879,589,185.18.

That equals about $11 for every man, woman and child in the country, or for the average family of five persons a tax of $56 ts paid. These federal taxes are not paid according to the ability, or the amount of property, owned by the people, but are imposed on poor and rich alike. Under many of the tariff ach end to the tariff tax higher on the poorer-grade of imports than on the most costly. For instance, on shoddy, from which much cheap clothing is made, the tariff tax $260 per cent., while on wool of the best quality the average duty is 46.84 per cent. Blankets valued at not more than 40 cents a pound are taxed 104.48 per cent, while the finest quality valued over 50 cents a pound, are taxed 72.10 per cent, and many other examples might be quoted.

The internal revenue taxes on cigars are even more inequitable, for the common atogic pays the same tax as the finest cigar manufactured in the United States.

Then there is the extra trust profit that is paid, which mounts the tax up to mich more than the government collects, for as the tariff tax prevents imports and therefore competition on the common quality of goods, the trusts can raise the prices they charge to what imported goods would cost, after paying the tariff tax freight and charges.

It is estimated by the most competent relatisticians that the trust tax is four times greater than that ariff tax because there is comparatively little imported of the cheap extra the contract of the contract o a wagon, virtually useless and no., less.

Think this over, and you must arrive at the same conclusion.

Ive at the same conclusion.

United States Collecting Agency.

Dispatches from Washington declare that "the outsioms receipts of the Republic of Santo Domingo are rapidity increasing under the American protectorate." That sounds very well. But the United States senate has twice rejected the treaty which established this "protectorate," as a violation of the federal constitution. The "protectorate." is a Rouseveltian affair entirely, and seems to be conducted in the interest of Rockfeller's National City bank entirely, though at the expense of American taxpayers. It is an outrage against the government of the United States. What legal right has President Rocsevelt to use American ships and American officers to collect money from foreigners for the benefit of his pet bankers?

Protection and idleness

Protection and idiences.

The window glass manufacturers are loaded, according to the New York Journal of Commerce, "with 2,000,000 boxes of glass, a third of a year's supply, which they have decided to work off at the present market prices before opening up the factories again." The men have been idle almost a year and want to work. This shows that ultra protectionsim does not protect even the workers in this tariff protected industry, and everyone has to pay double price for glass, because the tariff provents competition and thus keeps the price unpasconable. The workmen are idle more than half the time under this system, and yet the Republicans stand pat.

Every Democrat should see to it that his Republican neighbors are enlightened as the wisdom of Democrat that his Republican neighbors are enlightened as the wisdom of Democrat the policities of the welfare of the whole popels. There welfare of the whole popels. There welfare of the whole popels. There welfare of the publicas in the minds of many Republicas in the welfare of the trusts and the vast merger of the wealth of the country in a few hands is in consequence of the lway passed by congress, when controlled by the Republicans. The great increase in the cost of living can be mainly charged to the tariff sheltering the trusts and combines by protecting those corporations from for eign competition. There have been several comprehensive speeches made on the tariff and trust issues by Congressman Powne which, coming from a former Republican, especially appeals to Republicans.

A Democratic house of representatives will also investigate the government departments, where many scandals lurk that have been hidden and suppressed by the Republicans, "for the good of the party."

It will also mean that when the next congress meets in December, 1997, the law for the control of the railroad rates can be amended to meet any changes found necessary by the interstate commerce commission, or to cover any provision of that law that may be decided as unconstitutional.

The Republican leaders, from President Roosevelt down, have decided

The Republican leaders, from President Roosevelt down, have decided and declared they will stand pat on the trust-fostering tariff, which is the main cause of the enormous concentration of wealth in few hands and the enormous increase in the cost of living. To stand pat and submit to be plundered by the trusts is un-American, and the Democratic party confidently appeals to independent Republican voters to join in reforms that are imperatively needed for the welfare of the people.

dare of the people.

Wage Earners and Republican Congressmen.

The report of the state labor bureau of Massachusetts for 1905 shows that there was an average of 453,105 persons employed in 5,019 manufacturing establishments, and wages were paid amounting to 2217,934,344. This is a little less than $471 each and does not by any means keep pace with the increased cost of living. For this only shows an increase in wages since 1837 of about 29 per cent, and the cost of living for the manufacturers and the period 47 per cent. The basis of prosperity still seems to hang up in the stocking of the manufacturers and the protected trusts—there are 22 industrial combinations included in the labor report—rather than in the stockings of the workingmen. Will these wage earners continue to vote for Republican congressmen who votes for a Republican speaker fastens the stand-pat collar around his neck.

What Kind of Reform is This?

What Kind of Reform is This? Our wonderful reform administration seems to be trying to look two ways at the same time, for the staff correspondent of the Washington Star, writing from Pittaburg, says; "Mr. Emery and the men back of him have still another handicap in the fight that is being made against the Penrose forces. The dominant issue that is put forward as the reason for President Roosevelt's support of the 'machine' is the necessity to secure the election of all the members of congress possible from Pennsylvania." As all the Pennsylvania Republican congressmen but one are for the corrupt Penrose machine and are naturally opposed to reforms of all kinds, the president is evidently, accerding to this Republican newspaper, quite astained with that brand of cattle marked 'machine." If old Boss Quay was alive he would evidently be as welcome a visitor at the White House and Oyster Bay as Penrose is. Reform! Reform! What trimes are committed in thy name! What Kind of Reform is This?

CALL LATEST RULING OF COM MERCE COMMISSION UNFAIR.

RAILROAD ADS BARRED

Say There is Nothing in the Law That Calls for Such an Interpre-tation — The Commission Flooded with "Kicks."

Washington.-The recent ruling of Washington.—The recent ruling of the interstate commerce commission to the effect that "nothing but money can be paid for transportation we either persons or property," means that in future the railroads will be prohibited from exchanging transportation for advertising space in the newspapers of the country.

The ruling has already aroused a storm of protest from the publishers throughout the country. Every mall into Washington brings hundreds of letters from newspaper men all of which severely criticise the commission for "going out of it's way to hit the newspapers." The publishers in sist-that there is nothing in the new law hich would in any way forbid the railroads from purchasing advertising space to be paid for in transportation, and that such a ruling is not only uncalled for by either the letter or the spirit of the law, but is unconstitutional as well.

One prominent publisher said a day

One prominent publisher said a day or two ago:

"There is not only nothing in the new rate law which would call for such a ruling as this from the commission, but the ruling is antagonistic to the national constitution as well, and it will not be upheld by the courts. The railroads that desire publicity through the medium of my publication make advertising contracts with me, and pay me for the space used with transportation-which is the same as money to me as it is used by myself or my employes in connection with my business. The government might with equal justice say the merchant could not give dry goods or any other marketable commodity in crchange for advertising space. The courts would not uphold such a ruling as that for one moment, and there is no more reason why they should uphold this lastest erration of the-commerce commission, for it is equally as untenable as the proposition between the publisher and the exception of advertising affect the interests of the general public in any way, but it does saist in making the prosperity of the American newspapers and periodicals. The transportation that is given to newspapers in exchange for advertising affect the interests of the general public for transportation for either the prosperity of the American newspapers and periodicals. The transportation that is given to newspapers in exchange for advertising affect the interests of the general public for transportation for either persons or property. It is a benefit to the ratiroads in that it enables for their nay way the equitable enforcement of the rate hay, nor does it affect in any way the capital and uncalled for ruling, and both the publishers and deventually lead jo a reduction of transportation for either persons or property. It is a benefit to the ratiroads in that it enables them to do a greater amount of advertising one to the general public it is an unjust and un both the publishers and the railroads should fight it."

That publishers are fighting it, not only by their protests to the commission but by protesting to their representatives in both houses of congress is proven by the fact that aiready the commission is receiving communications from many senators and congressmen in which these representatives of the people declare they had no intention of passing a law that would affect the newspapers in this way, and that there is nothing in the inew law which calls for such a ruling on the part of the commission.

Unable to Work.

There are instances in great number where mining operations were temporarily suspended by a shortage of funds or by water flooding the property, but it remained for Mohawk, a small station along the Southern Pacific, to furnish a new cause which is unique in the history of mining. The company affected owns the Red Cross mines in the Mohawk mountains. Millions of bees, attracted by the water at these mines and forced from their hives in the mountains by the drought, took possession of the water supply, and their numbers were so great that it was found impossible to drive the swarms away. Consequently the mines have been shut down until the rainly season sets in, when it is hoped the bees will return to their mountain homes.—Sacramento Bee.

Mentucky. Post of the 9th ult., says:

"In Covington a Republican administration, when it came into power, found a water works that was in good running order. The citizens were getting good, clear water. It was so clear that the people of Covington boasted of it to their Cincinnait friends. From the time the Republicans have had charge there has been a steady retrograde movement. The pumps have been allowed to run down. The reservoirs, instead of being properly filled, have been only partially pumped full, and the water has been pumped at the wrong time; so instead of being clear, it is as muddy as if the water was served to the people fresh from the river." How about other drinkables?

The State provides for the holding of these Institutes which are under the direct supervision of a lecture of ability, and in counties where they have been held the farmers are much pleased with them. Of course the Institute will be of little value unless those conducting it have the cooperation of the farmers in the county, and as it is intended for their benefit they ought to turn out and see what there is in it calculated to result in good to them. In other States farmers claim to derive great benefits from these meetings, and look forward to them with much expectations. will meet in convention in Clarksville, Tenn., on October 10, the occasion being the third annual meeting officers were chosen and plans laid for a vigorous campaign of education among the members. The interest among

A STORY OF THE WILDERIESS JOU OF THE HEBREW PROFILE By the "Highway and Byway" Pro-

Scripture Authority:—Numbers Chapter 13.

SERMONETTE.

While the Scripture narrative indicates that the project of sending the sples had the Divine searction, even to Instructions being given as to the methods to be pursued, still we must remember that the land was larael's by Night of Inheritance and was the place whither God was leading them, and hence and was the occupancy by Israel. These facts suggest then that it was lack of faith rather than divinely inspired wisdom that prompted this course of action, and remind us of that Infinite patience which God manifests in dealing with His children. God permitted the spying out one and the special property of the land because faith was not large enough to go up at ones and possess it, and that first misstep opened the way for those other sins of unbelief which shut them out of the spromised land and dotted the wilderness with numberless promised land and dotted the wilderness with numberless, and instead of confidently going forward the soul sends out its sples to search the land, the glants of difficulties and dangers are seen, the walled citles of seemingly Insurmountable of seeming Insurmountable of seeming of the promised land of God's blessing. The pathway of unbelief leads back into the wilderness, away from the promised land. Faith is the Christian's reducing glass through which dangers and difficulties appear small and anced by a value that values not and a courage which knows no fear. It took is raid 40 years to recover the opportunity of entering the promised land which they lost in 40 days. So is often today the experience of the Christian. He forfeits years of forward in faith to the place food has pointed out. Those 40 days might better have been spent in going forward than in holding back and looking for glants and walled cities. The soul that lingers of the borderland of a known duty of deathy will surray find the voles of unbeller speaking louder and urging a retreat.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

THERE was a general feeling of elation among the Hebrow soles as they went into camp at Hebron that night. They knew that they could not be far distant now from the place where their people lay encamped at Kadesh. Something over a month had now passed since they had gone forth to search out the land which God had promised to Abraham and his seed forever, and it is not strange that all were eager to be back amidst friends and loved ones again. That had been a momentous journey. Following the course of the Jordan valley they had gone far towards the north and then turning westward had come to Rehob, fying on the well-traveled route to Hamatb, the mountain pass in the aerthern frontier of the land. From thence they had passed on up through the country of the. Sidonians and the Philistines and came at last to the wild and picturesque mountain section of Hebron, where they had gone into camp.

And white they waited the return of they not be at the mercy cheep people who dwalt thus behind high walls?

Caleb had histened quietly to the discussion, taking little part in it until it became apparent that there was a growing tendency among his brathen to take a discouraging risw of the altention. Aroused finally by the remarkthat "walled cities in the promised us the land and it look anything but promising," he exclaimed:

"But it is God that has promised us the land, and in Him we shall conquer. Hast thou forgotten how when Amalek met us in the way we overcame him and scattered his army?"

"Yes, that is true," was the assent, "but he had no walled city into which to fee, and thou must remember that it is not one but many walled cities which must be overthrown."

"But would God promise His people a land which He was not able to give unto us?" persisted Caleb, and Joshna, quickly coming to his stipport, added.

"God is our leader and He will show us how to overcome these strong-holds. Rememberest thou not how bravely the army of Irasel withstoot the powerful forces of Amalek, and shall we faiter now in the face of this mew foet?" and the memory of that day when Joshus had led, the fighting men of Israel to victory silrred his blood, and he arose and paced impatiently to and fro as though he would go up ht once against this new difficulty.

The rest watched him in Silence. Down the long open glade he strode, farther than he had gone before, and he was just turning to retrace his steps, when there burst upon him, almost overthrowing him with their mad heat, the two spiles whose return they were awaiting. Their frightened looks and breathlessness betokened something startling, and before they could recover themselves to speak, the others came running up and excitedly demanded to know what was the matter.

By way of answer the two poluted in the direction from which they had some and excitedly demanded to know what was the matter.

"Ciants!"

And then leading back castiously in the direction from which they had come, they brought them to the top of a high overhanging blus, and parting the bushes carefully pointed down below them. There, sure enough, was a sight which made all stare in surprise and fear, for passing up the narrow valley to the mountain height opposite was a group of the tallest men they had ever seen before. "Surely, these must be the sons of Anak, about whom we have heard," exclaimed Joshua. "Yea, we are but grasshoppers before them," rejoined the others, and in silence they watched them until they had disappeared from view. Then almost sullenly they returned to the camp, and in spite of all the encouragement which Caleb and Joshua could give they were disposed to take anything but a hopeful view of the situation. Some were for going at once under the cover of the darkness from the dreadful place, as they called it, but Joshua said, boidly:
"This must, be the place where Abraham, our father, pitched his tent, and the God who protected him will watch over us in this land that He has promised to give us."

So they had plassed the night, but the next morning early found them on their Journey gazin, fearfully threading their way down the Yulley, and looking apprehensively on either hand lest they should be suddenly surprised and overwhelmed by the giants they had seen. Caleb and Joshua had done their utmost to delay the departure, insisting that they ought to search out the land more thoroughly, but unable to overcome the fear of the other spices they had thurried on with them.

Finally they came to a beautiful bit of country. The valley spread out before them like a perfect garden, and upward on either hand sloped the hills, which were robed in their exquisite colors of green and purple and gold, for at that season of the year the grape vines were in the glory of their rich coloring, the great purple clusters hanging in such profusion that it seemed as though andure was string to the world.

The 12 spice stood entranced by t tions of the world.

The 12 pipes stood entranced by the scene.

"Ah, it Israel could be here to enjoy such a feast as these afford," they exclaimed.

"And they shall be," exclaimed Joshua and Cateb, in a breath.

"But the walled cittes and the stants!" cried the others. "We cannot because of them."

"Surely the Lord who has promised to give us the land will help us overcome it," replied Joshua.

"Let us gather of the fruit that we may take it and whow the people idle wonderfuls land to which God has led was spoke up Caleb, starting forward, impulsively.

"But if we burden ourselves thus we shall not be able to go swiftly and the inhabitants of the land may overtake us and destroy us," objected the others, drawing back and turning a though they would proceed at once on their journey.

"Nay, but we will take back of the fruits of the land," said Joshua, hurying forward to join Caleb, "for the people shall see that the land dot veritably flow with milk and honey as the Lord spake concerning it before we left Egypt."

And Caleb and Joshua cut and pore between them upon a staff one of the immense clusters. And they rathers of the land was dut they rather the land could be shall see that the land dot were the land said Joshua hurying covered to the could be shall see that the land dot were the land said Joshua cut and pore between them upon a staff one of the immense clusters. The offer was taken and two buckets of hot water were brought in, as well as a kettle of boiling water to raise the temperature to the point of ondurance. In went a foot of each workstant. Soon the young man's face began to pale, but the other called for more boiling water.

TELEGRAPH OF THE KAFFIRS.

Mestion has been frequently made during its recent native troubles in South Africa of the 'Kaffi telegraph.' The strange system by which news of any importance is communicated from one artenue of the native territories to the other with almost incredible rapidity, and the working of which, it has been estated, is still a mystery to the white man.

This latter statement is scarcely correct. Numbers of up-country-residents, traders, and the illes are well-acquainted with many of the ways in which communication passes from tribe to firbe.

When a chief receives a message he selects a fast runner, and gives alm the words, and thatmets this man to rain in a given direction as fast as he can—horses are hever used in this work—sut in he is "shausted. When he can run no longer he enters the can run no longer he enters the can run no longer he enters the hear and the words, and this man in its turn picks out his fastest runner, who at once starts off until he also way. Native messengers are stationed at the tops of hills to call messages is largely used by the natives in war time. The air in South Africa is so dry that sound carries a very long way. Native messengers are stationed at the tops of hills to call messages to each other.

It is no exaggeration to say that they can make themselves heard and carry on conversation a quarter of a mile distant; but for obvious reasons they cannot be garden be received.

A white man named Groom had set the down among the Pondos and adopted their ways, and, except for the tribing difference of color, was to all intent a Kaffir himself. Forsigners Stick to Cities.

The commissioner general of immigration has made it apparent in his reports that the numbers and quality of the newcomers to our shores do not exhaust the problems of immigration. One of these which causes much trouble and embarrassment is the matter of distribution, it being claimed that the new swarms show a disposition to cling to the congested life of the cities. Professor Wilcox of Cornell university and: special agent of the United States census bureau whom we have recently quoted employed attsifes to show that there is a general movement among immigrants away from the cities of 25,000 and over. Even without disputing he figures and statements they hardly strike at the root of the matter. With a foreign increment they hardly strike at the root of the matter. With a foreign increment they hardly strike at the root of the matter. With a foreign increment at the rate of about 1,000,000 a year it is becoming increasingly difficult each year to obtain help to stather the fruits of the earth. Whatever may become of these new recruits when they leave the large cities they appear to studiously avoid the fundamental industry of the country.—Boston Transcript.

In every dairy herd there is usually one-cow that is a great deal better

Guernesy Cow, Glenwood Gir VI. than all the rest, one that is capable of producing large yields of milk and fat, and at the same time gives birth to many strong and large producing, animals. The actence of breeding lies in the judicious use that is made of the best blood in the herd. In order, to obtain the best results, records must be kept of not only the amount of product yielded, but a breeding record, which should show the strong characteristics of the animal, as well as the weak.
Glenwood Girl VI. is considered one

as the weak.

Glenwood Girl VI. is considered one of the best individuals of this family and her helfers are making good records and her buils are producing some very fine stock. These facts all show that Glenwood Girl was a very propotent animal and that she has transmitted to her daughters and buils the same good trait.

Glenwood Girl VI. has a yearly record of 12,134 pounds of milk; average test, 4.69 per cent, and 572 pounds of fat, equivalent to 687 pounds of butter.

FARM SEPARATOR CREAM.

Can Be Delivered In Good Order by Proper Care.

The chief difficulty in the way of success in all creameries where the cream is collected instead of the milk is the difficulty of getting the cream delivery in a sweet clean flavored condition. Patrons who deliver milk know that it must be delivered sweet daily, or at least six times a week in account of the condition fit to make fine butter. On the other hand, cream will remain sweet for a longer time than milk, and most persons consider that it does no harm if the cream sours—In fact, it pays better to have it sour, because they receive a higher test for such cream from those creameries using the oil test. This is the chief reason why the oil test. This is the chief reason why the oil test should be discarded in favor of the Babocck, which jatter test places a premium on sweet cream. In order to get sweet cream for creameries the two main requisites are to keep everything clean and to keep the cream as cold as possible until it is delivered at the creamery. The first requisite should be easy, but many persons fall here for the same reason that an old bachelor, failed in getting good results in his rooking by following recipies in cookbooks. When some one asked him if he had ever tried any of the recipies for cooking, he said he had tried a good many of them, but never had good resulfs. When saked why, he said they all began in the same way, "take a clean dish," and he couldn't do that very handily, consequently he gave up referring to cookbooks. The second requisite is gotten by having on hand a suffily of ice or cold water. Third—Have rich cream isoling oream. The subject may be summarized in the following, as presented by Prot. Dean in the Canadian Dairyman:

First—Clean the palls, cans and separator daily or twice daily, second—Cool cream to 50 degrees by the use of lee or cold water. The cream can or tanks should be protected from sub, rain and dust while on the wagons.

Sixth—Proper weighing, measuring and sampling are essential for satisfaction among the patrons.

Seventh—Cream should be pasteurized an American Farmer Lastring to De Profitable Dalrying

In a recent conversion with the writer, Prof. Fraser and that the American farmer has gibt learned how to make the meast cit of his land and the make the meast cit of his land and the make has much out of his cowa as some of the European clairymen do. He declares that file rows and some twice as much milk yeasible for it as the average own to resum out, it as the average own these. This is a fourfold increase of the returns from an area of land.

There is no doubt that the precessor is right and that we can accomplish four times as much as we are doing now and that we can accomplish four times as much as we are doing now and the last support of the borine race, making less than 150 pounds of butter in year. It is no tone race, making less than 150 pounds of butter in year. It is no tone race, row and pounds of butter in year. It is not an extravigant thing to believe that the time is coming when the average and in the condition in which they were when the timber was cat off. The hold die before I wake. They make the timber was cat off. The hold in his make tit time is coming when the average sure of the partures are in the condition in which they were when the timber was cat off. The hold in an experiment of the partures are in the condition in which they were when the timber was cat off. The hold in an experiment of the partures are in the condition in which they were when the timber was conditions that may exist. Could we drop some of time of the partures are in the conditions as they exist and to compare them with the conditions that may exist. Could we drop some of times cow owners down into the fields of Holland or Penmark, the impression might be sooner made. To do profutable dairying requires a weeding out process in our methods. The method that has been followed for two centuries of pasturn cows on any kind of pasture nature may give us should be abandoned. The old make the pasture and the pasture of the parture of the pasture of the pasture of the pas

ping on each other with the haif partition, but such accidents occur in exceptional cases only. The standing room for the cow varies according to the size of the animal, says Prairie Farmer, but there should be sufficient space so that the cow will not be obliged to step back into the gutter, and at the same time have space limited so that the droppings will readily fall into the gutter, For inedium to large cows about fire and one-half feet from the standing space is recommended.

The hand separator is now very popular and profitable.

Alfaifa will greatly change the cost of milk production.

If a man would have a first-class herd of cows he should raise them himself.

The ploneer always finds the cow a great help in obtaining food in an unsettled country.

A cow should not always be judged by what she is doing, but by what she might do if given a proper chance. The average of our cows is too low in quality. We can improve it by continually disposing of the poorest.

Many a calf that would make a valuable cow is sent to the butcher because the owner could sell his milk at a good price.

at a good price.

Sixth—Proper weighing, measuring and sampling are essential for satisfaction among the patrons.

Seventh—Cream should be pasteric ised and cooled at the creamery, especially in the fall and winter, to remove objectionable flavors and to add keeping quality to the butter.

Eighth—Cooperation on the "part of the drivers, patrons and creamerymen is necessary in order to improve the quality of the orean and butter.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remodies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of foreing the natural muctions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant. Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity favor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system results and unarrely, and to assist one in overcoming constitution of the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will care all manuer of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing mothing of an objectionable or hinrious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well-known article; but, unfortimately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy. REBELLION IN THE CAMP

SIXTEENTH-In Cloud and Pillar Serie

STORY OF THE WILDERNESS JOURNEY OF THE HEBREW PEOPLE

SERMONETTE.

Two things in this chapter command our attention. First, the tragedy of a lost opportunity; and second, the presumption and folly of attempting to force an entrance to a door which God has shut. As we read this chapter we stand amazed at the blindness and weakness of the children of larael. In the face of so_great opportunity, but here do we not find exemplified failure that is all too common to-day in the Christian experience? We sit in judgment upon the rebellious Hebrews and declare their conduct inexplicable and Inexcusable, even while we ourselves are refusing to go forward in faith and enter the great door of opportunity which God has set before us. We see the glants of opportunity which God has set before us. We see the glants of opportunity and the walled cities of difficulty and trial. We forget God's power and God's altifulness, and cry the glants cannot be over-thrown. We turn from the open door. Our opportunity is lost.

Then comes the second chapter in this sad recital. We awaken to a consciousness of the mistake we have made, of what we have lost, and regardiess of the conscious lack of God's presence with us, yea, often in the face of his warning voice, we plunge forward, deterning the consolous lack of God's presence with us, yea, often in the face of his warning voice, we plunge forward, deterning the consolous lack of God's presence with us, yea, often in the face of his warning voice, we plunge forward, deterning the consolous lack of God's presence with us, yea, often in the face of his warning voice, we promised land of better things is always worth fighting for.

The promised land of better things is always worth flighting for.

It is true of spiritual as well as of temporal things that "there is a tide in the affairs of men (the soul) which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

Soul within thee, is there a stirring for a better life, which the voice of self is seeking to stiffe? Is conscience saying: "Yield to God; follow him?"

While self cries: "Let us choose another captain. Let us observed to the Egypt of the old life?"

While self cries: "Let us choose another captain. Let us observed to the Egypt of the old life?"

While self cries: "Let us choose another captain. Let us observed to the Egypt of the old life?"

While self cries: "Let us choose another captain. Let us observed to be another captain. Let us observed the Egypt of the old life."

While self cries: "Let us choose in the Egypt of the old life."

While self cries: "Let us choose another captain. Let us observed the content of the content of the Egypt of the old life."

While self cries: "Let us choose another captain. Let us observed the content of the captain. The wicked machinations of the ten spies could delay but not defeat the coming of Cod's kingdom. It took 40 years to rid Israel delay but not defeat the coming of God's kingdom to defeat the coming of God's kingdom to defeat for law and the promised land.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

SOMETHING in the voices issuing from the tent caused Caleb to stop short and listen. He had been wandering through the camp, his heart, burdened and troubled by the unbappy state of the people, for, deaf to the words of encouragement and cheer which he and Joshua and Moses had spoken, they had refused to helieve aught hut evil concerning the promised land. All night long the sound of weeping was heard and in disconsolute tones the people talked together, so that sleep came to few, sawe the children. It is not strange that amidst this distress and commotion Caleb could not rest and at last he had wandered forth aimlessly, going hither and hither through the camp, and everywhere he had gone the same distressing scenes and sounds had greeted him.
"How can they look upon the distressing scenes and sounds had greeted him.

"How can they look, upon the distant light from the Cloudy Pillar and fall to trust God?", he exclaimed, as his eyes swept over the great sea of tents and at last rested upon the soft, glowing light which hung like a thingof like in the heavens. He knew It marked the place of entrance to the tabernacle court, and that Moses and Aaron, were there, and he wondered if they, too, were spending a night of vigil and knew of the mouraing in the camp. As he thought thus the limpuise seized him to seek them out.
"I will go and tell them what I have seen and heard," he exclaimed, as he turned and passed along the outer edge of the camp. "Perchance there may be some way by which we can encourage the people."

At that moment he was passing one of the tents, a larger and more pretentious one than most of those about — evidently helocking to one of the chief men of the tribe—and the intense high pitch of the voices within arrested his attention and he paused and listened.

"We must act at once," came the linkness, sullen voice of one, "for it is evident that Mozes is determined that we shall go forward, which, as "e have all hard from those our breizen who have been through the land, will mean certain death to us."

A deep slience followed this speech, whose holdness had evidently startled evch those daring spirits who had gathered that night from every tribe to talk over the situation.

"It would have been better if we had died in the wilderness," at last walled the voice of one.

"But we didn't," came the sharp retort of the first speaker, "and the question is, are we going forward to he destroyed by the people of the land?"

"No," came the response, at first feebly, and then louder and stronger.

land?"
"No," came the response, at first feebly, and then louder and stronger.
"Then what shall we do? It were better for us to return 60-Egypt, for there at least we had food to eat and none sought our lives to take them."

there at least we had food to eat and none sought our lives to take them.

"But Moses will not lead us back," exclaimed some one, to which the first speaker responded, quickly, saying:

"Let us choose another captain, and let us return to Expyt forthwith."

Caleb as he listened was first astonshed, and then angry and then rightened. Mischief was brewing in the camp. He must inform Moses at once of this thing, and without stopping to hear what further was said, Caleh hurled on as fast as possible.

Following Caleb's startling story a hasty conference of the leaders was held and it was concluded that, they would go at once and trap the conspirators in their tent before they had had opportunity to get out amongst the people and spread the rebeillon.

They approached the place just as the morning light was beginning to break in the east. No sound came from the tent and no one was in sight about the place. Cautlously they approached the entrance and, pushing aside the tent fap, they looked within. But it was empty.

"They have gone to gather the people," exclaimed Caleb.

The coming of Moses and Aaron with Caleb and Joshua startled the as:

"They have gone to gather the peopie," exclaimed Cateb.

The coming of Moses and Aaron with Caleb and Joshua startjed the assembly, but it was plain that the people were determined in their course and were ready to stand their ground. And while Moses talked with the leaders of the rebellion, chief among whom were the ten spies, the people took up the cry:

"Let us choose another captain, who will lead us back to Egypt."

And Moses and Aaron fell upon their faces to the ground, while Caleb and Joshua rent their garments and, rushing into the midst of the shouting people, they cried:

"Nay, nay, not Egypt! but the Prom-ing people, they cried:

"Nay, nay, not Expyt! but the Promlsed Land: For the land which we passed through is an exceeding good land. If the Lord delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us. It is a land indeed that floweth with milk and honey. Only rebel not ye against the Lord, neither fear ye the people of the land; for they are bread for us. Their defense is departed from them, and the Lord is with us. Fear them not."
But the words of Joshua and Caleb

"Nay, nay, not Egypt." but the Promised Land: For the land which we passed through is an exceeding good land. If the Lord delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us. It is a land ladeed that floweth with milk and honey. Only rebel not ye against the Lord, neither fear ye the people of the land; for they are bread for us. Their defense is departed from them, and the Lord is with us. Fear them not."

But the words of Joshua and Calebsserved only to excite the people the more and make them cry the louder: "Let-us choose-another captain and return to Egypt."

Again Joshua and Caleb sought to quiet the people, pointing to the prostrate forms of Moses and Aaron and crying:

"Cod thath given you a leader. Commit not this great sin, for ye are rejecting God."

Then the people turned in a rage upon them and shouted that stones be brought to stone them. In quick response the people turned with common impulse and rushed towards abit of stony ground lying at some distance away, fully intent upon carrying:

"Hear ye not the cry of the people," They go to bring stones with which to kill thee. Flee for your lives."

"And Moses arose and calmy faced the ourushing mob, which hy this time and used to the conversion of the convention of the conve crying:

"God hath given you a leader. Commit not this great sin, for ye are rejecting God."

Then the people turned in a rage upon them and shouted that stones be frought to stone them. In quick response the people turned with common injudges and rushed towards a bit of atony ground lying at some distance away, fully intent upon carrying out their wicked purpose.

Realizing the perile of the situation and that not a moment must be lost, Caleb and Jushua rushed hack to warn Moses and Aaron, who still lay prostrate in prayer.

"Hear ye not the cry of the people? They go to hring stones with which to kill thee. Flee for your lives."

And Moses arose and caimly faced the onrushing mob, which by this time had turned and was bearing upon them with their hands upliffed, in which could be seen the great, Jagged rocks they had selzed. On, on, they-came, but still Moses stood and caimly waited. None had noticed that the cloudy piliar, still glowing-brightly in the gray of the early morning, had moved from its accustomed place and was bearing down upon them. Still the infuriated people came on, filling the air with their mad cries. And still the infuriated people came on, filling the air with their mad cries. And still the cloud moved on, and fist as the mot came near enough to hurl, their rocks' and were just upon the point of doing so, the cloud enveloped Moses syst the rest, and a flash of light sped from it and felled to the ground the ten sples, who were in the fore front of the onrushing people. In terror the rest fell back and the arms, that held the missiles dropped weak and holpless to their sides, and then swiftly and quictly they departed to their tents, while Moses went into the tabernacle, where God spoke his judgment against the people for their sin, decirating that they should wander in the widerness 40 years and that none who had nurmured against the Lord should ever enter the promised land save Caleb and Joshua.

IN HIS TRUE LIGHT. DOWNFALL OF REPUBLICANISM.

Practically Announces That He Favor

Methods of Procedure.

Burning with holy seal in the great and soble cause of trust supremacy, Speaker Cannon made a speech on the 18th of August which is likely to coashis warty as dearly as anything that happened in connection with the Homestead affair in 1892. Mr. Cannon not only upheld the tariff law of 1897 under which the trusts of the present day have grown up, but he made a ytclous assault upon the American institution of trial by jury and eulogized the system of trial without juries in trimial cases which prevailed in the English court of star chamber. He did not mention trial by jury or the star chamber, but he decounced the opposents of government by injunction; and government by injunction, and government by injunction, and a resort to the star chamber method of procedure. By indirection, by fraud, and by tricks, the speaker assaulted the constitution, the Democratic party, and organized labor all at ouce. He also misstated facts. He says:

"Mr. Gompers, with Mr. Stillings, his attorney, advocated a hill introduced by request by Representative Pearre."

This statement is untrue. Mr. Gompers did not advocate any Mr. Compers did not. advocate any Mr. This statement is untrue. Mr. Gompers did not. advocate any Mr. This statement is untrue. Executive Usurpation All Ten

Executive Usurpation All Tending in That Direction

The Republican campaign this fall has deteriorated, as far as issues are concerned, into "biling bool," Secretary Bonaparte, fresh from a conference with President Roosevelt, declaring that the only issue is that the voters bindly elect a congress who will be subservient to the president. The will of the voters, through their representatives in congress, on pendigg issues of tariff revision, protection to trusts, exfravagant appropriations, the necessary amendments to the railroad rate regulation law and other reforms, is to be only what the president says, and he has declared he favors a "stand-pat" policy. The Republican party has cone to a pretty pass when one man power is the issue, and the executive branch of the government is to dominate the law making branch, just fresh from the people. Is the Republican party atraid to appeal to the voters on the issues it has created? and must it take shelter behind President Roosevelt, who is Rokle as thy wind, changing his policy with every adverse current? The constitution makes congress, not the president, the law-making power, and only gives to the president the right to recommend issues for congress to determine.

The Republican political machine is so inherently dependent upon patron.

The Republican political machine is so inherently dependent upon patronage, and being built from the head down, instead of from the people upwards, it is a boid Republican congressman that dares to dely the chief dispenser of political favors, so most of them cringe to the despotic dictation of the president. It will be remembered that President Roose-veit threatened to withhold patronage, such as appointments of postmasters from congressmen. If it pleased or advanced his interests to do so, and this threat has had the result of making many. Republican congressmen, it if pleased or advanced his interests to do so, and this threat has had the result of making many. Republican congressmen, to a supposition of the sone of the same of th

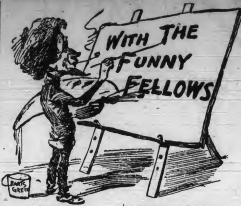

New Law Brings Little Relief.

New Law Brings Little Relief.
Raliroad earnings have nearly-doubted in the past ten years, yet freight rates are higher now than in 1896. Is it any wonder that the people are demanding cheaper rates and therefore congress conceded the raliroad rate regulation hill? It is 'safe to say, however, that the Republicans have again buncoed the people for the benefit of their friends the raliroads, and there will be no general rate reduction under the now law. Some shippers will gain an advantage, as they will all be more on the same footing, instead of former discriminations in favor of certain preferred shippers. That is the main good point in the new law and la why it was so eagerly voted for by the Democrata, even when their amendments—had been rejected by the Republican raliroad sympathizers, it was a step in the right direction and all that was possible to procure with the president and those Republican senators, who were supposed, to favor a more stringent and comprehensive measure, being willing to submit to raliroad dictation at the last minute.

If the Balley amendment had been adopted the legal delay that is now inevitable when the commission begins to enforce a reduction of rates, would have been reduced to the minimum, whereas now it may be almost interminable.

With railroad earnings so vastly increasing and large interest being paid on the actual capital invested, why, should freight rates not be reduced? The railroads virfusily concede this by the voluntary reduction of passenger rates by the Pennsylvania railproad, but freight rates are collected in a more indirect manner and the built of the people only payon freight when they buy goods at the stores. Like the tariff tax they don't know how much they are paying.

Railroad rate regulation is for the future and the new law will have to be further amended before rates will be reasonable.

"MOSESES BIRFDAY," "MOSESS BIRFDAY."

A prominent southern statesman says that last summer he was making a horsehack trip through the northern part of Alabama when he came upon a negro cabin, the sounds issuing from which gave evidence of an extraordinary commotion within. Shouts and yells of terror succeeded each other so rapidly that the traveler hastened to ascertain the cause of the trouble.

As the rider drew rein hefore the door half a dozen ragged pickanianies ran out. All but one of them were screaming and crying at the tops-oftheir voices, while the odd one, as merry as the others were sad, begantumbling cartwheels and standing on his head. At this moment a man, evidently the head of the household, appeared in the doorway. In answer to the traveler's inquiries the darky vouchsafed the following explanation of the mystory:
"Yo' see, sah, dis is Moseses birfday," indicating the pickaniany whose joyful antice have been referred to. "Now, I'se powerful hard up jes' at present, an' aint' got no money to celebrate. An' it jes' bruk me all up on Moseaes birfday as Mosese was habin' hisself. The wrestlers arranged themselves in two sides, each led by a captain. They sat cross-legged around the platform in the dirt, all but the two chosen to begin, who advanced into the center with the umpire. They squatted upon their feet and bowed to seach other slowly and solemnly. Policeness thus being tuffilled, they stood up again and bent over opposite one another like two gamecocks, watching intently for a chance to seize an advantage. During the preliminaries the audience was tense with expectation. Then suddenly the women sprang, hissing at each other furious by and gnashing their teeth, at first by simulating ferocity to spur themselves up to greater excitement, but, after a few clutches, in deadly feminine earnest, the umpire meanwhile buzzing to them as they swayed round the narrow ring.

This was the signal for the umpire to. begin: 'Hitotsu, futatus, mitsu, yotsu, itsuitsu (one, two, three, four, five),' in a series of irregular and disconnected squeaks; and before he ceased counting another wrestler from the losing side jumped up to meet the champion who stood panting, hissing and spitting like a boiling kettle in the center of the arena. This time there were no perliminaries. A wild rush, and like two furies or two beasts, the, women were struggling again. Some affected quick clutches, some locked their adversaries in their arms and stood stock still for a full five minutes. Some picked up their opponents—at once and threw them bodily over the ring, while others rolled over with them. This latter course threatened to cause almost a disaster on several occasions. What He Most Wished For.

John Fiske, the American historian, was an ardent lover of music and himself no mean musician. Furthermore, he was extremely corpulent and felt the hot weather painfully. He was a summer school in a small city of the middle west. The heat was terrific and adjoining the house where the lecturer stayed was a church where an ill-matched but zealous "quarter practiced and performed during all hours of the torrid afternoons and evenings. One evening, seeing the famous man sit for a time unoccupied and apparently oppressed by this combined affliction, the young daughter of his hostess attempted to divert him by one-flag him a new novel, then just becoming popular. "I think 'The Choir Invisible' is perfectly splendid, Mr. Fiske," said she. "Would'n you like to read it?" The historian put the book aside. "My dear young lady," said he, "the only choir in the world in which I could feel any interest at this moment would be the choir Invisible."

"About the latter part of July my whale body began to itch. I did not take much notice of it at first, but it began to get worse all the time, and then I-began to get uneasy and tried all kinds of baths and other remedies that were recommended for skin humors; but I became worse all the time. My hair began to fall out and my scalp-tiched all the time. Especially at night, just as scon as I would get in bed and get warm, my whole body would begin to itch and my finger nails would keep it irritated, and it was not long before I could not rest light or day. A friend asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies, and idd, and the first application helped me wonderfully. For about four weeks I would take a hot bath every night and then apply the Cuticura Colument to my whole body; and I kept getting better, and by the time I used four boxes of Cuticura I was entirely cured, and my hair stopped falling out. Effects or sixty wears ago at this

Fifty or sixty years ago, at this time of the year the river front would be lined with broad horn flatboats and family boats all loading for the southern market. In those days the young men thought their education not complete unless they had made at least one flatboat trip to New Orleans. Some would make two and often three trips during the winter.—Lawrenceburg Press.

A potato grower of whom we read the other day has solved the problem of the weeds which usually go to seed on his patch after the potatoes are ripe by sowing buckwheat just as the vines begin to die. He puts his potatoes in to a good depth so that little hilling is necessary, cuts the buckwheat when ripe and later digs his potatoes. This gives him two crops from the same piece of land and, besides, the satisfaction of having his field kept free from weeds.

The Gentls Art of Lying.

Very few of us, indeed are exempt from the charge of direct lying. Not to mention the strategic lies told to enemies in time of war, to criminals, to sick persons, and lunatics, as to which pages upon pages of casuity appear in the older works on moral science, there are what may be termed the lies lubricant, wrung from us by etiquette and good breeding. If the amenities of life were not preserved through the gentle art of lying, society could scarcely continue as a happy family; we should all have taj live in separate cages. The best of us, says 'Wilbur Larremore, in Atlantie, will tell direct lies on trivialties where politieness is imall have to live in separate cage. The best of us, says Wilbur Larremore, in Atlantic, will tell direct lies on trivialities where politices is imperative. Wherever practicable, however, the spirit of advocacy prevails, We say whatever we can truthrully, and tactfully jause while the hearer's sell-love and imagination fills out a generally agreeable impression. Family relationships, even more markedly than business or social relations, exemplify the universal attitude of advocacy. Mr. Roundahout says: "Go to Brown's house and tell Mrs. Brown and the young ladies what you think of him, and see what a welcome you will get. In like manner, let him come to your house and tell your good lady his candid opinion of you, and see hw she will receive him." No one save an unapeakable cad would speak slightingly of a husband to his wife; no one save —an unspeakable—cad would tolerate slighting inanuage—in his presence concerning his wife. Such is the conventional law as to spouses, parents, children, blood relations in general, even intimate friends.

The School Garden Idea.

The School Garden Idea.

The school garden Idea is steadily growing, and in many of the large cities the work has succeeded beyond the expectations of even the most sanguine enthusiast. Last year 389, 985 one-cent packages of seed were sold in Cleveland to children living in all parts of the city, including those districts where beauty is almost unknown and yards and vacant lots are most unattractive, and as a result running vines are beginning to cover ugly fences and outhouses, common flowers as well as shrubs beautify the yards and potted plants decorate porches and balconies. In one small city, says the Home Magazine, the work began with stereopticon lectures, to which the children sold tickets. The proceeds were spent for flower seeds, plants and hardy bulbs, which were given to the children with the understanding that a flower show be held in the fall. The entire town became interested in flower culture, and the 5,000 aster beds became one of the "sights" to show strangers, while the exhibit enlisted the interest and antiraction of the surrounding country.

Tickling Human Vanity.

listed the literest and admiration of the surrounding country.

Tickling Human Vanity,

Few people realize how profitable the trade of tickling human vanity is, and how many different forms it employs. There are obscure newspapers and nominal magazines that live by it, and provide good incomes for their editors. It is quite common to find upon center tables luxuriously bound and printed volumes whose contents consist entirely of fulsome puffs, says Wilbur Larromore, in Atlantic. Each profession, trade, avocation and association has its library of memorabilita of persons of the kind who, in Lowell's phrase, were created to fill up the world. The writer remembers seeing in the "best room" of a remote farmhouse a morocco-bound, gilt-edged volume upon the notabilities of the country, which contained a blography and engraved portrait of rusticus horribilis himself. The original voluniteered the information that his niched in the local pantheon had cost him a sum, which, on later conversation, was disclosed to be larger than a year's interest on the mortgage encumbering the farm.

Another victory for Old Glory. Some hotheads in Toronto objected to the display of the American flag at the Toronto exhibition. But the managers called in the police, told the objectors that the Stars and Stripes should fly alongside the Union Jack, to express welcome for Americans on American day, and if anybody attempted to haul the flag down or make 'trouble arrest and punishment would follow. So the Star Spangled Banner continued to wave.

But he made it quite clear that he believes there is no necessity or reason for applying the principies to the extreme of government ownership of railroads. Lansinburgh, N. Y.—Five passengers were killed outright and a score were injured in a rear-end collision between a regular passenger train and a military special on the Boston & Maine railroad, directly in front of Lansingburgh depot, north of Troy, about five o'clock Thursday.

The collision took place on a heavy grade, and sharp curve.

The passenger train was one that leaves Boston daily at 9:30 a. m. for Albany. It consisted of five cars, a baggage car, smoker, day coach, and two parlor cars, and was about one hour late when it reached Lansing-burgh station, waiting there for a chance to get into the Troy depot.

Without, apparently, any warning, the "special" came thundering along with 18 cars and crashed into the passenger train, smashing the last two cars, which were Pullmans, like egg-shells.

Both these cars were swept from the track and rolled down the emakment. The engine of the special kept on for a dozen yards and then turned turtle, the front end plowing line the ground and the car behind being telescoped by the tender.

One Hundred Thousand Workers caused Give a Panny to Ruskin College.

The British trade unions had not in their origin any direct concern with education, anys the Fortnighthy Review. But it is a fact of no ordinary significance that some of the leading unions should be taking very great interest in the higher education of the workman.

For the last three years some 100,000 workingmen, members of the Amaigamated Society of Engineers, have made three levies of one penny each to help on the work of Ruskin college at Oxford. This levy produces over £300 a year, and by means of it six engineers are maintained for a year's course of study at the college.

Smaller but substantial sums have been contributed to the same institution by the London Society of Compositors, by the Lanarkshire Miners' County Union, by the Amaigamated Association of Beamers, Twisters and Drawers, by the Derbyshire miners and the Durham miners, while a large number of other societies appear among the donors and subscribers.

tance Tax Law—Field Estate an Instance.

Washington. — President Roosevelt has inserted in the preliminary draft of his forthcoming annual message to congress a recommendation that a law be passed imposing a national tax upon inheritances. The president first cailed public attention to this idea in his cclebrated "muck rake" speech which he delivered at the taying of the corner stone of the office building of the house of representatives April 14 last.

Therein he expressed the view that ultimately the United States would have to consider the adoption of some such scheme as that of a progressive tax on all fortunes beyond a certain amount either given in life or devised or bequeathed upon death to any individual—a tax so framed as to put it out of the power of the owner of one of these enormous fortunes to hand on more than a certain amount to any one individual. Such taxstion should be aimed merely at the inheritance or transmission in their entirety of those fortunes swollen beyond all hesithy limits.

He deeply regrets, for instance, that there was no such law to prevent Marshall Field from tying up his estate fortunes swollen beyond all healthy limits.

He deeply regrets, for instance, that there was no such law to prevent Marshall Fleid from tying up his estate in the way he did. The Fleid fortune is regarded as having "swollen beyond all healthy limits" at the time of its creator's death. It will be a positive mensce by the time it is turned over to the heirs.

If John D. Röckefeller and other wealthy men of the country should follow the example of Mr. Fleid there would develop an oligarchy of wealth which would bring disaster to the American people.

CONDITION OF IRISH FARMERS.

Modern Methods and Cooperation Are Needed in the Island.

John Dryden, former minister of agriculture for Ontario, has returned from the old country, where he was acting as one of the representatives of the imperial government on the commission appointed to investigate the working of the department of agriculture and technical instruction in Ireland, easys the Montreal Family Herald. The commission determined to examine the difficials of the "opartment, the heads of agriculture" calles, private individuds and all who could give evidence concerning the working of the department and the methods best calculated to carry out the 'nteation of the statute.

Mr. Dryden expressed himself as being favorably disappointed with the agricultural possibilities of Ireland, and declares that as a paying proposition be would rather have his farm there than in Ontario. "I do not think," said he, "that it would be easy to find a better agricultural district, whence is secured the peat which takes the place of much of the coll and timber for fuel, and what is termed the congested districthardly expressive of the real condition, for it is but sparsely settled, it is situated on the west cosst, and is mountainous, rugged and stony—tho little patches of tillable soil having to be worked with a spade, as it is impossible to use machinery.

The pup, though I had worked him in the field but little, showed that he was going to be a hunter, and from the very first covered his ground and the add his points without flushing the birds but once or twice in the whole forenoon. He made such a fine showing that I made a good deal over him that afternoon he wouldn't hunt at all. The pup worked out fairly rangy, but the old dog stays ort of left out of it. I suppose it made him jealous, and that afternoon he wouldn't hunt at all. The pup worked out fairly rangy, but the old dog stayed close to our heels. Finally losing patience with the old fellow, I half turned, and said, pretty much in ordinary tongs: Don if I couldn't hunt any better than that I'd go home.' And go home he did and all that season he neves would with him. When the pup wasn't there he was as good a dog as you'd find anywhere, but he was lealous and sore at the young dog."

Runs on banks, as all the world knows, are often stopped or restricted in the oddest ways.

A rich bank know that a run was to set in on a certain Monday morning—for it had been xobbed of some postage stamps on Saturday night, and the robberty had been exagerated in the newspaper reports—and it this run was not kept within reasonable limits the bank would have to close its doors. It had plenty of money, but not plenty of cash. It needed 24 hours' time.

Before sunrise on Monday morning a man put a fresh coat of paint on the front doors of the bank, on the wall panels, and on the counters. The result was that the people who made the run on Monday made rather a walk of it. They wanted their money, but they rushed no one. On the contrary, they came on with caution and deliberation. So careful were they lest they get paint-on their clothes that it took longer to pay off one of them than it would have taken or dinarily to pay five.

Americans and Marriage.

Carolyn Rapelyea, writing on "American Complexities," in the current number of Ainslee's, speaks especially of the American attitude toward marriage. This she says is one of the chief of our complexities. "No people in the world," remarks the lady, "regard marriage so romanufcally. Moreover, our ideas of, what are to be expected in marriage are essentially unlike foreign ideas. Here, as much as anything elae, lies the cause of so many international failures." Miss Rapelyea thinks the number of divorces in America does not necessarily indicate that the number of unfortunate marriages are greater here than elsewhere, but only that our vorces in America does not necessarily indicate that the number of unfortunate marriagea is greater here than elsewhere, but only that our ideas of what is to be endured are different. "But to understand this is difficult, as It is also true that there is a tendency for Americans to regard the marriage ties as less permanently binding than do people-in Europe. They are more inclined to break their vows and yet atay married; we to dissolve the marriage if the vows are broken. We do not regard the thing in the same way, and in an international marriage such differences in point of view are exceedingly dangerous. "Viewed superficially, the American, character, and American social life may seem simple, easy to comprehend, yet they abound in contradictions, are full of complexities. Much that is clearly felt, and tacitly recognized has not yet been defined. No wonder that we are a perpetual, though fascinating, puzzle for foreigners. We are sometimes a puzzle even to ourselves."

foreigners. We are sometimes a purzle even to ourselves."

Phonetic Spelling.

It is held creditable to spell in the fashion of the lexicographera, but it is really discreditable, it to defy law and order is infamy, says D. W. Howells, in Harper's Magazine. A child is punished if it obeys an instinct and spells phonetically, but it ought to be rewarded, and its inatinctive orthography reverently studied in the hope of some hint for the amelioration of the abuse under which we all suffer. The actual English spelling does not apell anything, really; it is a kind of picture writing in which certain groups of letters symbolize certain acounds without representing them. This difference between our spelling and our speech is such tilat the lexicographer finds his burden divided between orthography and orthoepy, and yet doubled in the failure to show how the printed word shall be spoken. For the literary artist, who wishes to indicate dislect variations, the system is worse than sueciess; he must frame a convention and trust the reader's intelligence for its acceptance before he can hope to suggest the accents he has in mind. Nothing worse could be said of our spelling than that it does not spell; that is quite enough to condemn it If it fullified its office, one might not represent the mental of the more pair.

No sooner have we reconciled ourselves to a vision of Persia and China under sevenusion successor revolution, No sconer have we reconciled ourselves to a vision of Persis and China under a-parliament, and mastered our astonishment at our survival in a world without Crusoe Island, than we find ourselves gasping in front of the picture of the monks of St. Bernard setting out on motor cars to rescue the wandering Alpine waynfarer. Will the great dogs be provided with seats is the rear, or are they destined, like the horse, to pass away in a puff of petrol? The 'Augustinian monks in their hotel among the clouds—the ioftiest inhabited house in Europe—are better supplied with the world's goods today than they were when Napoleon took his 30,000 trops past their door into Italy. Then they had failen on evil days. "The revolutions of Europe," wrote a sad-hearted traveler of the period, have deprived this noble establishment (which has lasted 900 years) of the greatest part of its vast poasessions, as that contributions for its support are now thankfully received by the frateraty." All that, however, has been changed, says the London Chronicle, and, thanks to the open purse of Protestant and Roman Catholic alike, the hospice-can now command the generous resources of an automobile club.

Joint Effort Necessary for Upper Mississippi Improvement.

Minneapolia, Minn. — important business and addresses marked the final day of the sixth annual convention of the Mississippi River improvement association. Congressman Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisiana, chairman of the executive committee of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, urged united action to secure appropriations for river and harbor improvement.

"We do not plan," said he, "a raid on the treasury, but a fair proportion of the $712,000,000 apeat by the government annually. At present commerce receives, including the lighthouse and consular service, but $45 per cent. of thia, and we have a balance of trade in our favor, of $500,000,000. The army, navy and pensions receive 40 per cent. The 37 states directly interested united through their senators and congressmen can secure the appropriation."

The resolutions committee strongly endorses a six foot channel from Minneapolis to St. Louis retention and extension of their reservoir system at the source of the Mississippi; combined action of all waterway improvement associations; and plans representation and participation in meetings of similar organizations. Invitations have been extended by St. Louis Business Men's league to participate in the St. Louis deep channel congress November 15 and 16.

Missouri Farmer's Lust For Money Conquered.

Springfield, Mo. Oct. 15.—Jodie Hamilton, a farucer, was arrested at Houston, Peras county, 40 miles east of here, for the murder of a neighbor, Barney Farsons, and the latter's wife and their three young children. One child was an infant. Hamilton has confessed and is now being guarded by an armed force.

The tragedy took place in a sparsely settled country far removed from a telegraph or telephone station, and resulted from the sale of the crops on Parsons' farm. Parsona, who came to Texas country from North Missouri two years ago, decided to return to his former home and disposed of his crops to Hamilton. Early last Friday morning Parsons loaded his household goods into a wagon and with his family statted for the northern part of the state. He was driving along a lonely road only a short distance from the home he hald just vacated, when he was met by Hamilton. A quarrel ensued and Hamilton fired the contents of both barreis of a shorgun into his adversary, killing him instantly. Then the enraged farmer felled Mirs. Threw Bodies in River.

When he had finished his work itamiton tossed the bodies of his victimainto the wagon and drove to the Big Piney river, about a mile from the scene of the tragedy. Without attaching weights to the bodies he tossed them into the water. Saturday afternoon two fishermen discovered the body of one of the children floating in an eddy, and a few minutes fater a second body was taken out. An alarm was sounded and a searching party found the bodies of the father and mother farther down the stream, where they had lodged in a pile of brush.

A few hours later Hamilton rode in to Houston, the county seat, on a mule belonging to Parsons. He was placed under arrest, and he confessed. Excitement in Texas and Wright counters is high and there is strong talk of lynching the prisoner.

The sheritf has taken Hamilton out of jail and hidden him in the mountains to escape the mob.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 15.—Notwithstanding the severe lessons taught the midshipmen. by the court-martials and dismissals of the last spring, haring has again suppeared at the naval academy. This board meets at stated periods, when fourth classmen are called before it and questioned broady as to whether they have been hazed or know of any of their classmates who have suffered a like indignity. As soon as Midshipman Chevaller's case was unearthed a report was made to Adm. Sands, who ordered an investigation and served notice on Guiler that he must file an answer in writing. This answer will be placed in the admira's hands and he will act upon it under the provisions of the new Bonaparte hazing law passed by the iast session of congresa, which abolished absolute diamissal after conviction by court-martial as the only penalty for hazing.

LITTLE THINGS AND BIG.

Cifferentiate Between the Essential and the Non-Essential.

Little things are often of great importance, but when they are so they are not little. The pinlon of a watch wheel, for example, in one aenae is little, in another sense it is not so at all; for when it is not perfectly adoused, the watch is worthers for time-keeping. It is not size that makes a thing little or great, but its relation to the end for which a number of things are combined. If a thing is essential it is important. Because so many of the people who are always preaching the importants elected in the important of the same the important of the management of their own and other peoples affairs. Theoretically, if every factor that contributes to a result is perfect, the result will be perfect; but practically, for want of time, atrength and opportunity, the efficient man is compelled to neglect some things for the sake of others; and, in order to do this and yet secure the main end, he has to discriminate between the essential and he non-essential. The one who is thoroughly imbued with the false doctrine of the importance of little things, spends his atrength without discrimination, and usually succeeds in missing the main chance.—The Watchman

Havana. — The United States through its peace commissioners, is not ready to announce when it will withdraw from the Island of Cuba and surrender the reins of government to the Cubans. This action cannot be taken until the time arrives when fair elections are assured. This statement, was made by Gov. Taft Friday as a sort of valedictory address to the revolutionists committee with which the American commissioners dealt in inducing the rebels to cease hostilities and negotiate peace. The committee and negotiate peace. The committee had a conference lasting an hour with Gov. Taft, Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Charles E. expressed satisfaction with the position taken by the provisional government.

Healed by Alfredo Zayas, the committee visited Gov. Taft for the avowed purpose of requesting him to declare the policy of the United States toward Cubs and the policy of the provisional governor concerning appointments to public office. The Americans listened carefully to all the representations of the committee and then Gov. Taft replied pointedly that he could not outline the policy of the United States more clearly-thanwas done in his proclamation, establishing a provisional government for the Island. He added, that as the representative of the United States, he was just as anxious to surrender governmental affairs to the Cubans as the Cubans were to regain them, but the peace commissioners were under the responsibility to build up conditions which would make the Cuban government a stable one.
Gov. Taft would not predict when such a satisfactory condition would be reached, but he said the Cubans themselves could hasten that time if they were disposed to do so. A fair and honest election on the results of which-the Cuban-people were willingto abide, Gov. Taft declared, was necessary before the United States would

TAKEN AT A DISADVANTAGE

Professor Realized He Was Distinctly Out of His Element.

isather than disappoint the class, the professor of moral philosophy, who was suffering from a nervous head-ache, had read the lecture prepared for the occasion, and was waiting to answer any questions that might be asked by the students.

"I beg your pardon, professor," said one of the young men, "but there is one point, that is not quite clear—in my mind. Suppose that a hypothesis—or perhaps it would be more nearly synchronous to speak of it as a corollary—in a case of mental discipline, or, we will say, a verbal agreement, as to the abstract principles involved, what would be the correct attitude when two or more propositions, apparently concrete, but really differentiated by vagueness not wholly imaginary, but more or less complicated with the personal equation? Does it not so occur to you?"

"I am not sure that I follow you," answered the professor, wiping his perspiring forehead. "Please state the proposition again, a little more simply."

"What I want to know is this: When a process of reasoning assumes the form of a dilemma, not unnecessarily, of course, but none the less ambiguous because of the apparent contrisdictory nature of the qualities, or, rather, the assumption that the existence of the ethical problems under consideration depends upon the state or condition of mind, thus placing the responsibility for the relative divergence where it properly belongs and leaving the intellect free from prejudice or undue blas? Is not this fair y deducibility for the relative divergence where it properly belongs and the professor, whose head was in a whirl."

WOMAN'S CROWN OF GLORY.

What a Fuss They Do Make with It at Any and All Times.

Women have great times with their halr, says the Atchison Globe. If they visit in a dry climate they are sure to say when they come home: "My hair acted lovely; it did not come out of curl at all."

If they go where it is damp they say when they come home: "It was the worst place for hair; my hair was as straight as a string all the time."

Once in three or four weeks they wash their hair and then they, tell each other how they cannot do a thing each other how they cannot do a thing.

The women are always follows.

is so sticky, they cannot do a thing with it.

The women are always telling each other they look hoyrld with their hair down low, or else they would not be seen with it done high. Their hair is either all coming out or else they cannot imagine what has happened, but it is coming in thick and "lovely."

As they walk down the street the women are forever reaching for their back hair and catching up short locks with hairpins, or feeling to see if their hair is coming down. When they get in front of a mirror the 'very first thing the women look at is their hair and twitch it one way or the other. No matter what any woman has on her mind, her hair takes first place.

TIME TO GO SLOW

ariff Reform is Absolutely Necessary to Curb Trust Plundering—Present System Robs People for the Banefit of Corpora-tions.

It is perhaps a thankless task to advise those who have been selzed with the manis for speculation, but it is the duty of honest journalism to be the watchman on the tower to warn the people of the approach of political foes, and false political economy. There is a spirit of political and economic unrest abroad in the land, and wisdom would dictate caution in deafing with political speculations, as much, or even more so, than in dealing in the stock market, mining shares or real estate. The first thing to remember is that but few speculators in politics, or business gambling, are successful. Wise conservatism is geenially the winner in the long run. Regarding speculation Chicago and New York have been built up on the money that is constantly sent to those cities either directly or through the agents of Wall street and the speculative markets all over the land, with but little returns to those who send it. When some one makes a winning, the favorable result is hereafted everywhere, but we never hear publicly of the great army of losers. The latest phase of the gambling era is real estate speculation, which is rampant in the cities, and towa lots are being sold, miles from the business centers, at prices that will require years to make reasonable. In the menalime (aves must be paid, and unless the property is for home building, the result 'in most cases will be that, in a few years, the advance in value, if any, will not cover the taxes paid. The man who buys a home on the installment plan can afford to pay more than it is intrinsically worth, because it is the only way be can use of it, and with good management and economy will in time get it paid for, and there is no intention in giving this advice of retarding such a natural and sensible longing as owning a home.

The price of farming land in the western states has, in some sections, reached a prohibitive figure, for it must be remembered that a farm is worth what it will produce at a profit, enough to pay interest on the investment, and a fair return for the President Guides the Machine.

That the Republican congressional machine is entirely subservient and dominated by the president is shown by Chairman Sherman saying he did not know exactly why he was called to Sagamore Hill at this time. It was supposed, however, that President Rooseveit wanted to tell Chairman Sherman that the $600,000 remaining in the hands of the Republican national committee, which was mostly liched from the trust funds of the life insurance companies, was to be placed at the disposal of the congressional committee to save the party from defeat.

WAGES AND COST OF LIVING.

Secretary Shaw Offers Himself a Liv-ing Sacrifice.

The Shaw tariff speech that he is delivering to Republicans in southern states follow so closely the stand-pat arguments of the inspired Republican campaign book that one is forced to believe that the "expert" who is reputed to have been the author of that "claims everything" compilation must also have written Shaw's speech. But whoever wrote the Shaw speech exposed the failacy of the whole argument of the advantage of selling abroad cheaper than here by assuming that the producer and the consumer belong to two separate and distinct classes instead of being the same mass of people. Mr. Shaw says that "if it was necessary to pay more for his clothes, shose, his sewing machine, his typewriter and his barber wire," he was willing "so long as the products of American labor generally supply every need of those who produce these things thus sold abroad at reduced prices." Secretary Shaw thus sacrificing himself on the altar of his country for the benefit of the balance of us, is a species of altruism only exhibited when the exigencies of Republican campaigns require such sacrifices. These workingmen for whom Mr. Shaw is so willing to impoverish himself, who, receive American wages, also pay American prices and the value of their wages is determined by what their wages will buy. Under the trust-breeding era of the present tariff aw the average price of all commodities has risen 47 per cent. since 1857. If wages or incomes have not kept pace with that extraordinary infation than the consumer, whether workingman, or tradesman, or professional man, is soling by the trust-fostering system that compels him to pressional man, is soling by the trust-fostering system that compels him to professional man, is a soling by the trust fostering system that compels him to pressional man, is not a supply to many of the necessities of life than the trust sell the same necessities to the foreigner for.

Can am one but the trust ince 1857, the same and cents were the condition of freer trade, lower prices? If our nimble workmen had row cause a dollar would go as far as nearly $1.50 does to-day.

A Republican Quandary.

The Republican machine in Ohio by indorsing President Roosevelt and Senators Dick and Foraker co-equally has produced a political dilemma. The Ohio Republican voter who believes that railroad rate regulation is for his own and the public good, must vote against his own ticket to indores such sentiments. The voter who believes with Senator Foraker that the railroads have vested interests that should not be disturbed, and with the same sentiments of the lukewarm Dick, can vote the Republican machine ticket, but at the same time such voter will virtually flout the president for being in such company. The Dick and Foraker political machines have joined forces in their emergency and have forced this quandary on the Ohio
Republican voters by forcing their coequal indorsement with the president, Boss Cox and all the corrupt elements of the Republican party of Ohio are enthusiastic for "the ticket," which alonest voters that they must defeat it, if they do not want to perpetuate the Foraker-Dick combine for ring rule.

Republican inconsistency.

If they do not want to perpetuate the Foraker-Dick combine for ring rule.

Republican inconsistency.

The Republican convention of California among other planks in the platform adopted, urged tariff revision, "to allow the admission duty free of building material at San Francisco for three years." The Republican majority in congress refused to report the bills for that purpose, introduced by Senator Newlands and other Democrats, although urged to do so by the Democrats. Congressman Gillette, whom the California Republicans have nominated for governor, was opposed to tinkering with the tariff even to relieve the suffering of the people, who he is now asking to vote for him. Whether the volers of California will indoze a platform that declares for one thing and a candidate for governor who direlared against it, will require the vytes to be counted to decide. But if consistency is a level, Mr. Bell. the Democratic candidate for governor, should receive every vote in San Francisco at least.

Historically the states of Virginia, Kentucky and all the states that were made from the Northwest Territory are interested. While land is comparatively cheap is the time to secure these national breathing places. The North Bend hills including Harrison's tomb, Congress Green and 200 or 300 acres of the heights and front overlooking the magnificent sweep of the Ohio at this point, would be an ideal location for a park. The old feliow who told me about it pointed out again and again that although black clouds might roll up and lightling flash, the storm always went around a certain spot in his farm.

"Such actions on the part of a thunder storm could mean but one thing, he said—that there was a copper vein there. So sure was he of it, that he was putting by a little each year to have the spot lavestigated to see it there was copper enough in it to work."

Tricks of Smuggiers.

Double-bottomed bottles and other vessels are common contrivances for smuggiers. In order not to awaken suspicion they are usually filled with some beverage, beer or wine, and this is duly declared by the man in charge of the vehicle in which they are carried. At the present time, however, the officers are never deceived by the double-bottomed bottles, nor, for that matter, by the hollow horse collar, which at one time was a favorite dodge for the alcohol smuggier.

Dudekins Has Yet to Get Even with Witty Charmer.

She had been having fun with poor budekins for a long time, and he was wishful to get even with her. His idea took the form of a brilliant conundrum, whose answer Dudekins thought was locked in his manly chest. "I have a conundrum for you, Miss Frances," he said, when he next met her. "Ah!" she responded. "What is it? Who gave it to you?" "I made it up myseif!" he asserted, wirdling, somewhat.

"Indeed! What is it?"
"Why are my clothes like the moon?"

Be he sitated a moment, and Dude-kins began to look triumphant.

"You may think," she said, slowly—and Dudekins somehow felt the sand slipping: from under him—"It is because they have a man in them, and you have a perfect right to think as you-please. But, Mr. Dudekins, opinions differ!"

INTERESTING CONTEST.

Heavy Cost of Unpaid Postage.

One of the most curious confests ever before the public was conducted by many tifousand persons under the offer of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., of Battle Cipeek, Mich., for prizes of 31 boxes of gold and 300 greenbacks to those making the most words out of the letters Y-I-O-Grape-Nuts.

The content was started in Pebruary, 1906, and it was arranged to have the prizes warded on Apr. 20, 1906.

When the public announcement appeared many persons begas to form the words from these letters, sometimes the whole family being occupied evenings, a combination of amusement and education.

After a while the lists began to come in to the Postum Office and before long the volume grew until it, required wagons to carry the mail. Many of the content and education.

Many of the content and the lists with insufficient postage and for a period it cost the Company from twenty-five to fity-eight and sixty dollars a day to pay the unpaid postage.

Young ladles, generally those who had graduated from the high school, were employed to examine these lists and count the correct words. Webster's Dictionary was the standard and each list was very carefully corrected except those which fell below 3000 for it soon became clear that nothing below that could win. Some of the lists required the work of a young lady for a solld week on each individual list. The work was done very carefully and accurately but the Company had no idea, at the time the offer was made, that the people would respond so generally and they were compelled to fill every available space in the offices with these young lady examiners, and notwithstanding they worked steadily, it was impossible to complete the examination until Sept. 29, over six months after the prizes should have been awarded.

This delay caused a great many Inquiries and naturally created some dissatisfaction. It has been thought best to make this report in practical

It teaches in a practicable manner that sclentifically gathered food elements can be selected from the field grains, which nature will use for rebuilding the nerve centres and brain in a way that is unmistakable to uzews of Grape-Nuts.

They Are of the Greatest Benefit to Growing Flowers.

Growing Flowers.

Prof. Darwin said that if it had not been for insects we should never have had any more imposing or attractive nowers than those of the sim, the hon and the nettle. Lord Avebury compares the work of the insect to that of the forist. He considers that just as the forist has by selection produced the etegant blossoms of the garden, so the insects, by selecting the largest and brightest blossoms for fertilisation, have produced the gay flowers of the field. Prof. Pisieau, of Ghent, has carried out a series of remarkable experiments on the ways of insects which are relied by seen trather than by color, and in the connection he is a twainance with certain British naturalists. Whatever may be the attraction in flowers to insects as yet, it appears undefined—it is certain that the latter visit freely all bissoms silke, making no distinction between the farge, bright-colored ones and the less conspicuous biossoms like those of the currants, the lime, the planetree, the nettle and the willow.

The Pain Family

You know them; they are numerous, and make their presence telt everywhere. The names of the family are Headache, Toothache, Earache, Backache, Stomach ache, Neuralgia, etc. They are sentinels that warn you of any derangement of your system. When the brain nerves become carhausted or irritated, Headache makes you miserable; if the stomach nerves are weak, in digestion results, and you double up with pain, and if the more prominent nerves are affected, Neuralgia simply makes life unendurable. The way to stop pain is to soothe and strengthen the nerves. "Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Fills do this, The whole Pain family yield to their influence. Harmless if taken as directed.

A STORY OF THE WILDERNESS JOURNEY OF THE HEBREW PEOPLE By the "Highway and By way" Preacher

SERMONETTE.

Paul seizes upon this dark chapter in the history of the Hebrew people to point a warning and make an appeal to the history of the Hebrew people to point a warning and make an appeal to the hidden of God today.

All left Egypt for Canaan, but all did not reach the rest and blessing of that promised land. Why?

Because of the awful sin of unbelief, the one certain barrier to the realization of the promised blessing of God.

Holding up this striking example of what the sin of unbelief and farfeit to the soul of man, Paul appeals to the Christian to "fear, lest, a promise belief can farfeit to the soul of the come about of it. Let us labon, therefore, to enter into come about of it. Let us labon, therefore, to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief. The ubbellef which drove the children of israel back into the wilderfield was the unbelief of a settled purpose, for had it not been so, jobby would, have life, tend to the last appeal of Caleb, and Joshua.

'So it is ever with the human soul. Where unbellef has been allowed it set and harden, like the cement block, there is nothing which can soften it and bring it back to the plastic, sale, again; "No, it cannot be saft-ened, but some day God's judgment will fall and grind the hardened freat of unbellef to powder, "Contemplate this, O soul," Lieself "To-day, if ye will hear his voice, harden net your hearts."

There is a wilderness in every life where prayes make the made and the silns of unbelief buried out of alght, before the soul can come lints the blessed privilege of the Promised Land.

out of sight, before the soul can come into the blessed privilege of the Promised Land.

Forty years, a year for a day! As pastly-heavy penalty to pay, and yet is not that the ratio which sin often exacts of the soul? Oh everly hand we see the marks of sin which will becarrige/glown to the very grave.

After all the graves in the wildencess were the only bright, places there, for they spoke of burled unbelleff and of the certainty that "the graves in the wildencess. Were the broders.

Graves are to put dead things in. An unbelieving heart is a dead heart, and were better burled! Yes, bury it, though it be with them, and the tool give you a new heart in which burns a living hope. Then the same will be suddenly transformed into the land flowing with milk and know, it.

THE STORY.

"ANOTHER burial." Moses muttered. To himselt, saddy, as he saw the solemn procession passing on towards the outer borders of the camp. "Surely the word of the Lord is being fulfilled, and, the graves of the children of Israel are filling the wilderness." The ased leader burned and, let his yes follow, the somber little group freditatively. There was the shroud-covered form lying so cold and still on the stretcher berne between the four, behind whom came the mourners, their fleads covered and their garments really la token of their grief. It was but one of many such segmes which, had marked the "wilderness journey during the many years they had been shut in there.

"Yes, the word of the Lord is being fulfilled. It cannot be long ere we shall enter the Jand of which God hath spoken."

"How so? Tell me," said Moses, with an eagerness which showed that the smallest incident in the life of his people was of the greatest interest to him.

Osygen and Mushrooms.

A singular way of removing oxygen from the air by the aid of a plant is described by Dr. T. L. Phipson. Inside a glass bell-jar, suspended over water, is placed a mushroom, and sunlight is allowed to fall upon the plant. The mushroom absorbs the oxygen from the air in the jar, and the carbonic ncid formed during the process is absorbed by the water, which gradually rises in the jar to un-eifth of its height. The mushroom now dries up; but its animation is only suspended, as may be, proved by introducing beside it a green plant, when it will recommence to vegetate, being nourished by the oxygen exhaled from the fresh plant.—Cherr cal News.

The Great American Hen.
Some one has figured that the American hen each year earns enough to buy all the silver and gold dug out of the mines, all the sheep in the country and their wool, and leave a balance equal to the entire year's crop of rye, barley, buckwheut and potatoes. Or, as a hen enthusiast writes, "she pays the interest on all the farm mortgages, pays the entire state and county taxes of the whole Union, and then leaves a balance large enough to give every man, women and child in the United States a dollar."

CARING FOR SILK STOCKINGS. Proper Way to Wash Expensiv

Proper Way to Wash Expensive and Fragile Material.

We wear such expensive stockings in these days that it is necessary to know a little about the care of them. Given into the hands of the average laundress, they become a perishable extravagence.

If tan stockings are not to be faded an ugity, hillious yellow-green, they should be first allowed to lie a while in cold water with a little salt in little had the stocking, rinsed in cold water, and hung in the shade to dry.

In washing silk stockings they should first be soaked in borax water, afterward washed quickly in soap suds which is more than hiod becomes harsh and crinkly.

A little bluelag should be added to the water if the silk stockings are white, but not if colored.

Instead of wringing silk stockings are white, but not if colored.

Instead of wringing silk stockings out simply succeed them well, afterward rinsing in two waters the same temperature, hanging out to dry without wringing.

Knjt silk should never he sprinkled. Instead wring out a towel from hot water, fold stocking up in it, and leave for an hour. In ironing them smooth out all the wrinkless on the soling hours and have a hour and hay if a deep dish and pour the benzine over. When the solind has been removed turn the stockings right side out, and with a fresh supply of benzine wash again. Dry thoroughly and they are ready to wear, REGULAR HOURS FOR MEALS. Matter of importance Housekeepers Frequently Overlook.

Matter of importance Housekeepers Frequently Overlook.

Everyday Luncheons says too much cannot be said in favor of regular hours for meals. Midway between breakfast and dinner there should he a nourishing luncheon, not elaborate in quality or quantity, but sufficient. Furnaces are supplied with coal each day at approximately the same hours. The jewelers who deal in expensive watches will advise winding the watch-at-exactly the same hour each day. Does not the human body mean as much to the soul that dwells in it as a watch or a furnace?

When one eats a hearty breakfast, the noon luncheon should be light, and consist mainly of fruit. When breakfast is light, the non luncheon should be of a more substantial character. A lively form of entertainment has heen recently in vogue. Housekeepers gather together, and the hostess distributes pencils and slips of paper. Each woman writes on as many slips of paper five liet-overs" likely to be in any refrigerator at any time. These are all shaken up together, and each woman draws five. The problem is to get the best possible luncheon from the "left-overs" on the five slips, and the one who tweets the five.

A Tasty Dish.

Take a sheep's liver, wash well, cut it in slits about a quarter of an inch apart nearly through.

Prepare a stuffing of the following.

Crumble a small basintul of bread, chopped pareley and sumer savory; add pepper and salt to taste; mix in a nice bit of dripping.

Mix all well together in a bowl. Add sufficient water (not milk) to make it nice and soft. Then fill every slit well with the stuffing. Place in a good-sized dripping tin.

If any stuffing is left over place round liver in tin, then cover well with cold water, and cook gently one hour or one hour and a half, according to size of liver.

When nearly done put a few slices of hacon in with K. Serve hot, wih mashed potatoes, and you will have a very appetizing dish.

Cause of Rust on Clothes.

It is said that rust spots are frequently traceable to the bluing used in washing. Frussian blue, which is sometimes used in their preparation, is a compound of iron and in the presence of an alkall deposite a rust spot. You can test it by boiling a little of it in a vessel with soap, or, better still, with caustic potash. If iron separates, the compound is Prussian blue, and you will have to be cureful in rinsing to get out all of the soap.

DEER FEED ON PEACHES.

Connecticut Farmers Restive Under

While the Connecticut farmer is sleeping saugly curled up. In his best mortgage, along comes a mild-eyed and wild-toothed deer and drags from the sagging limbs bushel after bushel of peaches. Statistics as to the capacity of a deer's stomach to being at hand, it is impossible to estimate the exact amount of damage per deer per peach per farmer, but the total is so much that the attorney general of the state was appealed to to decide whether or not peaches are crops. says the Boston Advertiser. The says they are, and the farmers are heghning to try to collect damages from the state, which projects the deer until 1911. As a matter of fact, and aside from considerations of peach advertising, the animus of the agitation undoubtedly is the restiveness of the Connecticut smooth bore, which rusts on the wall, waiting for a snack of venison. Undoubtedly there will be introduced into the legislature of Connecticut this fall bills looking toward the opening of the deer season before 1911. The Connecticut farmer (backed by those city folks who are making used in the three of the state in damages a botter price than he could ever get for his peaches in the market.

A FOOD CONVERT.

Good Food the True Road to Health.

The pernicious habit some persons still have of relying on nauseous drugs to relieve dyspepsia, keeps up the patent medicine business and helps keep up the army of dyspeptics. Indigestion—dyspepsia—is caused by what is put into the stomach in the way of improper food, the kind that so taxes the strength of the digestive organs they are actually—rippled.

When this state is reached, to resort to stimulants is like whipping a tired horse with a big load. Every additional effort he makes under the lash increases his loss, of power to move the load.

The Louisville "lid" has gone

Not many days now until the double header election will be pulled off in Kentucky.

Hon. William Schuerman, of Carrollton, Republican candidate for Congress, was in Burlington, last night. He is manking an active canvass.

The Trimble Democratic Committee will enforceits anti-money and anti-whisky rule at the primary election in that county next month. The same rule could be enforced in every county in the State, if the committees had the moral backing that is given the Trimble County Committee.

The call for a meeting of the Tobacco Growers at Winchester on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of next month, will not appeal to the growers of this county very strong, as matters connected with one or two other attempts to organize the growers, have not been satisfactorily adjusted with them. The scheme to pool the crops could be made very profitable to the growers if they will take hold of it, but the past disappointments will mitigate greatly against an effort in that direction.

against an effort in that direction.

An exchange tells the following pointed dialogue between two dollars that chanced to meet: Two dollars that had been taken into a till were holding a conversation—together. This was not an unusual circumstance, because everybody understands that money talks: "I would hate to be the wife of the man who owns us now," said one dollar to the other. "Here too;" said the other dollar. "If he squeezes her as he does us, he will break every bone in her bod," "I notice, however," answered the other coin, "that the man who squeezes a dollar hardly ever squeezes his wife."

dollar hardly ever squeezes ms wife."

In the excitement resulting from the primary election campaign the Democrats must not longer that a Congressman is To be elected on the sixth day of next month. Their candidate, the Hon. Joseph L. Rhinock, has made them a faithful member for one term, and it is a law of long standing in the Democratic party that where an officer has made good the first term he shall have at least a second term. Mr. Rhinock's record shows that he has accomplished more in the interest of his constituents than is usual for a first termer, and with the experience he now has he will be enabled to render his district still better service next term. Joe Rhinock is excelled by few in the matter of business attainments. He grasps a business proposition readily, a very necessary qualification for a Congressman in these days of so much shadylegislation. Joe Rhinock is entitled to your cordial support. He has served the district faithfully and is the Democratic nominee, What more should Democrats ask?

The first requisite to be con-

Democratic nominee. What more should Democrats ask?

The first requisite to be considered in a saddle horse is the quality of being surefooted; the second, that of a kind disposition coupled with a good mouth; third a courage and ambition, fourth, the conformation of a weight carrier; fifth, gaits and mambers. Neither the first qualification nor the order in which it is placed will be disputed. No stumbling horse should 'ever be mounted. Almost every person who has seen a horse knows the meaning of a kind disposition to a certain extent, and none can possibly appreciate it more than the rider. The saddle horse should by all means have a level head, and no no ent thing has tendency to produce this more than a good mouth. When drawing in thereins on a start, there should be a perceptible yielding on the lower jaw, followed by a steady pressure willingly given in such a way that the rider may at all times "feel" the horse's mouth, and the absence of a desire to pull or lug should be marked. The mouth is many times the root of all evil, and the thought of its influence upon the horse's disposition should never leave the first influence upon the horse's disposition should never leave the first influence upon the horse's disposition should never leave the first influence upon the horse's disposition should never leave the first influence upon the horse's disposition should never leave the first all right. It hought I should be marked. The mouth is many times the first indication of the disease of the Noise.

There are three or four most irrational practices followed by many country blacksmiths in the shoeing of horses that cannot be too strongly condemned. First, the cutting away of the frog, which is done by a majority of the country smiths, is a most positive injury to the foot and no reasonable argument in its favor. The frog is the natural cushion and expander of the hoof and was placed there by an allwise Creator. To cut it out means not only to rob the foot of the cushion that should soften the concussion of every step, but to allow the foot to contact at the head and e that should soften the concussion of every step, but to allow the foot to contract at the heel and become mishapen and crippled.

Another mistaken idea is that the sole of the foot should be thin, ned till it will yield to the pressure of the thumbs. The sole proper should never be touched by the knife. All loose scales may be trimmed away, but the knife should never cut either the sole or frog. All trimming on the bottom of the foot should be done by the rasp, which will trim the edge and not the sole.

Cutting a frog or sole in any way works an injury by causing the tissues to shrink and become hard and dry. A frog that has been trimmed by the knife often dries so as to become as detrimental to the foot as a stone or other foreign body. There is never any good excuse for touching the knife to any healthy frog. It will wear away fast enough if let alone. The writer never saw one that was too large.

Hot fitting of shoes to horses feet should not be allowed by the horses owner. While it may be possible, as claimed by some horseshoers, that a better fit is obtained in this 'way, and that no real harm is done to the foot if properly trimmed after touching with the hot shoe, it is also possible that a good fit may be obtained by cold fitting, and the latter process is certainly safer. If the foot be perfectly leveled with the rasp, and the shoe be made perfectly level there is not trouble about making a fit.

A very common fault among horseshoers is the habit of setting the shoe a little too far back on the foot and then 'rasping off the toe to meet the front of the shoe. The trimming of the hoot on the hoot on hoof should all be done from the bottom of the hoof before the shoe is set. The outside of the hoof should not be touched by the rasp except to smooth off any slivers around the edge. The common practice of rasping the entire outer surface of the hoof entire outer surface of the hoof error acting one should never be allowed, as it destroys the natural coating of varnish with which every healthy hoof is covered, and allows it to become dry and brittle.—Prof. J. M. Drew, in Farm Blacksmithing.

Late Plowing.

Late Plowing.

With proper management plowing can be followed until the ground freezes. There are some kinds of soils, particularly of a heavy or cloggy texture, that it is considered better to plow late, thus exposing to the action of the winter frosts. Some farmers like to plant corn on grass land manured in the fall and then plowed as late as possible before planting in this way turning under a considerable amount of vegetable material along with the manure, thus getting excellent results in the crops grown. This plan makes more spring work, but to a certain extent it may be, and doubtless is, a profitable course to pursue. Farmers should be fully persuaded in their own minds as to these things, and follow the methods that experience proves to be the most satisfactory and profitable for them.

The Jew and Others.

Many observers have noted the large number of Jews in the colleges and professional schools of America, and have prophested that in time a large proportion of the members of the learned professions will be men of Jewish descent. Sometimes they have talked about the auperiority of the Jewish intellect. One of the most noted Jewa in America has lately denied that the men of his race are surnied that the men of his race are su-perior to the men of other racea. He perior to the men of other races. He says that every one desires the things that are withheld, and that the way to make the family live is to confront it with hardships and persegutions. The hardships develop the powers and the withholding of opportunity makes opportunity highly prized. The development of the Jews in America proves the truth of these generalizations. The race has suffered persecution and is hardy. It has not enloyed freedom of opportunity in the old world. When it comes here it rushes for the free schools, the law and the medical books, as a thirsty animal word. When it comes here it raises for the free schools, the law and the medical books, as a thirsty animal plunges into a stream and revels in the cooling waters. One does not need to look to the Jew alone for proof that early denial of opportunity makes it prised, remarks the Youth's Companion. It is the country boy, spending his, youth where the field is limited, and dreaming of wider worlds to conquer, who rises to the top in the city. The city is to him not a place for amusement, but a place for work; and be concentrates his mind on his business when he secures employment in town, while his city-ored competitor too often dissipates his too often diasipatés competitor too often dissipates his energies by the amusements that are at hand for the distriction of the in-different as well as for the releas-tion of the industries. The surest way to make a boy prize things is to deny them to him until he has earned them.—Circumstances train men, by denying to them various privileges till they wreat them from an unwil-ling fiste.

By recent legislation France takes the lead of all countries in the projection which it affords to working men and the provision which it makes for their families. A workman in the diacharge of his duty does not now have to prove negligence on the part of his employer in order to recover damages. The government guarantees the laborer against loss through his employer becoming bankrupt, and in some cases an anuity of a value as high as 60 per cent of the workman's wages goes to his family in case he is killed. The employers, in order to protect themselves, insure against all kinds of liabilities, and the comsteet themselves, insure against kinds of lisbilities, and the com-nies which do this insurance are, turn, investigated by the govern-nt. Other countries in which va-us plans for the better protection working men have been advanced il watch with much interest the grees of the French methods.

"One reason why New York women are the neatest in the world," said the buyer for a Pittsburg notion and dry goods house, "its the fact that they use feweat pina. Apparently buttons, goods house, "is the fact that they use feweat pins. Apparently buttons, hooks and eyes, and tape performs the job of fastening their garments pretty thoroughly. Strange to aay, it is in Boaton that the pin trade. flourishea most abundandly. Women buy more pins there, according to the population, then any other city in the country. That habit does not speak well for Boston, remarks the Pittsburg Dispatch. The plu, habit is himileal to tidiness. That is the reason that New York women are so spick and spantidiness. That is the reason that New York women are so spick and span—they use few pins. They have not, to be sure, reached the state of excellence attained by the Chinese, who taboo pins altogether, but they are nearer that standard than any other commentative.

A record time for converting grain into bread has been established by a Canadian farmer. Wheat which was in the sheaf at three o'clock-in the affernoon was made into scones before six o'clock. When operations began a wagon stood in the barn with about haif a load of grain in the sheaf. Beside it was a thresher; connected with this was a gascoline engine. The engine was started, the sheaves were fed into the thresher and the grain was deposited in a bin. The power was then transferred to the cleaner and the work of changing the newly threshed wheat into flour was quickly carried through.

If Secretary Wilson insists record time for converting grain by fire Thursday night on Third avenue.

The total dead stands at ten, with two men so seriously injured by jumping that they may not recover.

The origin of the fire is still a myster, although the consensua of opinion seems to be that the house was set on fire.

There were 21 boarders in the house, almost all of whom were street railway employes. In addition there were three other persons, Mrs. Watley and her two sons. All have been accounted for.

The dead: W. N. Nichols, street car conductor; D. B. Neal, street car conductor; W. B. Taylor, street car conductor; W. B. Taylor, street car conductor; W. B. Taylor, street car conductor; W. B. Livingstone, rolling mill man; Olie H. Hines, employe Birmingham Filin Glass company.

The injured: C. E. Hentch, street car conductor; G. W. Troutman, motorman; C. E. Keith, street railway employe.

All the dead and injured occupled rooms on the second story of the house. The flames enveloped the entre building when the fire was discovered and it was with the greatest difficulty that the person on the lower floors made their escape. They saved nothing. Every piece of furniture in the house was burned. The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin.

Burgiars have been detected on the premises twice within the last two months and Mra. Walley thinks the house was burgiarized and then set on fire. Thieves were discovered at work during the progress of the flames and the policy were called to keep guard.

The ten charred bodies are at the morgue, where it is impossible to tel one from the other. The names given are those of the missing, the number of corposes found.

"It has come to my knowledge that ittionality, validity and interpretation of the law.

"This intervention finds a precedent in the leave given by the supreme court to this department to intervene in a private case arising under the safety appliance law. Under this intervention, in the case of Johnson against the Southern Pacific company, the judgments of the circuit court and circuit court of appeals were reversed and the law plainly interpreted and made effective by the judgment of the supreme court.

"This, of course, has received the approval of the president."

It is understood that when the attorney general decided to intervene in these cases he was in possession of information that many of the railroads had decided to enter upon a systematic effort to break down the law. This conclusion is said to have been reached at a meeting of railroad autorneys held in Louisville, Ky, a month ago. It is expected that a test suit will be brought soon in Kentucky and another in New Jersey.

In the death of Col. Issac R. Hill, known for generations back as "ike Hill, of Ohlo," the house of representatives has lost its most unique character. Col. Many are the stories that have been printed about "Re" Hill. In fact, so constantly has be been in the public eye that there are really few good ones that remain untoid.

In conversation Hill was as picturesque in the use of language as he was dignified in dress and carriage. He was original and quaint in his remarks, as witness the expression, "mark my words, young fellow, before next grass," etc., when he meant to say something would occur before springtime.

A new preacher had come to Newark at the time Col. Hill was a candidate before a primary and the colonel never tired of telling how he made the acquaintance of the gentleman of the citoth. "I was walking down to the polis," he said, "when I came up to this stranger. He says to me: (Good sir, I'm a newcomer to your bustling town. ALL PAY TRIBUTE.

HOW TRUST-FOSTERING TARIFF

Advance in Prices Has Reduced the Purchasing Power of the Dollar 45 Per Cent.—Limited Incomes Suffer.

The greatly increased cost of living under the trust-protecting tariff system weighs most heavily on those least able to bear it—fact have less income, because their dollars will not purchase as much as they formerly would. Oh July 1, 1896, the wholesale cost of all necessities per capita to the American people was $72.45; this year on the same date it was $10.521, an advance of 45 per cent. These figures are purposely taken from the Republican campaign book, page 138, so that no Republican can question their security.

that no Republican can question their accuracy.

It therefore now takes $1.45 to buy what can dollar would purchase in 1898. If the cost of living for the average family of the persons in 1896 a was $500, it now is $725, but if the income has been stationary and is still but $500, it will purchase 45 per cent. I come has been stationary and is still but $500, it will purchase 45 per cent. I can not be seen at the fact the income measured in necessities is but $775. Those who have small incomes, that have not increased with the cost of necessities, are therefore $5 per cent. Doorer to-day than they were in 1896. These calculations, which are based on Dun's index Number and are reliable as showing prices in proportion to consumption, indicate the growth of trusts and combinations protected by the tariff, which protection enables these combines to advance the price of their products to the point where foreign goods can be imported and psy-the tariff dutles.

If the tariff were revised and the duties on trust products reduced, those combines would be forced to reduce their prices. In proportion to about the percentage the tariff rates were low-red goods. The Republican claim that imports of the lower priced foreign soods would rust in the trusts and throw-their employed the lower priced foreign soods would rust in the trusts and throw-their employed the lower priced foreign soods would will be trusts and throw-their employed the season than here and the trusts and throw-their employed the season than here and therefor's can afford to reduce the price to our own people, as well as The Democratic plan of dealing with the tariff and trust problems is to gradually reduce the tariff on trust products, so as not to violently disturb the business of those gigantic combines, but give them a chance to conform their business to the changed conditions that a reduction of the tariff would entail. For instance, the duties on steel trust products could be reduced in like proportion and in a few years would be brought down to the Presidential Politics.

Presidential Politics.

The remedy of President Hadley of Yale for the political and other rascalities of the present day is to ostracise the eminent perpetrators. President Roosevelt evidently believes in the old plan of consorting with the sinners and thus engendering in them perhaps fruits meet for repentance. Or is it the exigencies of the G. O. P. that require the president to Javite Boss Penose to Oyster-Bay to consult about how to beat the Lincoln Republican reformers; and Congressman Littauer, who escaped prosecution for the army glove contract frauds, by virtue of the statute of limitations, on the factional fight in New York; and Cortelyou, chairman of the Republican national committee, who was receiver of the stolen funds from the policyholders of the life insurance companies and who used the money to debauch the voters in the doubtful states, whose aid in again raising a campaign fund is no doubt considered indispensable; and Paul Morton, the self-convicted rebater who was too warm a proposition to keep in the cabinet, but his advice about railroad and insurance contributions may be necessary? Perhaps constant association with the president Moscawelt forever withstand these and ilke contaminating influences? To consort all the winter with Republican constressmen would make most of us quake, but that strain upon virtue, to be followed during the recess by the contaminating influences described, would be

All the corrupt rings advise the young vote to support the whole ticket and pay no attention to the leaders or candidates.

The Republican party in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, in New Jersey, in New Hampshire, in New York, and other states, will forever be wallowing in the mire of Penroseism, of Dryden corruption, of Gallinger and Boston & Maine railroad domination, and cf. most disreputable machine politics in the empire state, if Shaw's advice is followed. The Democracy is different from Republicanism, the independence of the young ment and his attraction to the honest and able leaders of the party, has been, and will forever be, the saivation of the party of the people. Roosevelt Reforms.

Railroad rate legislation and other reforms could not have been enacted without the voice of Democratic congressmen, unless Republicans had been united for them in both branches of congress. It is certain that at less there would have been no Republican majority for the rate bill in the senate if the Democrats had opposed it. When the railroads and their congressional friends saw that there were enough Republicans who would vote with the Democrats to pass the bill, they at once decided to make the best of a bad bargain and accept conditions they could not overcome. Their efforts were then turned to amending the bill so that if not rendering it unconstitutional, it would do the least possible damage to the corporations. The appeal of President Roosevelt sons the rate bill, before he had been able to make the deal for the Allison amendment, when he then throw his allies overboard, proves that the bill could not have passed without Democratic votes.

Senator Foraker names a number of members of congress from Ohio who opposed President Roosevelt's policies, and others might be named from nearly every state who were also-known to be opposed, until the fact was shown that enough Republicans would oute with the Democrats to pass some of the measures.

The 'statehood bill' was first passed through the house, with the Democratic bit.

so in that caught Republicans would so in that cauche the provide with the Democrats to pass some of the measures.

The statehood bill was first passed through the house, with the Democrats opposing it. It was then a party and partisan measure, but when the Democrats, senators and some Republicans adopted the Forsker amendment, giving the people of Arizona the right to vote on Joint statehood. The Republican partisars of the house held up the bill until Mr. Williams, the Democratic leader, fillbustered and compelled the Republican majority to accept the referendum amendment. Mr. Roosevett found himself helpies to prevent this, because he say a seaked by the Democrats, and has altered by the Democrats, and has altered they would not get admitted for years.

The defeat of the Santo Domingo treaty is another instance where Mr. Roosevelt was defeated because his policy did not appeal to the Democrats.

Combs, at the risk of his own life, saved that of his most hated enemy and worst political opponent. Combs, 48, who is something of a cripple, on Auril 2, 1906, went into a gas-filled wait to rescue Richard Godson, who had sone there and was overcome by gas. He ran 600 yards to the vault, and, though weak and badly winded, also knowing full well that his enemy lay in the vault, slipped through the little manhole and handed him up to those on the outside three different times before they could pull the unconscious man out. Combs then fainted and was himself pulled out.

Should Be Made To Work, Says Bo er T. Washington.

Frankfort, Ky.—Booker T. Washington addressed a large audience at the opera house, but State Superintendent of Schools James H. Fuqua did not lutroduce Him. The latter stated privately that the announcement that he would introduce Washington was a mistake. He was introduced by J. C. Napler, a nero lawyer and banker, of Nashville. Washington told the Kentucky negroes that education did, not mean idieness; that education meant work for the hands as well as the mind, and if the idle negroes would go to work there would be no more disgrace brought upon the colored race. He said it is as honorable to work in the kitchen or as a laborer on a farm as in a school or pulpit, and that the thing for the negroes to do is to educate, themselves indispensable. The white people should differentiate, in a speaking of negroes, between the reliable and industrious and the worthless, he urged the negroes not to be discouraged during this season of trial and difficulty in the south.

The new Bank of England is Americal If we propose to build a railway we have to go to the United States for the necessary capital. Uncle Sam is a great admirer of health, youth and beauty, but he has no use for fraudulent preparations sold on the deceptive-promise to produce such results. The post office authorities have barred from the mails an "ellsti" which the government chemists found to contain six per cent. of alcohol and a small proportion of peppermint, the remainder being plain, ordinary water. Of course the gulls who were buying this worthless concoction in the belief that it would make them strong, youing and beautiful were paying fancy prices for it, and the sellers were reaping same fortunes. When the truth becomes fully appreciated that the surest and lest expensive method of acquiring health, strength and such measure of good flooks as a nature allots is to cultivate good habits, eat proper food and indulge in ample exercise, the charlatians who get rich by preying on human vanity will go out to business. who get rich by preying on hu vanity will go out of business.

If the women of the United States who go shopping in their carriages think they are models of exclusiveness they should visit Mexico. Not so many years ago when a Mexican woman went shopping she remained in her carriage in the street and sent her iservant into the store to call one of the clerks to wait-upon-her. He came out and received her orders and brought the goods to her for examination. This peculiar method of shopping was due to the old Mexican idea that a lady of good family should that a lady of good family should plng was due to the old Mexican idea (that a lady of good family a should shield herself from the gaze of the public, and, in fact, from every one except her immediate relatives and most intimate friends. THEATRICAL AGENT CONFESSES Murder Was Traced To Him By Stole Gems-Mrs. Leslie's Death No Longer a Mystery.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Howard E. Nicholas confessed to the police that murdered Mrs. Theedore Blizzard steek known by the stage name of Mayaret Leelle, the Indianapolis actrassivho was found dead in her room on the Palace hotel. The first police in quiry and the coroner's verdict set it down as suicide, and the solution of the mystery as a plotted murder came with startling suddenness.

Nicholas, who had been held by the police "on suspicion," was subjected to severe and continuous examination, and finally broke down completely in Capt. O'Brien's office, after he had been contronted by a man to whom he had sold some of the murdered actress's jewelry. This man identified the prisoner unequirocally.

Then, in the confession, which was forthcoming soon atterward, Nicholas implicated Leonard Leopoid, 25, who formerly worked as a drug clerk in the Revere house pharmacy, not far from the scene of the murder. The police are now bending every effort to incate Leopoid, and it is believed that Nicholas has furnished the police with Information that will lead to his apprehension within a few hours.

The motive for the crime was robbery, Nicholas and Leopoid having janned the murder several days in advance of its execution.

Mrs. Leelle, as she was generally known, had $2,000 worth of jewelry, consisting of diamond and gold rings. After having killed the woman the womurderers divided up the booty, and the police found some of the jewelry in the possession of Nicholas. Nicholas first offered to tell his story if granted clemency, but, on this being refused, made a complete confession. He said that he and Leopoid about to the woman's room and, after a few moments' conversation, he suggested that they have a drink, producing a bottle of whisky. Mrs. Leelle was taking of her jewels at the time and her back was turned toward them.

While in this position Leopoid, according to Nicholas, setzed the woman by the throat and choked her into in sensibility.

Unless the department of justice changes its present plans the suit will be filed in the United States court at St. Louis.

The government's lawyers at first were disposed to petition the court for a temporary restraining order also, but it would be such a tremendous undertaking to put into execution an injunction of that character that it was decided to ask only for a perimanent order of prohibition.

BALAAM'S BLESSING

SERMONETTE.

Balaam is one of the strange, inconsistent characters we find in the Bible. Although not have been also been also Balaam knew the true God, but there were some things he cared more for than the true God. How true this is of multi-tudes in the world to-day. They have knowledge of the true God, and yet they prefer to dwell apart from God's people, they covet the things of the world and gladly receive the homage and tribute of the people of the world.

It was Paleant.

and gladly receive the homage and tribute of the people of the world.

It was Balaam's willfulness and not God's graciousness which at last wrung the permission to go with Balak's messengers. And Balaam is not the last person whose willful, perverse heart has overriden the expressed will of God.

Balaam could hobnob with kings who were piotting the downfail of God's people, but he could not after the Divine purposes concerning them. How limited after all are the powers of evil.

A consecrated heart never goes with an itching aim.

It is possible, for one to see with the clearness of an angel of light, and live like a creature of darkness.

To know God and to live God are two different propositions. The one is like the electrical apparatus all equipped for use, the other is the apparatus with the current turned on performing its functions.

It is a poor transfer of performing its functions.

High and hold gifts may be prostituted to base uses.

It is a poor testimonial to a man's religion when he can live in a community without making it better.

The two forward coaches of the electric train dived from the trestle while traveling at a high rate of speed and immediately sank in about 20 feet owater. These two cars were virtually sealed like prison vans, and not a soul aboard had the slightest chance to escape.

Almost migraculously 25 or 30 persons escaped from the third car as it hung for a moment balanced on an abutment of the bridge, and then it too dropped into the water, turned over on its side and sank in the water and mud.

The loss of life was frightful, greater of the send that it is state before. She was homely, and to most persons unattractive; yet as 'she entered the train a sort of halo seemed to surround her as one set apart from common mortals. There was no indication of exceptional talent, ability or endowment about her, no evidence of superiority, but a certain indefinable distinction. It was not quite an air of conquest, though suggestive of satisfactory achievement, ishe bore her head high and wore a Buddhalike expression of proud serentity. Only a moment was she settled in her seat when off came her gloves, and then the key to the problem was evident. JAPAN LAND OF JUGGLERS.

Japan is the land of Jugglers and fashionable Japaness always have them at any large entertainment they give. One very clever old man goes around in a single cotton gown with two baskets full of "properties" over his shoulders, and, putting them down anywhere, performs his tricks, with the expectant audience encircing him. A hatful of coppers rewards him sufficiently and he goes on to eat fire, disgorge eggs, needles, lanterns amonking pipes at the ext place. Just as it looked like a period of nice weather had arrived, last week, the mercury dropped and the clouds closed out the sun. The farmers ought to endeavor to make their institute to be held in Burlington on November 9th and 10th, a success.

The cool, dry weather, this month has dryed out the corn con-siderably, and some farmers have cribbed small quantities.

The month of September was very unfavorable for the preparation of ground for sowing wheat and oats and other fall work is retarded. Heavy and continuous rains have delayed the outting of corn, as also injuring its quality, causing it to rot to some extent. Tohacco has suffered from excessive moisture and much of it which was housed has been damaged by house-burning, while that remaining on the scaffolds, or still uncut, reports indicate a poor quality and considerable loss in weight. In the Burley District the estimated yield compared to 1905 is 90 per, cent, while the estimate of that housed to October 1 is 77 per cent of the crop. In the Dark Tohacco District, the estimate of yield compared with 1905, is 80 per cent, and the figures show that the amount housed is 70 per cent of the crop. The yield of corn over the entire State as compared with last year is very gratifying, being 107 per cent, but some of it will be of inferior quality on account of lack of sunshine. Reports indicate that the acreage of ground prepared for wheat compared with 1945 is only 35 per cent. With favorable weather from now on there is time enough to increase the sowing of this crop materially.

Fall pastures are the best known for years and all stock is in good condition. Very little disease is reported among animals except in one or two counties, where there is some complaint of Hog Cholera.

A scaffold on which Wm. Wilson, the telephone man, was at work at Dudley Rouse's last Thursday, began to fall, when he jumped to the ground, striking a pail that came very nearly being driven through one of his feet. It has caused him considerable pain.

It is quite evident that the farmers expect to get good prices this fall and winter for good tohacco. There will scarcely be a crop in which will not be found considerable pain.

Albert Conner, of Locust Groven is eighborhood, called at this office, last Saturday morning, and inquired if anyone had reported that he is done hunking corn. When an swered in the negative he smole abroad smile, and remarked, "I am done," and claim to be the first farmer in the county who completed that work this fall.

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Here is an example of what YOU could do.

Mr. John Closner has a farm near Hidalgo, Texas. has raised three crops of corn on one piece of land in the last fifteen months. Each crop yielded not less than fifty bushels

He does not have to wait for the ground to thaw in the Spring. Almost as soon as he harvests one crop he can plant for the next. He is not afraid that the weather will be too wet or too dry or too cold. He waters his land by irrigation and has an inexhaustible supply of water. If you will write Mr. Closner at Hidalgo, Texas, he will tell you more about this country. There have been many other instances of remarkable success in the Gulf Coast Country, of which I will be given the tell you mon request.

to tell you upon request,

Wouldn't you like to have a small farm there where success does not depend on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

SUGAR TRUST SNAP

NEXATION OF CUBA

conemic Problem it Would Bs Ws for People of the United States to Consider—How People Are Plundared.

Plundared.

The augar trust already has a soft map and if we annex Cuba it will plunder the people of more millions, unless the sacred tariff is revised. The trust sells its refined sugar on the basis of the cost of the raw sugar and the tariff duty and profit added. It buys most of the raw sugar from Cuba and on that pays the tariff duty, less a discount of 20 per cent. of which discount the trust gets at least one-half. The sugar from the Philippines imported into the United States is allowed a discount on the tariff duty of 25 per cent. and of this the trust gets nearly all. The sugar imported from Hawali comes in free of duty, so that any Hawaiian sugar the trust buys it pays no duts, upon. Of course, the price of sugar in Cuba and the Philippines is somewhat increased by the discount on the tariff, duty, or, as in the case of Hawaii and Porto Rice, by being admitted free of duty there is a subsidy, amounting to what the duty would be, to be divided between the sugar grower and the sugar trust.

The price of sugar in the United tween the sugar grower and the sugar trust.

The price of sugar in the United States is fixed by the trust at just a little less than refined sugar can be imported for, after paying one and $5-100 cents per pound, which is the tariff on two sugar ranges from $5-100 on a cent a pound, up to one and $5-100 cents a pound according to quality, though when it is pure enough to be assessed at the higher duty it is ranked as refined sugar and the duty is one and $9-100 cents a pound. This difference in the tariff, duty between refined and enough raw sugar to produce the same amount of refined sugar, is the "differential" in the tariff duty in favor of the trust. But the important matter to remember is that as long as any sugar is taxed by the tariff, all the sugar that is imported at a discount on the tariff duty is paid for by the people at the same price as if it was refined sugar, you which the full duty had been paid. The domestic cane sugar grown in Louislana and the beet sugar produced in several states is all sold at the highest price, so that virtually the artiff at the sugar that can be grown. If all the sugar that can be grown. If all the sugar that can be grown. If all the sugar that can be grown.

Third Assistant Postmister Graeral Madden is trying very hard to help the railroads who are subsidized by a Republican congress. He lately appeared before the United States postal commission, which is investigating the alleged violation of the law by publications enjoying the one cent postage rate. The commission consists of Senators Penrore of Pennayivanis, Clay of Georgia, and Carter of Montana; and Representatives Overstreet of Indiana, Gardner of New Jerwey, and Moon of Tennéssee. Maden charges that most of the $14,000,000 deficit in postal receipts is chargeable to publications that have unlawfully taken advantage of the one cent rate. If this were true Madden is to biame for allowing unlawful davantage being taken of the law, but the facts do not warrant any such charge, for the law has been interpreted by Madden as much as possible against the newspapers and other publications. The deficit is caused by the enormous price paid the railroads for carrying the mail and the plundering by the raipid increase of the rural free delivery routes.

COMFORT OF A SMOKE

Description Made That Materiais Are Too Easy to Handle.

"Here is a box of tobacco that I know I'll not like at all," remonstrated a man who smokes all the time, seys the Providence Journal. "There's such a thing as making smoking too easy. I wont' say that this over-refinement takes the poetry and romance out of smoking, but it robs it of the pleasure to be derived from what I call mussing with the material for want of a better name.

"Everybody enjo's puttering over a pipe or a cigar, or a cigarette even. You take a cigar and hunt for a snipper or knife or scissors to cut the end; then you blow through it to get rid of the dust and some moisten the wrappers with their tongues. A good many people roll a cigarette to make it draw, and pull out the loose filling. And in the old days it was the same way with a pipe. We shook and cleaned and scraped it out; after that we whittled a pipeful from a ping, and manipulated it and stinfed It in just so, and used a card of matches to set fire to the thing. There was considerable genuine comfort and satisfaction in going through with these preliminary processes.

"But the figs all up in so far as the pipe is concerned. First they shaved the tobacco thin for us, as you'd shave bacon, and packed it ready for use, and now, in this box I've just purchased, the shaved tobacco is divided, and subdivided and cross-chopped into tiny cubes. All you have to do is to take a pinch of it, drop it into the bowl, touch a light to it and pull. Til admit that the predigested tobacco burns evener and more freely, just as fine cut chews easier than hard to bacco; it's less trouble, but that's just the point. A smoker doesn't want less trouble."

In view of the above statements, what becomes of my opponent's claim that he was in Frankfort 59 days last winter in the special interest of the state normal school bill?

It is evideant that he is trying to deceive the public by claiming to have labored to promote this normal school legislation. Why did he try to conceal his real business before the legislature? Four Candidates From Seventh District.

Four Candidates From Seventh District.
There are 11 congressional districts in the state and nine candidates to be nominated for state offices. The Seventh district has four candidates in the field, Mr. Guillon for State Superintendent being the last one to announce. Two of these four candidates have no opposition, viz. Hon. Henry M. Bosworth for auditor and Hon. South Trimbe for lieutenant governor.
As a matter of fairness and justice to the other sections of the state, and in order to atrengthen the ticket would it not be advisable to distribute the candidates over the state, rather than to nominate four out of nine from one section?

over the fact that I have selected for chief clerk of the honse of representatives for the past 25 years. He seems greatly distressed over Mr. Stone's Years Superintendent of Covington Schools.

Covington Ky, Oct. 23, 1906.
As a school man I am watching the progress of the campaign for Superintendent of Public Instruction with more than ordinary interest; and I feel that the people should be alive to the educational demands of onr commonwealth.

The best interests of public schools demand that a thorough school man should be elected to the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction in Kentucky. He should be a teacher by profession and a man of wide experience in actual school work. He should be a leader in his profession as well as a scholar. He should know the educational needs of the state, and should be ever ready to sacrifice personal ease for the good of the state. Such are some of the qualifications the superintendent of public instruction should have. If all the qualifications are possessed by a candidate the people should not heeitate to cast their votes for him on election day. Fortunately for the educational interests of Kentucky, there is such a candidate in the person of Prof. M. O. Winfrey, superintendent of the Middlesborough city schools.

Very respectfully,

JOHN MORRIS.

In my long association with Prof.

No man has ever worked more ardenty for the upbuilding of our common schools, no one in our state is better equipped for the duties of the important office of Superintendent of Public Instruction, and certain its that no other one has done such effective work for the establishment of our state normal schools; and in my humble opinion the best thing that can happen to the educational interests of our state is to even the series of our state is to even the series of our state is to even the first that can happen to the educational interests of our state is to even the first that can happen to the several begins a new and more progressive era in Kentucky.

American Pauperism.

The special report on pauperism in the United States which the census bureau has issued affords some interesting information, the general impression gained being that the number of people living in atmshouses is not increasing with the development of the population. Like most government reports the majorial is two years old, and yet it gives a basis for years old, and yet it gives a basis for of the population. Like most government reports the majerial is two years old, and yet it gives a basis for consideration and deduction. The report indicates that at the close of the year 1903 there were $1,764 paupers in the almshouses, that during the year 1904 there were admitted $1,412, making a total of 163,176 persons who were in these homes during some part of that year. Of this total $1,359 were women, of whom it is said that, once admitted, they are more liable—to—remain—permanently than the men, who leave during the summer and return when the cold weather comes on. This percentage of "regulars" is so great that the majority of those who were admitted during 1904 had been in the almshouse before. Of course, says the Chicago Tribune, it would be wrong to assume that this comparatively small number of people, less than 200,000 in a population of $5,000,000, represents all the abject poverty in the United States. For there habeen a wonderful advance in this country in the methods for handling the improvident members of society. Institutions have been established for the special care of different classes of unfortunates who once made up much of the almshouse constituency. Great efforts have been put forth to make former dependents now partly 'self-supporting, and many a child has been sayed to society and made an honest, industrious citizen through the instrumentality of home finding reganizations. In fact, the figures which are given in the report tell in Abmanules the marked gain which organizations. In fact, the figures which are given in the report tell in themselves the marked gain which society has made under the sympathetic and intelligent direction of earnest students of social problems.

"Bad" Air Not So Bad.

Foul air—which has for its accepted meaning, air heavy with the gases and odors of decay—is not, in itself, poisonous, or even unhealthful. Unless it contains such a large proportion of foreign gases that it is noticeably lacking in oxygen, its chief effect is psychic. Some persons, in brief, cannot abide a stench. It sets their maginations, and the result is that they grow pallid and, at times, seasick. Thus, indirectly, it may weaken then and make them an easy prey to wandering microbes. But, of itself, it produces little direct harm. Medical students, breathing the unspeakable gases and odors of the dissecting room, manage to eat vast dinners and to grow fat. That foul air is usually laden with rather more germs and germbearing insects than air which seems (to the nose) to be pure, is beside the point. Experience shows, says the American Magazine, that pure air often contains as many of these enemies to health as the most foul exudations from a sewer outlet. The Stegomy's fasciata, which carries the germs mes to health as the most foul exuda-tions from a sewer putlet. The Stego-myia fasciata, which carries the germs of yellow fever, would be just as dead-ly on a mountain top as along the shore of a Louisiana bayou. Hence, the absurdity of shotgun quarantines and of all the other medicinal manifes-tations of alarm that appear when yel-low jack rages on the guif coast."

One of the small glaciers in Montana is of especial interest on account of the fact that an the mass of ice there are imbedded two strata of grasshoppers, each about a foot thick. There are literally tons of grasshoppers in the ice, and the question naturally arises as to where they came from. The most obvious explanation, says Country Life in America, is that centuries ago two enormous swarms in course of migration were caught in a snowstorm, chilled and buried in the snow, where they have remained till now in a perfect state of preservation. In the accounts of the early western explorers a few instances are related of meeting large swarms of locusts on the mountain tops in the Rockies. It the mountain tops in the Rockies. It is a very fortunate circumstance that the great extension of agriculture in the west has broken up the breeding grounds of these insects.

New York, Oct. 31.—Mme. Emma Schell, a professional ilon tamer, stopped to wave a greeting to her cheering audience before she put her head in the Jaws of a lioness in Huber's museum, and that accord of delay savedher life. The great rows of teeth of the beast snapped together, and Mme. Schell is in Believue hospital' with both cheeks nearly bitten off by the maddened beast, and her beauty is so marred that she will never enter a lion-cage again.

Before an audience of 500 persons Mme. Schell entered the cage with acting but a short whip to protect her. As she opened the door the femile sprang at her, but she cowed the brute with whip lashs, closed the gate and successfully put the lions through their paces, excepting the final act, which ended disastrously.

He fired a dozen shots at the lions, Jabbed them with the prod and succeeded in forcing them spart and into different corners. Mme. Schell was carried to the hospital still unconscious. Augusta, Ga., Nov. 1.—Dr. Jullan P.

norrowest escape in the history of American bailoon ascensions here.

The ascension was made from a field near the fair grounds. As he left the ground his balloon, the Nirvana, hecame entangled in some telephone

Thomas would be electrocuted. While the horrified crowd ran about almiess, advice, Dr. Thomas yanked from a sheath at his belt a big sailor's clasp knife and sisshed in twain the ropes, that hitched the car to the balloon.

The car dropped while the balloon bounded straight upward like a rocket.
The truant balloon went entirely out of sight, and after soaring above the clouds Dr. Thomas landed six miles from town, without sustaining a Automobiles Wrecked By Chauffeurs Who Object To Non-Union Subs.

New York, Nov. 2.—Police reserves from two stations were called out to quell a riot started by the striking chauffeurs of the New York Transportation Co. The first trouble began in Thirty-sixth street and Eighth avenue, when a motor car belonging to the company and driven by Arnold Bien reached that corner.

The strikers had caused to be placed a large coal wagon, driven by two men, diagonally across the street, and when the automobile reached that point a crowd of several hundred men when the automobile reached that point a crowd of several hundred men surrounded the car, pulled the chant feur from his seat, completely wrecked the automobile and filled the air with thouse and other missiles.

Two special officers on bicycles, who were in the employ of the transportation company, drew their revolvers and drove off the mob.

The reserves then retired and a new automobile, which had been telephoned for, arrived to take the wrecked ms chine, jerked the chauffeurs from the seat and beat them unercrituily. All this point reserves arrived on the scene and dispersed the rioters.

The Zulu War Cry.

The Zulu War Cry, used whenever they take the field by the South African footballers now in London, has puzzled our newspapers, not one of which scene able to spell it correctly, says Notes and Queries. The Deliy Express gives it as "igamlitho," and the Daily Mail as "Gammillo." The Drive Express gives it as "igamlitho," and should be written "igama layou" is a possessive pronoun, mean-should be written "igama layou" is a possessive pronoun, mean-ing either "his" or "their." Thus the Daily Mail, atthough quite wrong in its orthography of the cry, is right in-saying that it merely means "That is his name," The explanation is that Zulu etiquette does not allow warriors, when they rush into battle, to mention the names of their enemies, but the jeaders shout out, "That is his name," pointing to the victims with their spears.

their spears.

A Rule and an Exception.

According to the New York Tribune, a country paper lays down this rule of etiquette: "When a lady and gentlemian are walking in the street, the lady should walk inside of the gentleman.

It seems a little strange that this simple rule, so long current among the cannibal tribes of the Andaman and other islands, should find its way into a rural journal of more or less civilization. It would appear that the etiquette editor of the paper in question was either too careless or too hurried to note any exceptions to the rule. Otherwise he would have explained that when the gentleman was threty and desired to enter a cafe, the lady would walk on the outside.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TARIFF AND WHEAT

TRUTH THAT FARMERS SLOW TO REALIZE.

One can hardly blame the farmers in the wheat growing regions for organizing a coming to hold their wheat until the price advances. A dispatch from Kanasa 50 cents a bushe price of wheat as 50 cents a bushe of the price of wheat as 50 cents a bushe of the price of wheat as 50 cents a bushe of the price of wheat as 50 cents a bushe of the price of the present high prices. The tariff protected trusts have advanced the prices of nearly everything the farmer buys over 45 per cent. since the present high tariff lar the wheat farmer is a myth, although Secretary Whon, who, being secretary of agriculture, should know better, declares the farmers were never so prosperous. Secretary Shaw is making equally presposierous statements, and states in the speeches he is making on his partisan stumping tour that the tariff makes the farmers prosperous because it protects the home market from foreign "importations." But facts belle their words, for wheat is protected in the tariff by a duty of 25 cents a bushel, but that does not prevent the price from depreciating until in Kanasa, as noted above, it is 50 cents a bushel.

It is strange that Republican farmers swallow such Republican farmers who was a continue that party in power, which protects every trust that, produces what the farmer must buy and only pretends to protect the farm products is settled by the law of supply and demand. If there is a surplus of wheat and other agricultural products, but the price of those farm products is settled by the law of supply and demand. If there is a surplus of wheat and other farmer would not be affected. There is no tariff duty on cotton, that product is not a different product is settled by the law of supply and demand. If there is a surplus of wheat and other farmer when the price of those farmers to sell unit the years like the present one, which have no farmer in the price of the price of the price of the Eggs are at a fancy price, milk is higher, meat its again deserr and most of the other necessities, except flour, have advanced in price, which makes it trying for the housewife to make both ends meet, and the tariff is responsible for a good deal of it. Yet the Republican candidates for congress have declared for the stand-pat policy to continue if they control congress.

A SHACKLED CONGRESS.

Roosevelt and Canno: Agre

President Roosevelt tried to be ladroit in giving his advice to the voters of the United States, when he wrote that letter to a congressmal, waited was intended for the whole. Country to read. His admonition that "to change the leadership and organization of the house of representatives at this time means to bring confusion," shows that he believes with Speaker Cannon it is necessary to should perfect to obtain legislation that is necessary to read perfect to obtain legislation that is necessary to read perfect to obtain legislation that is necessary to protect them from trinst and corporation coercing through government by injunction. Yet he says: "We favor the organization of capital be on condition that organized alsor, and organized capital alike act in a splirt of justice and fair dealing and due regard to both the letter and spirit of the law." Cannon is notoriously opposed to all the demands of labor and will, if elected speaker of the next congress, pack the committee on labor against labor legislation, and yet President Roosevelt declares that "change the leadership of the house" would be a party catastrophe, so he must agree with Speaker Cannon in his autocratic declarations against reform.

President Roosevelt says: "We favor the organization of capital is known as a trusts, and as Cannon is known as a trust, and as Cannon is worth of capital. The spectacular hauling of a trust independent while making a great display of prosecution strusts, though not one has been ready punished, is really favorable by trust high prices; in fact, the president while making a great display of prosecution trusts, though not one has been ready punished, is really favorable to trust high prices; in fact, the president while making a great display of prosecution trusts, though not one has been ready punished, is really favorable to recesse its prices and thus make the consumers of its products pay he far the special privileges, such as the irriff protection that Mr. Roosevelt health and ready of the next congress to prev

Cannor pitch and not himself be defilled.

Democratic Opportunity.

The Republican managers of the congressional elections are whisting to keep up the courage of themselves and their followers, but like the boy passing through the graveyard at dusk, they are really "scared to death." They don't know what is going to happen, for so many Republican voters are breaking away from their political moorings that all the information that comes to headquarters is replete with forebodings of deteat. The old Republican machine workers are not enthuslastic in the cause, for they do not see much benefit from success, except those who are holding down federal offices and they, of course, are enthusiastically putting in their time at politics, in stead of attending to business. The late conference of the Republican beaders at the White House was gloomy, although it was given out that victory was certain. But the Republican between should cheer up, the tariff protected trusts are putting money. Into the close concressional districts to save the standpat congressional candidates and matters may not be as desperate as the new amateur managers are scared into believing they are.

Democrats everywhere should take advantage—of the Republican apathy and by personally urging all Democrats to vote, victory is assured. There are always enough stay-attorne voters to change the result in close districts and the whole Democratic problem is to got these laggard voters to the polis.

voters to the poils.

Political Principles.

While men do not always live up to their principles, it is well to have principles. No man could wish to be trathfully denounced as unprincipled. The most important principles are political. These are the principles of a Democrat, namely: Freedom of the press, of conscience, and of speech; equality of all citizens before the law; the right of trial by jury; freedom of the person defended by the writ of habeas corpus; the supremacy of the civil over the military authority, the separation of church and state low taxes, a tariff for revenue only; economy in public expenditures; fidelity to treaties; a faithful execution of the laws; aboute acquiacence in the will of the majority, reverence for the constitution; and a fair division of the joint products of labor and capital; the rights of labor as acared and as inalienable as those of life or property. If you believe in these principles, you are at heart a Democrat and should be willing to see these principles carried into effect by the election of those he est and able enough to enforce them.

A young American who recently completed a course of study in an English university brought home as a souvenir of his residence in that classic place a decided English accent, says the New York Press. "Because you get your shoes shined so often," was the startling reply. "If you were an Englishman you wouldn't do that. Nobody takes such good care of their shoes as Americans. If it were not for their daily shine, a lot of us fellows would have to go, out of business and the sale of blacking and pollsh would fall off one-half." With full knowledge of the facts I am sure the people will stand for measures that tend for peace, for improving and developing our resources, for stimulating our foreign commerce and international trade by lessening the tax bu Few Americans appreciate the large amount expended by this peace loving nation for war and preparations for war. Representative Livingston presents this simple eye-opener.

"The estimated receipts of the government exclusive of the postal service, for the fiscal year 1906 are placed at $589,093,000.

"Therefore we have the starting housedge that 55 per cent of the taxes paid by the people goes to maintaining the army, navy, fortifications, and payment of pensions.

Every decade has witnessed the breaking of "records" among all classes of animals, which is the best evidence that improvement is rapid, much of the success being due to inbreeding, a system that is unsafe unless practiced by one who fully understands the service, for the fact that their annual appropriations are excessively high than to compare the sum of these four appropriations and pension obligations, would have nearly paid for every bale of cotton raised in the country in 1899, valued at $323,758,

A desperate fight took place between two parties of frogs, each composed of not less than 10,000, in a large ditch in Ojimura, Harima prefecture, on June 24th, at about 1 p. m. Toward 9 in the evening the operation became very hot, a corps of about 4,000 standing firmly in the ditch against two other corps of over 3,000 each, which apparently seemed to be the invading army. The noise and bustle were more than can be described. In spite of the hard struggle, however, the battle did not end until 10 o'clock the next morning to the greatannoyance of the peaceful human moncombatants around the battle field, when over 700 warriors killed and 2,000 wounded were to be seen on the spot.— Japan Times.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Brief mention was made in a recent issue of the Recorder of a wind the first falls, while others windly our Gunpowder friends. On Saturday, October 20th, we went to Florence on a business trip and did not return to our home till seven o'clock, when to our surprise, the lawn in front of our house seemed to be full of horser, buggies and people, waiting in the dark for our return. The door was soon opened a fire kindled and the vivitors invited in. A spirit of restleseness seemed to possees some of the gentlemen present, and, soon, one by one, they left the room. In ashort time Mrs. Utz and I were called to the door, and there, on the poarch, was a barrel of flour, 55 pounds of truit, preserves, honey, jelly, apples, flavoring extracts, soap, 2 beautiful bake dishes brought by Miss Ella Duncan, of Burlington, a cash donation sent by her brother James, our genial circuit clerk, three large bags of corn and six fine Plymouth Rock chickens. So you see, Mr. Editor, a "pound" party does not express it as the donations ranged from two hundred weight down. weight of the Sexes.

If all the men and women, boys and girls, and infants—black, white, yellow, hown or red—in all parts of the world, could be weighed on the same scales, the average weight would be nearly one hundred pounds avoirdupois. Six-pound-infants and three hundred pound giants contribute to the average. Upon the average boys at birth weigh a little more and girls a little less than seven pounds. For the first twelve years the two sexes continue nearly equal in weight, but beyond that age the boys acquire a decided preponderance. Young men of 20 average 135 pounds, while the young women of twenty average 100 pounds each. Men reach their heaviest weight at about forty years of age, when their average weight will be about 140 pounds; but women slowly increase in weight until fifty years of age, when their average weight will be 130 pounds.

Some say that the number of snows booked for a winter depends upon the day of the month upon which the first falls, while others contend that the number of days old the moon is at the time the first snow falls, determines the number for the winter; consequently as the first snow fell this year on the 9th day of October, at which time the moon was 23 days old, there will be 9 or 23 snows during the winter. Tab keepers can settle the question as to which set of prognosticators is correct or nearest correct.

A Seedless Tomato.

While the agricultural experiment stations do not wish to duplicate each other's work, the Department of Agriculture has recently received reports from the experiment stations of New Jersey and Wisconsin'showing that both of these government institutions have been making experiments along identical lines—the production of tomatoes without seeds. The New Jersey types were obtained more as a result of crossing rather than as a direct attempt to produce a freak, the fruit being of good shape and color, but of inferior size. Professor E. P. Sandsten, of the University of Wisconsin, however, reports a most interesting experiment which he carried on with tomato plants. Recognizing the effect of high feeding, Professor Sandsten undertook his experiment last winter to show the effect upon tomatoes in the experiment station forcing house. Young seedlings, grown in ordinary garden loam were transplanted to three-

Our Washington Letter

A Bevy of Pretty Debuntantes Will Make the Coming Social Scasen at the Capital an Unusually Interesting One-Figures Shows ing the Salt We Eat.

WASHINGTON.—There is always a delightful expectancy relative to the debutantes of a Washington season; and this year's crop presents unusual features in many ways. There are rich girls and poor girls, pretty girls and homely girls, sit is no gainsaying that they are all highly interesting girls, and each possessed of many endearing young charms.

There will be at least 40 to enjoy the Bachelors, the Sixty Coupie and the numerous subscription dances, and there are more ballrooms to be open next season than ever before in this city. Usually a girl has established a reputation for dancing before the same it is not unusual to hear some well-seascend bachelor remark that a certain girl of his set is almost as fine a dancer as was her mother or perhaps her older sister. There is no longer such a thing as surprising the season before she is launched, just to make her easy and at home, you know. She dances through a winter, romps through tennis and learning. Not much. The out of the day give the summer, redeatly making her bow here, and sometimes even presented at court abroad just to give them experience.

Most all of the girls will make their debuts in December, and, so far as now known, the old-fashioned afternoon tea will prevail, with a charming exception, such as a pretty ball like the one at which Mrs. Gaff introduced Miss Zaidee Gaff two winters ago, or the series of dinners, which method was adopted by Mrs. Postlethwalte in presenting her faughter, whe was married Wednesday, October 3, to Henry Ives Cobb.

The chief sait producing states are Michigan and New York. Statistics recently gathered by the government show that the combined output of these two states amounts to more than two-thirds of the total production of the United States.

She Knew What Book It Was and "Copey" Found Out How.

"Copey" Found Out How.

Charles T. Copeland, Harvard's well-known reader, during the course of one of his lectures at Radcliffe college had occasion to read a page or two from a book, the name of which he took care not to mention. Stopping suddenly in the middle of a sentence, he said: "Now, I don't believe there are a dozen in this room who can tell me the title of the book this is taken from. Can you, Miss A? Miss B? Next, next," he continued, rapidly running over some 15 scattered around the room, and of whom shook their heads with an "I don't know."

At last he lighted on one pupil seated directly in, front of him. "What is the book, Miss X?" he asked. Without a moment's hesitation Miss X named it correctly. Mr. Copeland brought his fist down on the table with his characteristic bang.

"There, young ladies!" he said, "aren't you, ashamed of yourselves? Did you read the book for your own pleasure, Miss X?" he added, with an appreciative amile in her direction, "or was it prescribed reading in some course? Turn right around there and tell all these less fortunate ones how you happened to know the name of this book."

Slowly Miss X face spoke. "I knew you and institutly she sole." I knew you happened to know the name of this book."

Slowly Miss X faced the class, slowly and distinctly she spoke. "I knew the title of the 'book," she remarked, "because I saw it on the outside cover while Mr. Copeland was reading."
Then, amid the laughter of the class, she sat down with the same deliberation.
"O, Miss X, how disappointing!" was all Mr. Copeland sighed.—Christian Endeavor World.

Too Steep for Her.

A little girl had gone to the country from a city where there were no hills and from that part where there were many cemeterles. "My," she said, looking around her at the expanse of green hill and grassy meadow, "there's no graveyards. I guess that not very many people die here." It was explained to the child that there was a cemetery near the church on the top of a neighboring hill. "Well," said she, gazing upward, "I'd rather go uo it in a hearse than on my feet."

Englishman Hoarded Pennies and Left Large Fortune to Queen.

John Camden Neild, whose magnificent bequest to Queen Victoria supplied the funds out of which the prince consort built the present Balmoral castle, deserves a place among the great misers and was as remarkable a man as any of them. He was educated at Eton and Trinity college, Cambridge, and was a barrister at Lincoln's Inn. At the age of 34 his father's death placed him in possesion of a fortune of £250,000, and from that moment he became a confirmed miser.

Neild lived at 5 Cheyne walk, Chelsea. His big house was so meanly furnished that it did not even boast of a bed. Two old women, who did his stoves, and a black cat were his sole companions. When he visited his large estates in the Midlands, which he did frequently, he generally walked, unless he could get a lift for nothing, and he was not a lift or nothing, and he was not a lift or nothing, and he was not a lift or nothing, and he was not also a fund of the weather to take a seat on the stage coach. And there he would sit outside, shivering and dripping—for he never wore a greatocal—an object of commiseration to his fellow passeagers.

The Ideal Family Laxative.

Is one that can be used by the entire family, young and old, weak and strong, without any danger of harmful effects. It should have properties which insure the same dose always having the same effect, otherwise the quantity will have to be increased and finally loss its effect altogether. These properties can be found in that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills, because its ingredients are of the purest herbal extracts, and every pill is kept for three years before being sold, which allows them to mellow. We do not believe there is a laxative on the market that is so carefully made.

Brandreth's Pills are the same fine laxative tonic pills your grandparents used. They have been in use for over a century and, are for sale everywhere, either plain or sugar-coated.

Uncarny Chinese Legend.
There are the two celebrated towers of the imperial city, the Bell tower and the Drum tower. As to the casting of the bell in the former there is this legend: There had been two unsuccessful attempts and the life of the founder was threatened in case of a third failure. His daughter discovered by occult means that nothing but the blood of a virgim mingled with the blood of a virgim ningled with the molten metal would insure success. So as the next casting she sacrificed her life by throwing herself into the molten metal, leaving only one shoe behind, The casting was perfect. But when the bell was first struck "all were horror-stricken as, after the heavy boom of the bell, came a low wait, as of a girl in agony, distinctly saying the word 'heish,', shoe.' And to this day people when they hear it, say, "There's poor Ko-ai's voice calling out for her shoe,"—Shanghai Times.

MOSES' DEATH

SERMONETTE.

Death in its thought to most people is repulsive, and forbidding; a thing to be dreaded; a dark valley whose gloom casts a terror upon the soul. But death to the soul in perfect touch with God holds no terrors. It is but to the soul in perfect touch with God holds no terrors. It is but to the valley of the shadow. It is not real. It is only transition from the realm of God's acrit to the realm of God's haven. "Enoch walked with God, and God teok him." That was death for Enoch. What terror did it hold for him, think you? None to the company of the control of Jesus upon the mountain's summit.

Think you that death meant loss to Moses? Nay, verily, it meant infinite gain. God gave to him a glimpee of the Promised Land before his death. As he looked out upon that fair land and realized that he was never to set foot therein, was there a twinge of disappointment and sadness within his heart? Mayhap, but as God death and the earthly vision faded from his sight, there burst upon his opening vision in heaven a far more glorious scene, and if regret he had, it must have been that his beloved people, whom he had so long and faltifully led, were not coming direct to the glory land which his feet had gained.

THE STORY.

A THRILL of glad expectancy swept through the camp of Israel as they came to camp in the plains of Moab and it became known that they were on the very border land of Canasan, the land God had promised to give them. Little else was thought of or talked about. The children listened with eager fascination to their parents as they talked about the wonders of the land, and the young men with the impetuosity of sitring manhood, were impatient to push forward at once. And after they had encamped there several days the murnur ran through the camp from lipto lip and from tribe to tribe:

"Why delayeth Moses here: Why does he not go forward!"

When this complaint reached the ears of the leaders of the different tribes, they were troubled thereby, for they remembered that Moses had told them that God had said that he should never enter the Promised Land.
"Yes, and has not Joshua heen

Tes, and has not Joshua heen chosen as leader when Moses shall be taken from us?" spoke up one, who was of the tribe of Ephraim, the one to which Joshus belonged.

To be sure, but death seems far from our leader, for he is as full of vigor of mind and hody as ever he was," rejoined another of the group.

"And it is for this very reason that the people still look to him for leadership and expect him to lead group broke in.

The nurmenting is growing bitter ing the people, who in their lineause of the younger men of the comments of the younger men of the comments, and to looked about upon his midst he went, with face turned upwiss as though he would could ward towards the mountain God had altern to solve the problem And

Is there a man all our company here who can adure more or so a farther day's urney than he? and doet thon not member how it was Moses keen re which discerned the movements of our enemies, the Moalites, when levy came out against us? Let us to to Moses and urge him to go for-

This plan met the approval of the rest, and they went at once to seek cout their leader. They found him husy over his parchmenta, as he had been since their arrival at that place in fact he had been seldom seen abroad of late, and it was known that he was writing the history of his people. As they entered he arose, and his great, sturdy form was head and shoulders above most of the men there. No trace of old age in the strong lines of that form, in that erect carriage, in that clear, piercing eye, in that fall, powerful voice, and if there had lurked any doults in the hearts of these men that Mose was able to lead them it vanished now in the presence of his commanding personality. What if he was 120 years old, was not there the strength of perfect manhood? Surely he would continue to lead them.

With confidence, therefore, the spokesman stepped forward and expiained what had brought them to him, told of the murmirings among the people and their desire to push forward to the Promised Land which lay just ahead, and ended by urging that he, Moses, prepare at once to lead them.

The hrow of the leader clonded as they proceeded, and within the deeps et eyes there came a look of trouble and perplexity.

"Thou knowest the words of the Lord, how he has said that I shall not go into the Promised Land, and Moses bowed his head humbly. "Thou knowest, also, that Joshua has been chosen leader in my stead. Rememberest thou not the solemn service of consecration wheo Got set his approval upon him? Thou shalt go in and possess the land, and I—I—God will take me." Mokes' voice ended almost in a whisper, and a deep silence followed.

"But," faitered the one who had spoken before, "death is far from thee. Thou art able to lead us. And the people are eager to push en."

"It cannot," Moses replied, without raising his eyes. "God has spoken before, "death is far from thee. Thou art able to lead us. And the people are eager to got have a surfaced and the people are eager to push en."

"Walt! Watt for what?"

"My death," whispered Mos them, and not even he knew the day God would call.

One morning while the priests were husy with the morning seardise, and the congregation waited, before the tabernacie door, Moses appeared, bearing in his hands the rolist operation which he delivered into the hands of the priests. Then, turning loward the people, and testing loward the people and testing loward the people and will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my louth, and as the words of the song proceeded, and the mercy and faithfulness of God in his dealings with isreaded with quickening hearts. And when the reading was ended, Moses and "St your hearts unto all the words said."

when the reading was ended, Moses said:

"Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law. For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land whire re go over Jordan to possess it."

Then lifting his hands over the people, he spoke his blessing upon the people, giving his prophetic message for each tribe. And when he had ceased, and the people stood silent before him, the voice of God was heard speaking out of the heavens, saying:

Two Meanings to Sign.

English actors now in London, after touring "the states," say that they have been surprised at the rise in prices in this country. One was struck by the high cost of hair cluts in the hotels. The story goes: "Tired of paying 50 cents to be clipped, and seeling a sign exhibited to the effect, First-class hair cut, 25 cents," he entered and was attended to. At the close he casually asked: 'How much?' and was surprised to be asked for 50 cents. He remitted the barber of his sign outside. 'Yee, sirree, said the latter, 'the sign's all right, but say, you haven't got first-class hairt".

This will probably not be a very large company, but it will be emineatly respectable, and in these days when the Indian is dropping his tribal affiliations and becoming a citizen it will stand for something. Pocahontas married John Rolfe and they had one son. From this son, Thomas Rolfe, sprang all the Pocohontas who will gather at Jamestown next year.

Ready to Hatch.

A correspondent from Saff wrote in our June Issue expressing his mystification as to how small fish come to be in inclosed waters. A naturalist suggests an explanation. He says:

"If the wild ducks, etc., of Morocco are similar to those elsewhere there is no mystery. For some years there was open-mouthed wonder as to how perch, bream and crayfish could get into newly cut dams near the Macquarie river in New South Wales.
"In some cases the water had hardly settled after the rain had filled the dam than the fish were observed, and the farmers started a large theory of spontaneous production.
"This obtained till a Sydney professor channed to pick up a wild dnuk and found its breast feathers and webbed feet well dotted with fertile and almost hatched fish-ova, on which the 'spontaneous production' theory was promptly withdrawn."—Chambers' Jonnal.

Menting in the Pledmont region of North Carolina stands the little town of Charlotte. Today it look alsopy, sack pecceptal and quiet, ohr also per laboration of the did north state. Indeed, at least one of his most gracious majesty's officers referred to it as the "hornes's nest" of America. This epitchet, born of baffled wrath, was not miscapiled, asys Harper's Weelly. Almost from its first settlement by the stardy Scotch who emigrated thitheresty is the eighteenth century, from their native land or from a temporary abiding-place in the north of Ireland, Mecklenberg county, of which Charlotte is the eenter, was famed as the habitat of irreconcilables. The early angals of North Carolina bear abundant testimony to the temporary angles of the men of Mecklenburg, and as the years passed and the British yoke became more and more unbearable, nowhere was disloyaity more openly voiced than among the glades and hills of this charming region. If it be true of the rest of the country that the prevailing sentiment in the period immediately preceding, the revolution was for an amicable settlement of the difficulties with Great Britain, it would seem certain that in Mecklenburg at least, there was a well-defined opinion in favor of reputations allegiance, cutting loose entirely from the motherland, and entering upon career of independent nationality. This opinion, if the claims of the Mecklenburgians and their descendants are to be accepted, culminated in May, 1775, in the adoption, regularly elected delegates to a county convention, of a bold and warlike declaration of independent, and of right ought to be, a sovereign and of right ought to be, a sovereign and independent people; that we are, and of right ought to be, a sovereign and self-governing people under the power of God and the general congress; to the maintenance of which independence, setting for the claims of the first ought to be, a sovereign and in

"How do you account for that?" asked the friend, with a hearty laugh.

"Why, hang it, said the owner, as he grabbed his hat and hurried off to be caluterised, I forgot that he was cross-eyed. I ought to have put my hand on your shoulder and yelled."

First Flower of Spring.

In the northern United States the snowdrop is the only garden flower that we can count on year after year as the earliest sign of spring. Its pendulons white blossoms, with heart-shaped seal of green' sung by Rossetti often appear before the last snow has gone.

Luckily, even city families need not be without snowdrops, for they have been known to thrive in narrow passageways between all houses. Most bulbous plants like the baking hot sun of midsummer in order to ripeh their bulbs, but the snowdrop thrives best in partial shade.

It blooms earlier if it has a chance at the March sun, but is one of the very few that will flower regularly, though less freely, in dense shade and with a northern exposure.—Country Life in America.

Defined by Customs Men as a Bird, a Handbag and a Dog.

On the travels of a monkey from Genoa to Heidelberg an amusing farce might be written. A German gentlemen brought from southwest Africa a tiny monkey weighing barely a couple of pounds. From Tanga to Genoa all went well with the Lilliputian animal. It was a favorite with everyone, and traveled free until Genoa was reached, when its troubles began.

Brought under the notice of the Genoese customhouse authorities, it was promptly deprived of its identity. It was no longer an animal; it became a bird, and as a bird, on which 2s cents was charged, it was conveyed to the Swiss frontier, where, at a stroke of the customhouse officer's wand it was transformed into a cut at the increased assessment of $1.56, and borne by train to Zurich.

On its arrival there it ceased, as a cat, to exist, and became a mere package—an item of lugsage that was conveyed to Constance for the nominal sum of 16 cents.

Still as lugsage, though metamorphized from a package into a handbag; it went on its way to Stuttgart, where a great honor awaited it. It was, on payment of $2.04, exaited into a dog, and it was as a dog that it ended its journey at the university town of Heidelberg.—Stray Stories.

The True Way to Correct Nervous Troubles.

Nervous troubles are more often caused by improper food and indigestion than most people imagine. Even doctors sometimes overiológ this fact. A man says:

"Until two years ago waffies and bitter with meat and gravy were the main features of, my breakfast. Finally dyspepsia came on and I found myself in a bad cogdifson, worse in the morning than any other time. I would have a tull sick feeling in my stomach, with pains in my heart, sides and head.

"At times I would see no appetite for days, then I would feel ravenous, never satisfied when I did eat and so nervous I felt like shricking at the top of my voice. I lost flesh badly and hardly knew which way to turn until one day I bought a box of Grape-Nuts food to see if I could eat that. I tried It without telling the dector, and liked it fine; made me feel as if I had something to eat that was satisfying and still I didn't have that heaviness that I had felt after eating any other food.

"I hadn't drank any coffee then if hive weeks. I kept on with the Grape-Nuts and in a month and a half I had gained Is pounds, could eat almost anything I wanted, didn't face i hadly after eating and my nervousness was all gone. It's a pleasure to be well again."

One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the very pleasant Syrup, in spins, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Cd, which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity favor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constitution and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is most excellent laxative remedy. Here was a man in the lygor of his manhood—unmed eye and natural forces bated—who comes to the end the journey of life. His mine shaded—who comes to the end the journey of life. His mine is fulfilled, the voice of God is out of the heavens, bidding toom home. And so preus and sacred in the eyes of was this meek and Godlike in Moses that he was unwill-that any but he should keep it by that death bed; none his leving, tender armeid be about him as his closed on the earthly to mupon the heavenly scenes; so the was her will be will be should know the sacred spotfel on the control of the control of Jesus upon the mountain's summit.

Think you that death meant loss to Moses? Nay, verily, it meant infinite gain. God gave to him a glimpse of the Promised Land before, his death. As, he looked out upon that fair land and realized, that he was never to set foot therein, was there a twinge of disappointment and sadness within his heart? Mayinap, but as God closed his eyes in the sleep of death and the earthly vision faded from his sight, there burst upon his opening vision in heaven a far more giorious scene, and if regret he had, it must have been that his beloved people, whom he had so long and fathfully led, were not coming direct to the glory land which his feet had gained.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

A THRILL of glad expectancy swept through the camp of Israel as they came to camp in the plains of Moab and it became known that they were in the very border land of Canaan, the land 60d had promised to give them. Little else was thought of or talked about. The children listened with eager fascination to their parents as they talked about the wonders of the land, and the young men with the impetuosity of stirring manhood, were impatient to push forward at one. And after they had encamped there several days the muruur ran through the camp from lip to lip and from tribe to tribe:
"Why delayeth Moses here? Why does he not go forward?"
When this complaint reached the ears of the leaders of the different tribes, they were troubled thereby, for they remembered that Moses had told them that God had said that he should never enter the Promised Land.
"Yes, and has not Joshua been

"Yes, and has not Joshua been osen as leader when Moses shall tes, and has not Johna been ea and has not Johna been each as leader when Moses shall alken from us?" spoke up one, who of the tribe of Ephraim, the one falch Joshus belonged.

To be sure, but death seems far our leader, for he is as full of rof mind and body as ever he rediged another of the group, and it is for this very reason the people still look to him for erably and expect him to lead a forward late. The Promised a forward late the Promised a forward late the Promised group broke in.

The murmuring is growing bitter the murmuring is growing bitter.

in they all kept silence, he finally intinued: "Why should we not excit Moses to lead us? Is there a man all our company here who can dure more or go a farther day's urney than he? and dost thou not member how it was Moses' keen e which discerned the movements our enemies, the Mosbles, when sy came out against us? of our enemies, the Moshites, when they came out against us? Let us go to Moses and urgs him to go forward."

This plan met the approval of the rest, and they went at once to seek out their leader. They found him busy over his parchments, as he had been since their arrival at that place; in fact he had been seldom seen abroad of late, and it was known that he was writing the history of his people. As they entered he arose, and his great, sturdy form was head and shoulders above most of the men there. No trace of old age in the strong lines of that form, in that erect carriage, in that clear, plercing, eye, in that full, powerful voice, and if there had lurked any doubts in the hearts of these men that Moses was able to lead them it vanished now in the presence of, his commanding personality. What if he was 120 years old, was not there the strength of perfect manhood? Surely he would continue to lead them.

With confidence, therefore, the spokesman stepped forward and explained what had brought them to him, told of the murmurings among the people and their desire to push forward to the Promised Land which lay just ahead, and qended by urging that he, Moses, prepare at once to lead them.

The brow of the leader clouded as they proceeded, and which and brought them to had, and the solemn service and perplexity.

"Thou knowest the words of the Lord, how he has said that I shall not go into the Promised Land," and Moses bowed his head himbly. "Thou knowest also, that Joshua has been chosen leader in my stead. Rememberest thou not the solemn service of consecration when Got set his approval npon him? Thou shalt go in and possess the land, and I—I—God will take me." Mokes' voice ended almost in a whisper, and a deep silence followed.

"But," faltered the one who had apoken before, "death is far from how he has said that I shall not so into the promised Land in and possess the land, and I—I—God will take me." Mokes' voice ended almost in a whisper, and a deep silence followed.

"But," faltered the one who had apoken be almost in a whisper, and a deep silence followed.

"But," faltered the one who had spoken before, "death is far from thee. Thou art able to lead us. And the people are eager to push on."

"I cannot," Moses replied, without raising his eyes. "God has spoken without raising his eyes. "God has spoken. We must wait."

"Wait! Wait for what?"

"Wait! Wait for what?"

"My death," whispered Moses, and silently, and sadly and solemnly the men departed.

When these words of Moses became known throughout the camp of Israel, the impatience of the people gave place to deep sorrow. Day after day they waited. Moses continued bnsy in his tent with his manastripts, but occasionally as he möved through the eamp the eyes of the people followed him with a sort of reverent awe. No sign of age or weakness there, but waiting for death. Moses noted the looks upon the faces of the people, and one day calling them together in a great assembly before the tabernacle, he said:

"Why should ye be troubled by the word of the Lord? Will not he deal in love and mercy with everyone that feareth him? God's call brings not sorrow, but gladness. Did not Enoch of oid waik with God and go to be with him? Have not Abraham and isaac and Jacob, our fathers, found reat with God? Why, then, should we fear or sorrow when God hath said to me: "Behold, thy days approach that thou must die?" The Lord who will take me, will lead yon. Only trust him. I shall not go över this Jordan, but I shall go to be with God, who shall give to thee the land he promised Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And Joshua shall lead thee."

More days of waiting followed. Busy days for Moses as he hastened his writing. Days of discipline for the people as they waited. No one knew the day Moses spound leave them, and not even he knew the day God would call.

One morning while the priests were busy with the morning sacrifice, and the congregation waited before the tabernacle door, Moses appeared, bearing in his hands the rolle of parchment which he delivered into the hands of the priests. The words of my Louth."

And as the words of the song proceded, and the mercy and faithfulness of God in his dealings with Isreal were enumerated the people listened with quickening hearts. And when the reading was ended, Moses aaid:

when the reading was ended, Moses said:

"Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law. For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it."

Then lifting his hands over the people, he spoke his bleesing upon the people, giying, his prophetic mesage for each tribe. And when he had ceased, and the people stood silent berfore him, the voice of God was heard speaking out of the heavens, saying:

"Get these up into this mountain, hearing the work when the Moses."

English actors now in London, after touring "the states," say that, they have been surprised at the rise in prices in this country. One was struck by the high cost of hair dust in the hotels. The story goes: "Tired of paying 50 cents to be clipped, and seeing a sign exhibited to the effect, Pirat-class hair cut, 26 cents, he entered and was attended to. At the close he cagually asked: "How much?" and was surprised to be asked for 50 cents. He ermil.ided the barber of his sign outside. Yes, siree, said the latter, the sign's all_right, but say,

HAVE REAL AMERICAN BLOOD,

At the Jamestown tercentennial in 1837 there is to be a gathering of the descendants of Pocahontas. This will probably not be a very large company, but it will be eminently respectable, and in these days when the Indian is dropping his tribal affiliation and becoming a citisen it will stand for something. Pocahontas married John Rolfe and they had one son. From this son, Thomas Rolfe, sprang all the Pocohontan who will gather at Jamestown next year.

A correspondent from Saff wrote in our June Issue expressing his mystification as to how small fish come to be in inclosed waters. A naturalist suggests an explanation. He says:

"If the wild ducks, etc., of Morocco are similar to those elsowhere there is no mystery. For some years there was open-mouthed wonder as to how perch, bream and crayfish could get into newly out dams near the Macquarie river in New South Wales.
"In some cases the water had hardly settled after the rain had filled the dam than the fish were observed, and the farmers started a large theory of spontaneous production.

tie Town of Charlotte, North lina, in May, 1775, Convention combise to Declare for in-dependence.

Meetling in the Piedmont region of North Carolina stands the little town of Charlotte. To-day it looks sleepy, and peaceful and quiet, but it colonias stands it was perhaps the liveliest place in the old north state. Indeed, at least one of his most grachous majestire officers referred to it as the "horset's nest" of America. This epicles, borns of baffed wrath, was not misapplied, says Harper's Weekly. Almost from its first settlement by the stardy Scotch who emigrated thither early is the eighteenth bentury, from their native land or from a temporary abiding-place in the north of Ireland, Meckienberg county, of which Charlotte is the center, was famed as the habitat of Irreconcilables. The early angle of North Carolina bear abundant teelimony to the temper and as the years passed and the British yoke became more and more unbearable, nowhere was disloyalty more openly voleed than among the glades and hills of this charming region. If the tree of the rest of the country that the prevailing sentiment in the period immediately preceding, the revolution was for an amicable settlement of the difficulties with Great Britain, it would seem certain that in Meeklenburg at least, there was a well-defined opinion in favor of repudiating allegiance, cutting loose entirely from the motherland, and entering upon career of independent nationality. This opinion, if the claims of the Meeklenburgian and their descendants are to be accepted, culminated in May, 1775, in the adoption by regularly elected delegates to a county convention, of a bold and warling forth the wrongs under which the colonies were laboring, and in no uncertain terms asserting that "we do hereby declare ourselves a free and independent people; that we are, and of right ought to be a sovereign and self-governing people under the power of God and the general congress; to the maintenance of which independence we solemnly pledge to each other own mutual co-peration, our lives, our fortunes, and our most sacred honor."

As the story goes, the convention was the Rewnsend Burden was talking in Newport about his recent autumnal experiment of oiling the Newport roads—an experiment that, though it promised well, failed because it ruined so many delicate toilets. "Oiling the roads of Newport," said Mr. Burden, "was a more complicated matter than we thought. There were so many things to take into consideration—white silk stockings, lace peticoats, suede shoes—yes, decidedly it was a complicated matter. First Flower of Spring.

In the northern United States the snowfrop is the only garden flower that we can count on year after year as the earliest sign of spring. Its pendulous white blossoms, with heart-shaped seal of green, sung by Rossetti often appear before the last snow has gone.

Luckity, even city families need not be without snowdrops, for they have been known to thrive in narrow passageways between all rhouses. Most bulbous plants like the baking hot sun of midsummer in order to ripen their bulbs, but the showdrop thrives best in partial shade.

It blooms earlier if it has a chance at the March sun, but is one of the very few that will flower regularly, though less freely, in dense shade and with a northern exposure.—Country Life in America.

The celebrated authorees, so highly esteemed by the women of America, says on pages 103 and 445 of her book, "Eve's Daughters; or, Common Sense for Maid, Wife and Mother":

It hould be kept over the sent of uncastness for several days—in obstants cases, for perhaps a fortight."

"For pain in the back wear an Allcock's Plaster constantly, renewing as it wears off. This is an invaluable support when the weight on the small of the back becomes heavy and the aching incessant."

Defined by Customs Men as a Bird, a Handbag and a Dog.

On the travels of a monkey from Genoa to Heidelberg an amusing farce might be written. A German gentlemen brought from southwest Africa a tiny monkey weighing barely a couple of pounds. From Tanga to Genoa all went well with the Lilliutian animal. It was a favorite with everyone, and traveled free until Genoa was reached, when its troubles began.

Brought under the notice of the Genoese customhouse authorities, it was promptly deprived of its identity. It was no longer an animal; it became a bird, and as a bird, on which 28 cents was charged, it was conveyed to the Swiss frontier, where, at a stroke of the customhouse officer's wand it was transformed into a cat at the increased assessment of $1.56, and borne by train to Zurich.

On its arrival there it ceased, as a cat, to exist, and became a mere package—an Item of luggage that was conveyed to Constance for the nominal sum of 16 cents.

Still as luggage, though metamorphized from a package into a handbag, it went on its way to Stuttgart, where a great honor awaited it. It was, on payment of $2.04, existed into a dog, and it was as a dog that it ended its journey at the university town of Heidelberg.—Stray Stories.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Ca, which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constitution and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

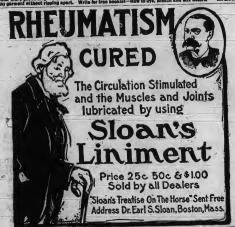

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

The Democrats have just pas ed through another periodical family scrap, which, as is always the result, has produced more or less soreness on the part of some who allowed themselves to become over enthusiastic in their favoritism of some particular candidates.
Those who participated in the primary election' and failed to land their candidates should bear in mind that had the other fellows lost they would have expected lost they would have expected them to come up smiling and accept the result, and this is what the losers ought to do. In the the tosers cognit to do. In the last few years in Kentucky political changes have been such that the nomination for a State office is not equivalent to an election, and to win requires a solid Demothe nomination for a state once, the nomination of an election, and to win requires a solid Democratic front at the regular election, hence the refusal of only a few in each county of the State to accept the result of the primary election, will put further in jeopardy the success of the Democratic party at the polls next November. Bear in mind that if you did not get your choice of other good Democrats to whom you were trying to dictate a candidate by your ballot. You are one of the many who were outnumbered by the other fellows, and as majority rule is a cardinal principle of democracy, you should accept the result gracefully and line up with the victorious crowd to do battle for a Democratic victory at the next regular election. The real battle is now on, and to prevent the Republicans from capturing the entire State government next fall it will require a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together. A Democrat is a Democrat in defeat as well as in victory, and the defeated Democrats at the recent primary will have to land the party to victory at the next election because they constitute nearly one-half of the party in the State. Don't sulk—you may be on the winning side at the next primary.

It is said that Ex-Governor W. O. Bradley is writing a book giving his experience as a lawyer and politician. The strangest thing at the election in Indiana Tuesday was the defeat of Frederick Landis, Republican, by about 3,000, when two years ago Landis' majority was about 8,000. The unseemly parade of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth in the campaign, it is said, helped disgust the voters.—Rising Sun Recorder.

The talk of Leslie Applegate, of Covington, as the Republican opponent of Judge Lassing, at the next election, in certainly very pleasing to Judge Lassing, as Mr. Applegate has an unbroken record as a loser as a candidate, not only while he was a member of the Democratic-party, but ever since he became a Republican. Few men in Kentucky have the record of which Mr. Applegate can boast, and it seems that he and his friends desire to increase his laurels.

Senator Foraker is an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency. No doubt President Roosevelt, in view of the Senator's record at the last session of Cougress, would regard his nomination and election as a backward step so far as the policies he has imaugurated during his administration are concerned. The Senator can not count on any support from the President.

In other States where there was any change in the delegation the Democratis made a gain; but here is old Kentucky, the rock-ribbed, doubling the number of Republicans in her delegation. It was ascertained one evening last week that one of the handsome members of the local bachelors club had a marriage license in his pocket. This discovery was made in one of the stores where there were quite a number of his friends, and it was decided, unanimously, that he should set up to cigars, which would have lost him a day's work. To secape the penalty he declared the document was not his when he was called upon to exhibit it which he did, and it proved to be a license that had been "exceuted," and which he had found on the road where someone had dropped it. Those present decided that this would, more than likely, be the only marriage license he would ever have in his possession, therefore he should set up the "twofers" anyhow. He says he always did regard a marriage license as sure of getting a fellow into trouble and now he is certain they will.

Harrison Clore Dead.

Harrison Clore, of Hebron, died last Thursday morning from the effects of the stroke of paralysis mentioned last week. Mr. Clore was 72 years, 2 months and 18 days old. The funerable took place from the Lutheran church at 10 a. m. last Saturday, the sermon being preached by Rev. H. M. Curry, Old Baptist. A very large concourse of relatives and friends assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed, and the floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. Mr. Clore was born and raised in the neighborhood where he spent his life. He had accumulated considerable wealth and was one of the county's richest men. His first wife was a daughter of the late Joel D. Conner. To them were born two children, a son and a daughter, the former, Attorney Joel C. Clore, of Cincinnati, surrying his father. His second wife was the widow of Huble Davis, her madden name being lastelle Hankins. To them no children were born. Mr. Clore will be greatly missed in the neighborhood where he spent his long life, which, until the last few years was qualed by two, owing to his good judgment and the close attention he gave matters in which he was interested. He believed in enjoying this life, and at his home was surrounded by all the comforts, with which he was always glat to have his friends enjoy with him. Good Horses Bring Good Prices.

Good Horses Bring Good Prices.

A few months ago there were sold in New York 50 horses for a total sum of $52,000, an average of more than $1000 per head. There is a strong demand everywhere for high-class horses and there always will be. But farmers and general breeders should take warning at the recent rapid advances in prices at it is liable to have a tendency to cause indiscriminate and careless breeding that will, in the end, bring loss and disaster, while, if they heed the warning and only breed and raise the best, forcing the survival of the fittest by the most rigid and careful selection and raise only such as are truly useful for the purposes for which they are intended profits will be great and the business a success.

Prices, must, of necessity, continue to advance for the next six or eight years, if not much longer, as comparatively few of the people will begin to breed in earnest and at once, and if they did, it would take six years to raise a 5-year-old horse.—Ex.

The Price of Apples.

The Price of Apples.

One hundred miles west of this city apples sell in the orchards at 40 cents per hundred pounds. A barrel of apples weighs perhaps 150 pounds, which is 60 cents per barrel. Yet the consumer here pays for good apples from 30 to 40 cents per peck, which is from $2,30 to $4.40 per barrel of eleven pecks. The groeer here who retails the fruit we are certain does not make any more profit than he should, but there is entirely too much cost attached somewhere between the producer and consumer. The cost of the barrel is 25 cents, which would make the cost of the apples in the orchard 85 cents per barrel. The margin here between the first cost and the last cost is from $2.45 to $3.55 per barrel, which is from three to four times the original cost. It would seem there should be some method of getting such a important article in the household at less cost and still allow those who handle them sufficient profit.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Reign of the Plug Hat.

The piug hat is a decidedly uncomsortable article of wear. But it is picturesque. Who is there but can remember with affection some old-childbood character whose distinguishing mark was a battered plug hat that had survived the shocks and the wrecks of half a hundred seasons? The plug hat is associated with the villege doctor, the lean end sallow minister and the local undertaker. Perhaps the school teacher had one, too, and it is certain that we can re-call distinctly the day that father was elected to the legislature and was presented with a hat by his admiring friends. It will be a long time before the plug hat becomes actually extinct. The plug hat is a thing that never wears out, says the Kansas Jonnal. It becomes tattered and generally disreputable, it is true, but this is a condition that seems to endear it that much more in the affections of the possessor. The plug hat has survived the warming pan and the south box. When all things else have succambed to the tide of time, the plug hat has held its own on the heads of its devotees.

The Skulker and the Hustler.
Accidents and exceptions for individual reasons aside, the young man whose chief, effort has been to avoid working more than his pay called for and who has carried this as the governing principle of his life, has been a greater or less father. When he himself has reached middle life and has begun to complain because other men have got ahead of him, he looks everywhere but in the right place for the reason. The place is himself and the reason is that he made the mistake of never doing as well as he could, because he was afraid of cheating himself. What he actually did was to cheat himself in the worst way, says the New Bedford, Mass. Standard. There is, as a rule, no escape from the truth that unless a man gives the beet there is in him he will never get the best there is in him he will never set the best there is not airse in ordinary lives or chee the aspearance is deceptive.

Japan a Practical Nation.

Marvelous is the fortune of Japan. The only nation that might stay her continental strides toward empire is paralyzed by revolutionary struggler against a government whose existence is a monstrous anachronism. The nations which must meet her on the world-wide field of indistrial war have tied their own hands with vain economic theories belonging to a dead time. There is no nation so practical as the Japanese. What is best to be done, that thing they do. Their constitution is not invoked to inhibit the general welfare and stay up the privileges of a plutocracy. Dead governmental theories of a bygone age are dead to them and they modify their political philosophy to suit the future. Though they worable the rordinal foregonian, they care less than any other people for time-worn ophilons. The things that care less than any other people for time-worn opinions. The things that we believe theoretically they put in practice.

OHIO.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—From reports had here there is no reason for a change in the estimate of the republican plurality. It will not be far from the figure given by Seastor Dick, in which he says the plurality would reach 75,000.

From every section of the state reports show counties to have been carried by Thompson. About two-thirds of the republican county chairmen have been heard from, each with the complete vote of his county. In every lantance there was a republican lated to bring out a large vote, ead it was such.

There had been predictions by men prominent in both parties, and some of the figures they gave were of an extravagant character, while others were polic closed at 5:30 o'clock each side felt that it had won.

There has rarely been an election in Cincinnati that was more peaceful, and devold of any sort of disturbence. The vote was cast early, probably four-posited by secon or not later than 1 o'clock. Nor did there seem to be great effort to get out the votes that remained to be cast after those hours. The disposition seemed to be to let the people do as they pleased as to this.

the people do as they pleased as this.

The election of the entire county republican ticket, with but one exceptions by pluralities ranging from 1,000 to 3,000, its assured. Longworth and Goebel for congress are elected by comfortable pluralities. The election of Cummings dem, for county infirmary, its conceded.

The contest between Samuel Shith, r, and Stanley Matthews for circuit judgeship resulted in Smith's election by a plurality of 274.

Indianapolis, ind., Sept. 7.—The official returns from 68 of the 92 counties of indiana, with the unofficial returns from 68 of the 92 counties of indiana, with the unofficial returns that ticket a piurality of 31,021. This settimate, given by Secretary of State Sims, was regarded by him as conservative. He said that the republican piurality may exceed 32,000, which would be about 4,500 less than in 1903. In the absence of Chairman Offrien Secretary Relly, of the democratic state compilities, estimated that the piurality mot exceed 20,000. Chairman Taggart and other democratic leaders did not think it would reach 17,000, but their returns were not as complete as those at the republican headquarters. Chairman Goodrich and Gov. Hanly are satisfied that the republicans will have at least 53 of the 100 members of the lower branch of the legislature. For a time, however, it looked as it amargin of more othere, as saveral republican strongholds went democratic members of the house and one senator. Even yet there is considerable doubt whether or not the republican swill have more than 52 members.

A message received here from Terre itsuit a indicates that the official return manber to the republicans will have more than 52 members.

WROTE BEFORE LEFT FOR PANAMA

Washington, Nov. 12.—Before President Roseavel For 12.—Before President Roseavel left Washington os his trip to Panama he virtually completed the measage he will send to congress asset fronth. During the interval between his return, to the capital and the convening of congress, less than a week, he will have an opportunity to make some changes, but for the most part it is now in the form in which it will go to the lawmakers. The measage this year will rank in importance with others which Mr. Roseavelt has transmitted during his incumbency, and it is possible to give a forecast of its principal feature.

with others which Mr. Roosevelt has transmitted during his incumbency, and it is possible to give a forecast of its principal features.

Without doubt the most vital recommendation relates to the necessity of formulating a method of regulating the growth of great fortunes in this country. The president will urge congress to devise a scheme of progressive taxation on all fortunes beyond a certain amount either given in life or devised or bequeathed upon the death of an individual.

Second in importance will be a recommendation for an enactment giving the federal government supervisory authority over corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

A subject heretofore not mentioned in executive messages, but which has been agitating the country for many years, will be treated in the message and that is the question of divorce, it need be stated, perhaps, that the president has sturdy views upon the necessity of preserving, wholesome social conditions in the United States as a means of safeguarding and perpetuating our national institutions. He regards the ever-increasing number of divorces as a menace, and hope to see a remedy devised which will reduce the will to a minimum.

Publicity of Expenditures.

The attention of congress will be called to the destrability of the passage of a law providing for the publicity of expenditures made by congressional campaigns. The president will reduce the surface of the providence of the states and to promote the safety of passengers. The president will urge legislation requiring the useful for the isthmus the president was requested to recommend and was requested to recommend to recommend the safety of passengers. The president will add advise an affective inspection service so as to reduce the number of collisions.

as a so reduce the number of collisions.

Before he laft for the isthmus the president was requested to recommend the passage of an eighthour law for all railroad employes, and it is believed he will do so; this, however, is not know definitely at this time. The power of congress, to fix the hours of railroad employes is not doubted, as the rate law enacted at the last session would indicate.

Immigration will furnish the subject of another strong recommendation.
The president has made a careful study of this question and come to the conclusion that certain regions of Eupope are sending an undesirable class of immigrants to the United States.

The president would like to see a law passed permitting greater efasticity in our monetary system.

A revision of the tariff will not bi recommended.

The Sacred Tariff.

As we read the Ohio Republican platform tariff "plank" deep organ volces peal from pipe. of gold and the revisers on the scorners' seats are all afloat in passionate and repentant tears:

"The Republican policy of protection must be scarcely maintained. It is the foundation of our gratifying and unparalised prosperity and commercial aminence."

is the foundation of our graitfying and unparalleled prosportly and commercial eminence."

The Dingley tariff is no merely secular and human institution. It was made in heaven. Like another Palisalium it fell from heaven. It is the sacred stone and holy well of America. The soil is nothing. Men are nothing. Untimited opportunity, says in so far as the sacrosanct law torbids, is nothing. The dyther institution is "the foundation of prosperity."

The Republican tariff revisers should remember the fate of Uzas at the threshing floor of Chidon. High and unchangeable protection is not an economic theory or doctrine; it is a reiligion.—N. Y. Sun.

Trusts and the Tariff.

Trusts and the Tariff.

"The trusts are no necessary part of the trusts are no necessary part of the trusts may not be a necessary part of the protective tariff, but they are a most natural part. The tariff affords conscienceless manufacturers an opportunity that they are not slow to grasp, and the result is a

SHIFTING POLITICAL ISSUES.

th Every Shift of Wind.

The Republican managers declared at the beginning of this campaign for congress that Mr. Rooseveit was the issue, and some of the big guns of the party were sent to Maine to emphasise and inform the Republican voters of Maine what issue they were to vote upou. The election was held and the greatly reduced majority for the Republican dieket indicated that many of the voters either republican Mr. Rooseveit as the issue, or refused to take the advice of the Republican recise of Maine with telling effect, hrought a change of mind to the Republican recise of Maine with telling effect, hrought a change of mind to the Republican leaders, and now we are told that national politics must be kept out of the New York campaign and the voters must decide the election in that state on local and personal issues.

How a campaign for congress, the members of which will have to decide whether the tariff and other pressing issues shall be taken 4p, can be decided by the voters on local issues, can only be explained by those opportunist Republican statesmen who try to make the president the issue in one state and ignore him in another. They are all things to all men and are at their old tricks trying to fool part of the Republican voters all the time and some of the Republican voters part of the time, they are him mortal dread of their own voters in Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, Delaware, Ohlo, Colorado, Minnesota and other states and are voteferously urging them, to drop exasperating issues and vote the whole ticke for the aske of the party.

The Republican leaders decire that trail of the time. They are him mortal dread of their own voters in Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, Delaware, Ohlo, Colorado, Minnesota and other states and are voteferously urging them, to drop exasperating issues and vote the whole ticke for the aske of the party.

The Republican leaders decire that to raise the tarif will raise an issue that will be impossible for the Republicans to evade. It is "Up" to Tim.

The report from administration circles that Senator Platt will resign if Hughes Is elected governor of New York, is probably given out to incite the ambition of Tim Woodruff, the chairman of the Republican state committee, and lead him to be more liberal in financing the campaign. Tim has been promised the next vacant senatorship, it is said, but being a machine political mane promised the next vacant senatorship, it is said, but being a machine political mane properties as the head, rather than a senatorial bird in the political bushes. The protected trust magnates are not subscribing to the campaign fund as the raily as they were expected to do, as the Republican congressional committee fire claiming a majority of the next congress and that is all the rusts need to prevent tariff revision of New York have informed the Rousevett reformers that it will require at least $750,000 to get out the Republicans who have followed the mention of your work of the review on election day and their utilization of the properties of the review on election day and their utilization are. The Roosevelt reformers, of course, would not think of buying yotes, but they are quite willing to have Tim do it and participate in the purchased victory.

in the purchased victory.

Republican Grafting.
Charles S. Deneen, the Republican sovernor of Illinois, is in trouble with the Thirtteth Ward Reubilican older of Chicago about fees of $243,775.82, out of public money, which Deneen retained for certain services rendered while he was state's attorney on a regular salary. The club insists that he has no moral right to the money, and that by keeping it he justifies the charge of grafting brought against him by the Democrats, and injures the Republican party. There is a merry wrangle among the corporationists in Illinois, and Cannon and several other Republican congressione who are part of the Republican machine and uphold Deneen deserve defeat.

The Republicans of lows and Mas-hold beneen deserve deteat.

The Republicans of lows and Massachusette have nominated tariff revisionists for governor on standpain platforms. Gov. Cummins has, however, declared from the stump that has retracted none of his previously corpressed views on the tariff as a breeder and shelter of trusts. But dier Guid ascens to have heen silenced.

A Passing Art.

Among the cherished inemories of a certain charming old lady is that of a teacher of her childhood, whose theory of life was reduced to a imple pringiple: "Learn to read well, young ladies—to enuclate distinctly, to modutate the voice pleasingly, to interpret the words of the author with sympathy and understanding; learn to read well, and all other virtues will follow." It is possible that the acquirement of all the virtues seems a slightly more complicated matter than it did to the old centleman of 70 years ago. Nevertheless, the advice is not to be laughed sway.—If only—because—it—recalls the days when reading aloud was counted one of the most desirable of the fine arts of life. This is no refection upon the art of reading as taught in these art of reading as taught in these days; the question is not of the process, but of the place that g aloud used to hold in family tital process, but of the place that diding aloud used to hold in family s. Many a gray-haired man or wom-who never heard of "round tables," of never discovered that authors had rly or late styles, yet knows his tot or Thackeray or Shakespeare as w young people of to-day ever know me. In part, this is due to the fact at the field of reading now covered young people is much larger than was half a century ago. A deeper use lies in the decline of the habit reading aloud, declares the Youth's mpanion. We have nogtime sow to di aloud, we say. Perhaps not; yet fore we decide, might it not be well consider whether any othey recreas offers more permanent pleasure retester enrichment to the life. oks read aloud winter evenings out the fire, with the whole family aring the interest and the discusans, will hold a warmth of color in the well and the thing will not dim. Between the pages will lie countless happy morfes—a treasure whose value will epen through all the years to come.

FIVE INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED.

Political Leader and Chief Executive of Golden Gate City Are Charged With Extortion.

With Extortion.

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, of this city, and his political adviser, Abe Ruef, were indicted by the grand jury on the charge of extortion. The indictments were based on the charges made by French resiaurant keepers to the effect that Ruef and the mayor conspired to extort money from them for the purpose of protection from police interference. Five separate true bills were presented against the chief executive and his adviser. The indictments charge that on different occasions Ruef and Schmitz compelled the payment of sums ranging from $1,000 to $1,175 from each of the individual restaurant men who needed protection for their resorts. Mayor Schmitz and Ruef are made co-defeadants in all of the indictments in which they are jointly charged.

The grand jury made its report before Judge Muraskey, and his honor fixed the bail on each indictment at $10,000. Ruef was taken into custody, but his bonofsmen were promptly on hand and he was released upon depositing $50,000.

Mayor Schmitz also on the Atlantic ocean en route to New York. A warrant awaits him on his arrival on American soil.

A previous grand jury investigated the matter, but was unable to get legal proof of extortion. It remained for Francis J. Henry, the brilliant attorney, and Secret Service Agent Wm. Burns to elicit the needed information that others had failed to get.

Attorney Henry asserts that the indictments returned are but a starter

Wm. Burns to elicit the needed information that others had failed to get.

Attorney Henry asserts that the indictments returned are but a starter in the campaign that he is making against graft. He states that he hopes to indict other officials of the Schmitz administration.

The grand jury will resume its labors and it is expected that further true bills will be presented against the mayor, his advisers and their political followers.

Following is a copy of one of the first indictments greated and Schmitz on the 18th of January, 1904, extorted $1,170 from Tony Blanco, of the Pocodle Dog, and on February 6 of the same year they forced him to give up $1,000 more. The third indictment is based on the extortion of $1,175 from the proprietors of Delmonico's restaurant. They are charged with demanding and receiving fifthe same day $1,175 from the proprietors of Delmonico's restaurant. It is charged that on February 6 they forced these same men to yield $1,000 by threatening to take away their liquor licenses.

NOTORIETY FORGED UPON PLATI

MAY CAUSE HIS RETIREMENT

His Resignation Said To Be Ready To Mail—Gov. Hughes To Name His Successor.

New York, Nov. 17.—Senator Thos. C. Platt will resign his seat in the United States senate on January 1.
One of the first official papers to reach the hands of Gov-elect Hughes after he takes office will be the resignation of the senior senator. From the state of New York.

There are reasons why Senator Platt will not resign before the first of the year, although the senate will convene for the winter session on December 3 and remain in session until March 4 or later.

The paramount reason for the delay is the bitter hostility felt—by Senator Platt toward Gov. Higgins. His hatred of the governor is of the most infexible character, and many things have entered into the situation to intensify his bitter resentment.

The prospective resignation of Senator Platt will come as a result of the notoriety. Incident to the senational raid in search of evidence for a divorce suit made by his wife upon the house of Mary Lamonte, No. 214 West 38th street, which was followed by the signing of an agreement of separation.

Already the republican leaders in the state are discussing his possible successor, and the name of former Gov. Frank S. Black is freely mentioned. There is also some talk of Timothy L. Woodruff for the expected vacancy.

The latest onslaught upon the aged vacancy and on a decident by Mr. Platt, and which ended with the discovery and confiscation by the Irate woman of a pair of dainty light-heeled femiliane boots, has proved to be the blow which will end his political caren. Indeed, the senator, it is reported the senator from the state of New York, was reached only after he had been advised by certisia men who have been close to him for many years, that if he did not voluntarily retire from the senate before December 3 a movement would be inaugurated to cause his expulsion.

BOMB EXPLODED

AT THE ALTAR IN ST. PET

WHERE PONTIFF WAS EXPECTED.

Machine of Death Had Defect, and Worshipers Escape Unhurt—Great-est Outrage of Centuries.

Rome, Nov. 18.—A bomb was exploded in St. Peter's. The edifice was crowied, and an indescribable scene of confusion followed. There were no fatalities.

As soon as the echoes of the tremendous roar had ceased a canon sought by reassuring words to quiet the people, but in vain. They fied in all directions, and a number of womer fainted.

Women and children screamed and men tried to protect their families in the crush.

Women and children screamed and men tried to protect their families in the crush.

The church is so large, however, that there was ample room for the crowd to scatter, and no one was injured. No trace of the perpertator of the deed has been found.

It was the anniversary of the dedication of the baselilea to St. Peter, and it was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Holy relies were exposed and a large number of the faithful attended the services. Cardinal Rampola, formerly papal secretary of state, was among those present. He took part in the service in the choir chapel. The last mass had just been concluded, when the explosion occurred, and only one canon, who had not quite finished, remained at the sitar of St. Petronilla. This attaf is at the end of the right asie, and it was near here that the bomb had been placed.

Like a Thunderciap.

As the canon turned to bless the communicants there was a tremeudous roar, which echoed through the forty arches of the Immense dome like a thunder-ciap, At the same time a dense smoke spread throughout this, portion of the basilica and a strong door of gunpowder filled the air. Confusion and panic at once selzed the people. The canon at the aitar tried to stem the tide of fear. He shouted out:

"Do not be afraid; it is nothing, wearly the proorder guit." His words.

The canon at the altar tried to stem the tide of fear. He shouted out:

"Do not be afraid; It is nothing, merely the noonday gun." His words, however, had little effect. They were refuted by the smoke and the pungent smell of powder, and the people continued their-headlong-flight. Men and women fled, stumbling in all directions, the screams of children and cries of anguish were heard on all sides, and for a few minutes it seemed as if nothing could obviate a grave disaster. As soon as the smoke cleared away a hasty examination showed that nobody had been hurt in the crush, and that no one had been wounded. Calm was gradually restored, and some of the people returned to view the extent of the damage.

When the first gendarmes reached the spot the scandiding was considering, but this fre was easily extinguished. The tomb was found to be absolutely unfulyed, and even the pavement shows carrely any signs of the explosion.

The pope was engined in his regular noonday devotions when the bomb went of. The pontif asked anxiously if the church had been injured. Upon being reassured he fell on his knees, saying he must implore mercy for the misguided perpetrator of the deed.

SOUTH CYCLONE SWEPT.

Eight Lives Known To Have Been Lost and Buildings Demolished.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 19.—Eight persons are known to have lost their lives, scores of others are injured and property and crops suffered great damage, the extent of which, because of the meager reports yet obtainable, can not be estimated at this time as a result of one of the most torrential-like wind, and rain storms ever experienced in this section.

The storm, which originated on the Guil,—swept—northward—and—in its course razed scores of substantial buildings, partially demolished hundreds of others, caused a complete demoralization of railroad traffic and cut off—telegraphic communication with many points in the affected territory. Cotton in the fields blown down by the wind was beaten into the ground and if not totally was badly damaged. Besides the loss of life and property damage which is known to have occurred, a number of-points directly inthe pathway of the storm can not be communicated with and when complete reports have been received it is feared the loss to both life and property will be greatly increased.

SHEEP SHEARING AN ART.

Much Skill Required to Do the Work

Much Skill Required to Do the Werk Properly.

Though the men appear to advantage during a shearing match, the sheep does not. The situation is a trying one for the pretty mountainbred sheep of the Newfoundland moors, but for the compound of wool and mutton that makes a Southdown nothing could be more undignified, says the London Sepetator. He is planted miserably on end, and spreads into queer, shapeless expansions like a haif-filled mealsack, four helpiess hoofs meeting in a bunch in front, and a bewildered, foolish face doubled backward out of harm's way between the shearer's knees while he makes the first cut along the animal's cheat, and turins back the fleece to avoid smothering him when he is laid on his side for the next move. At this point-the sheep recovers himself-enough to Kick, under the impression that he is about to be slain. The little sharp hoofs can give a stinging blow it you meet them, and there is a great, art in holding your sheep with discretion, for unless he keeps quiet he may get snipped, and then the prise is lost. When the sheep has resigned himself it is good to watch the skill with which the fleece is an input and the dack bit by bit, until a last the dack bit by bit, until a last the control of the prise is the control of the prise in the prise is the control of the prise in the prise is the control of the prise in the prise is the correctived with the fleece is a shear of the prise is the prise certed with short ceremony into the on line abshed and tight-fitting condition, and received with the good to watch the skill without the prise is the prise in the great prise, the prise is the prise in the great prise, the prise is the prise in the great prise, the prise is a prise prise prise is a prise in the prise is a prise, the prise is a prise, the prise is a prise in most attractive figure of all was a little counterpart of Benjamin, clad in a small blue shirt, and wearing the same deliberate and responsible air on his solemn round face. The youth was nine years old, and small for his age, and his short legs could get no grip on the sheep, which appeared several sizes larger than the shearer. -But he lay prone on its body like a resolute small frog, digging in his knees and snipping away at the woolly monster with little brown arms that had hardly outgrown dimples. When the sheep kicked it heaved him bodily into the air. But the big hands beside him held it down again and directed his small shears.

It was hard work, but Reggie mean to get his prize, and there were two to be shorn.

JOSHUA TAKES COMMAND

A STORY OF THE CONQUEST

pyright, 1806, by the author, W. S. Eden Scripture Authority: - Joshu Chapter 1.

SERMONETTE.

SERMONETTE.

"As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee." What an inspiration for Joshus at the beginning of his active leadership of God's people. This was God's message to his heart. In his new capseage to his heart. In his new capseage to his heart. In his new capseage to his heart. The his new capseage to his heart. The his new capseage to his heart. The his new capseage his his houghts? To the record of God's fathiulness in his dealings with his hear record of God's fathiulness in his dealings with his new capseage horse to his dealings with his new capseage his his victorial with his retorn Moses, and writty as there passes before the mind's eye of Joshus the long and glorious history of Moses walk through him, God adds this accouragement: "50 I will be with thee,"

There is always inspiration in studying the lives of men and women who have walked close to God and wrought mightly for him the Scriptures, and we capsead the power and love and grace of God cand to lin the Scriptures, and we find what God can do accomplish through the consecration of a man of the divine will.

Over every such life we see the writing of God: "As I was with them."

the divine will.

Sover evary such life we see the writing of God: "As I was with them." That was the secret of their power and success. God was with them, that la, the life was so brought into harmony with God and God's will that he could use it. Can we grasp the immensity of the thought of God's union with a human life so that he can say of it: "I was with him?" As we read the record of a Moody we marvel: a-t-his power and success, but the explanation is that "God was with him."

And pow what is the message to your heart and mine? Let us sit before God and contemplate what he has wrought through others, and then let us listen carefully that we may catch, his words as he speaks and asys: "So I will be with thee." Here is all the promise that any soul needs. It involves and includes everything. It means vial union with God, it means God's power and love and grace flowing through my life and your life to the blessing and transforming of the world about us. "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee," I a message which may come to every heart. God help us to get near to God, so as to hear his voice. The little word "them?" in the tenth varse is worthy of emphasis, for lt forms the important link between the preparation for an important work and the beginning of that work. When God had spoken his message to Joshua, "then," and not till than, did ha take up the command of the people and direct the praparation for informal mere to be led out, and yet we find no overconfidence, no haste to assume command, but a quiet waiting for the andurent of power from on high, for divine wisdom and direction in taking the first step. If those whom God has chosen to lead bis people would realize this, there would be fewer missteps and greater progress made.

THE STORY.

THE 30 days of mourning had ended, and still israel lay encamped in the plain of Moab. The memory of those days made their hearts tender and submissive. Moses' words were still fresh in mind, and confidently and hopefully they looked forward to the certainty of their possession of the Promised Land.

But Joshus made no move. And the poople recognized him as the leader in Moses' stead, and they waited. "Is it not time that Joshus was pushing forward?" they asked one another. "The days of mourning are ended. Why do we longer remain in this place? Here is the place of sorrow, for it is here whave lost our great leader. Here is the place of sorrow, for it is here whave lost our great leader. Here is the place of Moses was spoken upon us in this place? And now the Promised land beckons us on. "God will give it us. Why do we not go forward?" But Joshus remained in seclusion in his tent. To him the great responsibility was throwing him more and more upon God, and during these days of mourning he sought the di-any man be able to stand before the all the days of thy life; as I was with not fall thee nor forsake thee."

Godly fear and joy filled his heart as God ceased speaking, and inspired with the new hope and purpose breathed upon him by the words of the Lord, Joshua went forth from his tent, and, as we have said, found the congregation gathered for the evening sacrifice. His coming, stirred the people and they shouted for very joy. "Joshua has come! Joshua is our leader! Joshua will now lead us forward."

And when Joshua had stilled the people, he relicarsed in their ears all the words of the Lord, teiling them that God had renewed his covenant made with Abraham, isaac and Jacob, and would spirely give them the land. "Let the officers of the people come together to me, that we may plan for our departure," Joshua concluded. And when these men, these leaders of the people, had come together to me, that we may plan for our departure, "Joshua concluded. And when these men, these leaders of the people, had come together to me, that we may plan for our departure," Joshua concluded. And when these men, these leaders of the people, had come together to his tent, he said, with a vigor which showed that though he could wait patiently before God for his enduement of power, and for, his word of guidace, he could act with promutness when the way was made clear: "In three days we shall bass over Jordan. Pass therefore through the host of israel and command the people to prepare them victuals, for we are to go in to possess the land, which the Lord your God giveth you to no seess, it."

the studied the last words of Moses seeking to know the perfect will of God concerning his people. Over and over gain he reviewed the past his tory. Ah, how they had a filered for their mistakes and size. Just 40 years ago they had been upon the border land and had lost the blessed Irvilles of entering the Promised Land because of unbelief. Would they now escape that pittail? he asked himself. He knew the task of leading those days of meditation and prayer, he escirched for more light, for more wisdom, for God-given courage which would make him indifferent to every difficulty and danger. Ah, to Joshua it was no light or small thing that he should have been called to lead God's people, and he dared not go lightly or carelessly forward. A true humlity, God-given we may be sure, as it comes to every soul upon whom God has placed specially supposed to home the imperial could he hope to lead that people. Costmaster General Corteiyou, who is also chairman of the Republican national committee, is to be accretary of the treasury. He has previously is been secretary of commerce and labor, the department especially supposed to investigate the trusts and corporations. This being a reform administration, of course, there could have been no purpose of secretly investigating the trusts with a view of bieeding them of some of their plunder for the Republican campaign fund, under threat of publicity, or penal prosecution. Still we know, that with all the facts in his possession, Mr. Cortelyou in 1904 did make the corporations 'come down,' especially the life insurance companies. Having now, after two years, had every opportunity of obtaining all the information about the secret graft of railroads and others in the postal service, Mr. Cortelyou will be better than ever prepared to threaten the trust and sorporations 'come down'. To fill the ever open maw of the Republican campaign fund.

As the Wall street and other national bankers have over $150,000,000 of the public money on deposit, without interest, and Secretary Shaw, the ver ready Wall street coadjutor, is concocting schemes with the Rockefeller agents to further aid Wall street feller agents to further aid wall street feller agents to further aid wall street feller agents to further aid wall street it is notable that Mr. Cortelyou has been paying visits to New York and that immediately the Republican campaign fund seems to have received large sums, judging from the great expansion of expenditures.

What could be more natural, from the Republican campaign fund, if assured with the position of secretary of the treasury, than that the frenzied financiers of Wall street should be anxious and willing to donate liberally to the Republican campaign fund, if assured with the state of the future secretary of the treasury that the Shaw policy would be continued.

Does auyone believe that the New York Central railroad would have continued to pay rebates, and the Standard Oil Trust have continued to restrain trade by illegal combinations, if the laws had been enforced and the trust and corporation managers had been prosecuted instead of the corporations? The conviction of the managers of the New York Central, railroad and of the managers of the Standard Oil Trust under the criminal section of the law would at once set other trust magnates to thinking. Fining a corporation is not the effective way to stop the law-breaking but on the corporation is not the effective way to stop the law-breaking but on the corporations in the land were limited to the corporations in the land were limited to the corporations in the land were limited to the law.

TARIFF ON HOMES.

There is one Republican, at least, in Kansas who through experience has been forced to acknowledge that the tariff fosters trusts which plunder the people. This man fortunately is an editor and is evidently an honest one, for in his paper, the Concordia. Empire, he tells his readers:

"We recently have completed building a house at a cost of something over $4,000, and for every foot of lumber, every pane of flass, every sack of cement, every pound of nails, and, in fact, for nearly every bit of material that went into it we made a good, there is no second to the foot our share. * • It may be treason for a Republican newspaper to taik this way, but facts are facts, and it sort of relieves our conscience to tell the truth about the trusts once in a white. We'll just let the trustia, to which we have had to pay nutilials tribute in the past year, pay our dollar for us. We need it, and the don't."

tribute in the past year, pay our doint for us. We need it, and they don't."

Yet this honest Republican, having paid his tax to the trusts, which on the $1,000 expended must have immounted to many hundreds of doilars, seems still willing to allow his neighbors to be plundered in like manner, for he does not denounce this trust plundering as robbery, nor demand that the Republican candidate for congress in his district be pledged to keep out of the congressional caucus and to vote to ravise the tarifi, it is true he refuses to contribute a doilar to the Republican campaign fund, evidently feeling that he is doilar to the Republican campaign fund, evidently feeling that he is doilar or the Republican campaign fund, evidently feeling that he is doilar or the Republican the rust plundering by supporting the candidates of the G. O. P.

If this editor would investigate conditions in his town, county and stats he would discover how few citizens are benefited by the tariff, and being an agricultural community, how many pay tariff axes to the trusts on nearly everything they buy, not by any means confined to materifis for building. Still he is a shining light compared to most other Republican editors who knowing the same facts dare not disclose them to the Republican voters, for fear it would "hurt the present the same facts dare not disclose them to the Republican voters, for fear it would "hurt the

GIVE THANKS,

Says Gov. Beckham, Because of Unprecedented Prosperity.

Frankfort, Ky—Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, of Kentucky, issued his Thankstving proclamation. It follows:

"That the people of Kentucky may properly observe our country's most hallowed custom, I horeby appoint, in accordance with the action of the president of the United States, Thursday, November 29, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout the commonweaith. On that day all business though the suspended; the eager pusuant for wealth should cease; the rest-less struggle for, profit and gain should give place to quiet and peace, while a grateful people, in their usual places of worship, shall give thanks to a generous and nerciful God, who has so richly blessed us. Our people have prospered beyond all precedent, our nation in a little over a century has spring into a position of power and might beyond the boldest dreams of its founders, and respect of the entire world. In material wealth we are without an equal. Nature has lavished upon us her chojecast bounties. The sunshine of peace and contentment sheds its gental light upon a happy jaind. To deserve and retain these things a due recognition should be given to the divine source from which they come. In place of boasting of our greatness iet us humbly praise and thank Him to whom we owe all. The strength and welfare of our re-public, the endurance of its aplendid institutions and the progress of our Christian civilization must depend upon the paspone of this day and recognition and the progress of our Christian civilization must depend upon the paspone of this day and recognition of the province of dod. In celebrating this occasion let us remember that no services our obligations to the province of song and no words of eloquent praise are so expressive of gratitude to the Almighty as are deels of charty and kindness to the poor and helpless shoots.

Presidential Appointmenta.

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican inquires of the editor: "Has President Roosevelt ever applointed to an office a man whose past life has not been good; one who has served a sentence in prison, or done acts against the good of the country? Can you give a case and, if so, did the senate have to confirm the applointment? Did Senator Lodge vote to do so?"

In reply the editor says: "It is with rejuctance that we answer all of these pointed questions is the affirmative. Yes, Propriate. Rooseveit did appoint 'Ben' Daniels the United States manhal of Arisona, the senath and to confirm the nomination, and even our good Senator Lodge voted for it. Ben' Daniels that will be confirmed and become a good clitten; the president had satisfied himself that his former rough rider had reported his else and could now be depended upon to enforce law and maintain order as an official of the United States."

If the Ben Daniels' appointment was the only one to be criticised, there would not be much, to say, for he evidently believed Ben's had reformed and wanted to give him a chance. But unfortunate's president Roosevelt has made some very unfortunate selections of candidates for judges some of whom the senate felt compelled to reject.

With the opening of the Bues canal there was a profound alteration of trade, and the most important routes now start not-from Mauritlus-or-the cape but from the Red sea. Hundreds of steamers, laughing at winds and currents, pass annually from Aden to IEmbay and Colombo on the one hand and to East African ports, Madagascar, Mauritlus and Soychelies on the other. From Colombo, again, there are regular lines to Calcutta, Singapore, West Australia, Mauritlus and South Africa. But except on the lines from the Red sea to Colombo and from the latter to the far east and to Australia there is a relative absence of competition, a want of that necessity for accurate knowledge of the winds, currents and topography which is only called forth by a keen desire for saving time or mileage. The routes aross her surface are also wide apart and her islands are commercially unimportant. Great areas are seldom or never crossed by ships; in our six months' cruise on his majesty's ship Sealark we never saw except in port a single steamer, and only one solitary brig, a small trader from Mauritius to the Chagos.

Bees imitated by Wasps.

The average countryman would laugh at you if you were to tell him that you had seen the wasps this summer playing the part of the exemplary bee and gathering honey from the flowers in the garden. But the countryman would be wrong and you would be right, for of late, for some mysterious reason, the wasps have been busy among the tail flaming spikes of the red hot pokers (Triloma uvaria).

What the bees think of it one can not say, but they are not to be seen mingling with the wasps. The latter, when they feel inclined toward honey, usually make an attack upon the nearest beehive, and very often come off second best, unless they attack in force. But now that the wasp has shown an inclination to gather honey first hand from flowers, surely the scientist can step in and teach it to store it for the needs of man in the comb, which it can already make as perfectly as the bee, although of s different material. The chief difficulty, perhaps, would be to prevent the wasp, like the child in the strawberry bed, from eating all he gathers on the spot.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Baby Snake Wins Battle.

Baby Snake Wins Battle.

A baby rattler which was hungry and a mouse which had no desire to be a victim fought it out yesterday in a cage in the window of a fish store at 1265 Fulton street, Brooklyn, says the New York World. Mother Snake and eight little brothers and sisters watched the baby fight lits first battle for a meal.

Fifty men and women crowded about the window during the 15 minutes that the mouse held out. The baby rattler chased him from one conner of the box to another, striking, coiling and uncolling, while Mother Snake looked on with pride.

Mr. Mouse had several bad falls in trying to get out of the box, and finally fell, and lay still. Baby Rattler surveyed its victim and prepared for a meal. Eul Mother Snake, being frugal, took the meal sway from her son, deposited it in a correr and kept all-the family tantilazed for an hour. Then they fed.

All Honor to the Apple.

The apple is a splendid fruit, although particular specimens of it are bum. The different varieties have a pronounced individuality. The personal equation is prominent. The difference between the Porter and the Jaidwin—each a pomological star of the first magnitude—is as marked as the difference between a Connecticut bank clerk and a. Kentucky colonel. The man who invented or discovered the Baidwin conferred on humanity a boon and he did more to tickle the palate than has ever been realized. Of many uses is the apple capable. Whether it is eaten raw or converted into sauce or made the bask element of pie or subjected to other forms of artistic treatment, by the American housewife it serves a useful and Important purpose.

History has never done adequate justice to the apple. Poets have never adequately celebrated in song the virtues of the fruit. Political economists have never fully recognized the full part that the apple plays in the affairs of men. But apple day is here at last.

Woodcocks Roost with Hens.
Francis Marks of 1331 East Thirtyseventh street, Flatbush, in visiting his hennery Friday night, observed what he supposed was a small chicken nestling on the perch between two irrge white hens, says the New York her if she had been adding to her flock. Mrs. Marks said she had not.

"Well, there is a stranger in the hennery," Mr. Marks said. "Come out and see it."

Procuring a candle he and his wife, went out to see the little invader. Examining it closely it was found that it had a long beak similar to that of, a suipe. It was mottled on the whirs, and about the size of a thrush.

The bird was taken into the house and piaced in a cage. Food was furnished, of which it ate ravenously. Mr.
Marks subsequently learned that the bird was a woodcock, but where it came from or how it got into his henhouse is a mystery. Yesterday mornlng when he went to feed his new pet he found it lying dead on the bottom of the cage.

In the coffee importers' hook a chapter is headed "Coffee as a Medicine," and advocates its use as such.

Here is an admission of the truth, most important to all interested.

Every physician knows, and every thoughtful person should know, that habitual use of any "medicine" of the drug-stimulant type of coffee or whisty quickly causes irritation of the tissues and organs attinulated and fintly sets up disease in the great majority of cases if persisted in. It may show in early and off, the great majority of cases can be directly traced to coffee in a most unmistakable way by leaving off the active irritant—coffee—and using Postum Food Coffee for a matter of ten days, if the result is relief from nervous trouble, dyspepsia, bowel complain, heart failure, weak eyes, or any other maisdy set up by a poisoned nervous system, you have your answer with the accuracy of a demonstration in mathematics.

$500 Realized from One Acre of Onions.

Mr. Geo. Hoffman, of Kingsville, Texas, planted early this Spring five acres in carrots. In March, he sold his carrots to Denny & Co., of Chicago, for $5 per crate. His net returns on five acres of carrots were $320 per acre. One acre planted in onions yielded more than 20,000 pounds, for which he received 2 1-2 cents a pound. Result: $500 per acre.

Mr. Hoffman is not a myth, but a real, live, up-to-date farmer; write him at Kingsyille and he will tell more about his wonderful success.

Such results may seem beyond belief, but they are facts. You might do as well in the Gulf Coast Country. It has a mild climate; tender vegetables can be raised almost every month in the year. Don't you think this is better than a one-crop country where your success depends on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall? Come to the Gulf Coast Country and win success as others have done.

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acres. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop, a sum which has paid all expenses, and left a good surplus.

Summer Hog Growing.

Summer Hog Growing.

It is undoubtedly the experience of every observant grower of hogs who has had an abundance of green stuff to pasture or feed, that the largest profits in this business is in summer and autumn. On blue gass and clover and rape and other green stuff the pigs develop most rapidly and are usually the most healthful, and certain it is that in proportion to growth and gain, it is the cheapest food hogs can have. In a recent contribution to the Drover's Journal on the subject, Mr. L. C. Keynolds gives his own experience and says: The farmer wno cannot provide abundance of green forage tor his pig crop cannot make pork production profitable. The farm in summer affords unparalled conditions for successful growing of hogs, and the farmer who neglects the opportunity to increase his annual dividends neglects agreat chance to fatten his pocket book. No other farm live stock possesses greater capacity to turn into profit more green lorage than the hog when properly handled. My hog crop antually produced me more clear profit for the smount of care and attention than any other live stock on my farm. I endeavor to grow my hog crop during the summer months exclusively upon green forage, and find but little difficulty in accomplishing my purpose. My principal forage crops are clover, rape, oats, and peas, rye, grass pasture and sweet corn. These crops give a wonderful variation of food and produce very rapid growth. Very little grain should be led the growing pigs until ready for the fattening pen unless the crops are of a very succulent nature and fail to supply sufficient fleshforming materials.

HOW TO FEED FOR EGGS.

Generally speaking the feed value of food stuffs is not so well understood by the average poultry raiser and farmer as they should be forthed by the average poultry raiser and farmer as they should be forthed by the average poultry raiser and farmer as they should be forthed by the average poultry raiser and farmer as they should be forthed by the average poultry raiser and farmer as they should be forthed by the average poultry raiser and farmer as they should be forthed by the average poultry raiser and farmer as the state of the average poultry raiser and farmer as the state of the average poultry raiser and farmer as the state of a variety that will furnish the poultry in the poultry having to digest a lot of waste material that they have no immediate use for. As the old saying goes, "It's just what you take out." This saying its certainly true in the poultry in dustry, as hens are only capable of developing eggs or meat to that capacity in accordance with the material they have to work with. Nature has not given them the power of converting what they eat into any element different from the element the feed actually contains. To illustrate the matter in a plain way, supposing that 160 hens were fed one bushed of corn, which is a fair day's ration for that number. The bushed of corn alone does not contain lime or protein enough to develop over thirty-two eggs, which would only be 73 eggs per hen in a year, but it contains fat-forming material enough for 320 hens for one day, or as much again as 160 hens should have for best results. Now as the whole food stuff must be digested before the eggs-producing material is available for the development of the eggs; it is plain to be seen that the energy of the digestive origans when led on a corn ration entirely is taxed to about double the capacity they should be which means a loss to the raiser of no less than 50 cente per hen in a year, American Cultivator.

We note in an agricultural exchange an article entitled "Farmers Are the Dupes of All Others."

That a certain number of farmers are decived by protestations of consideration, are flattered by demagogues, are hoodwinked by sharpers, is true; but we think that on the whole the farming community keeps its head level about as well as any other portion of the community. Panics are not known in agricultural States, Political movements are slower in inception and in progress in the agricultural regions than in the cities and towns. There is a certain-stability of purpose prevailing among the farming community that does not distinguish the concentrated populations in cities. Whatever the cause we believe this is a fact.

Nevertheless it is well for farmers to be on their guard against the schemes of interested parties who assume at times to be the spokesmen for the American farmers, who undertake to tell the farmers Ventilation in Winter.

R is beginning to be more generally realized that the overheating and faulty ventilation of wellings is an important factor in predisposing to many forms of illness. The custom of living in rooms habitually kept at a temperature above 70 degrees Fahrenheit, and with the atmosphere surcharged with noxious gases and descient in the moisture necessary for the health of the delicate limings of the air passages, renders the body much less able to resist the effects of exposure to cold and wet, and is one of the most important reasons why, in some families, coughs and colds are matters of everyday occurrence. The stuffiness of the air produced by the presence of numerous people in small yooms is due not only to the consumption of oxygen and the accumulation of carbon dioxid gas, but also to the formation in small quantities of a highly poisonous substance called "crowd-poison." In addition, noxious gases agise from the imperfect combustion of coal in stoves or furnaces and of gas or oil in other forms of heaters, while the air in steam-heated apartments is always abnormally dry unless special pains are taken to supply the necessary moisture. Living in such rooms is productive of general depression, headache, inability to concentrate the thoughts and bad temper, and is particularly harmful for children, whose bodily and mental development is interfered with, and who are rendered very susceptible to diseases of thet nose, throat and lungs. A board about six inches wide is cut so that its length equals the width of the window, and is placed on the edge under the lower sash, which is shut down upon it. In this way air enters freely through the space between the two sashes, but the current is directed upward, and no draft is felt in the room. Bacteria.

The discovery of bacterial life, and the reduction of its activity to order and a place in our industrial systems, is a romantic chapter in Applied Science. One of the tasks to which these hard-working little cells have been most lately set is connected with the ence. One of the tasks to which these hard-working little cells have been most lately set is connected with that urgent problem of urban life, the disposal of sewage. Sewage not only teems with disease-producing germs, but its solid part is composed largely of organic matter. The "natural" breaking down of organic matter is through putrefaction, a process both disagreeable and dangerous to health. By the aid of bacteria this process of organic chemistry is now replaced by a process of inorganic chemistry. In loose terms, the sewage rusts instead of rotting, is nitrified instead of putrefied. The existence of bacteria which have the power of converting organic matter into inorganic nitrates have been known for some time, and within a few years they have been used to revolutionize one side of the science. of sanitary engineering. The modern sewage-disposal plant consists, essentially, of a heap of rocks covered with a film of these bacteria. The sewage flows on to it a stream of unimaginable impurity. The bacteria seize upon the fifth and cleanse the floudd, and from beneath the hesp flows pure water laden with harmless salts.

Announcement from Berlin that the slaughtering of dogs for food in Prussia increased 33 per cent, and that of horses 19 per cent, during the last year goes to show that the hunger for the natural meat food is more intense than ever before. These statistics will be used by those who are agitating for the opening of the frontiers to the importation of foreign cattle as indicating the necessity for immediate government action toward giving the working people cheaper food, and well they may.

Death Awaiting All Who Venture To Descend—Mob Bent on Lynch-ing If He Comes Out.

Linton, Ind., Nov. 26.—The eighth murder in Greene county this year was committed when Louis Shulley emptied the contents of a shotgun linto Will Watson, a merchant. The top of Watson's head was almost blown off, and he was left in a pool of blood for over half an hour. He lived over 14 hours after the shootling.

He lived over 14 nours after the shoot cold-blooded crimes ever committed in the county, and by a man who has passed his three score years and ten.

Watson and Shulley had not been on good terms for several months. They sat in a poker game and Shulley accused Watson of beating him out of 60 cents.

The matter was supposed to have been adjusted, when Shulley got up and left. After an hour, however, he returned with a shotgun.

Shulley went straight to the poker room, barely opened the door and emptied the contents of the gun into Watson. The shot took effect in the rear of the gun into Watson. The shot took effect in the rear of the gun into Watson. The shot took effect in the rear of the gun into Watson lying in his blood, with the brains ooging from his head. Shulley's son-in-law, James Head, went in search of a physician and was met on the street by Shulley, who, at the point of the gun, demanded $5 from him. The money was given to him. He then went to a friend's home and demanded $5 there, stating that he had killed Watson, and upon being refused the money Shulley told him of the crime and threatened to shoot him. He then proceeded to the residence of his daughter, told of his crime, and when advised to give himself up stated that he "would get several more before he was captured."

The murderer took refuge in the Tower Hill mine and the officers have been unable to get to him. It is considered plain suicide to make an attempt to capture him. A force of the reme are watching the mine, and it he does not come out before morning he will be smoked to death.

Shulley is a widower, and came here three years ago from Kentucky. Thus then we see in this incident the flashing forth of a faith which lifts the sinner out of his sin and links him with the Creator, whose will it is that "none should periah, but all should come to a knowledge of the truth."

Let us look first at the lessons of faith to be learned by this Old Testament Incident, and then consider the marvel cous mercy of God which could lift out of the degradation of heathenlam and elevate to the exalted position of one of the onesters.

Rahab, the outcast, the woman of the town, has won a place among the heroes of faith of the seventh of Hebrews. Let us look first at the lessons of faith to be learned by this Old Testament incident, and then consider the marvelous mercy of God which could lift out of the degradation of heathenism and elevate to the exaited position of one of the ancestors of David and Jesus, for Rahab became the wife of Salmon, perhaps one of the sples whose life she had saved, and the mother of Boaz, the grandfather of Jesus, who was the father of Jesus, who was the period of active, work ing faith, wherein the thought of a living but-invisible God was allowed to expand under the growing knowledge of God's dealings with his people. Then there was the period of active, work ing faith, wherein we find the outward life, and then there was the period of enduring faith, the faith that could wait which the heart believed should come to pass.

In reference to the first period of faith, that of the awakening priod, wherein the thought of a living but-invisible God was allowed to expand under the growing with his people. THE STORY.

WITH trembling eager fingers Rahab tied the scarlet rope in her latticed window. It was out that window during the darkness of the night-before that she had let down the two Hebrews, and she looked out across the plain towards the mountain, apprehensively, wondering if they had made good their escape.

"That cord let these strangers down to safety, she said to herself, "and it is the piedge of my deliverance when they shall return. But I must hurry, for, oh! my mother and my father, and my mother and my father, and my brothers and sisters must be brought thilmer so that the scarlet thread shall give them shelter, even as it will me."

And Rahab, giving one backward glance to be sure that the scarlet thread was securely. Hed, hastened forth.

"The scarlet thread in the window!" she cried. "It is our bnly hope. Come with me!"
"Scarlet thread! Our only hope! Come with the! Winat? Has thy wick-edness driven thee mad? her parents cried.
"Nay, I am not mad," she replied, "but the scarlet thread is the piedge of our deliverance. Come! oh, come! Delay not! For the God of these Hiebers we strangers will give us protection if we get under the scarlet thread." And Rahab went on hurriedly to tell of the events of the day and night before. Of the story of the Hebrew spies, of the awakening of her heart to the thought of the true God who, though invisible, yet moved mightly in the affairs of his people.

How strange it seemed to the parents and her brothers and slaters as they sat there and listened. Here was the outcast daughter and sister, the one whose name they had ceased to speak, and whose memory they sought to blot from their hearts, come back, not with a piea for help, but with a message of deliverance for them. What could it mean? That was not the old Rahab, the reckless Rahab, the Rahab of the abandoned spirit, the Rahab who cared naught for anything but the life of, lust and passion. In her face there shone a new light, and the parents wondered. Where had the thought of their gods ever been able to inspire such caim and confidence? And from that calm, peaceful, hopeful face of Rahab there shone into the heart of her parents and brother and sisters a faint gilmmering of the new hope which was burning in her own heart.

"We will go," the parents said, simply, and the other children nodded their asseat.

In the darkness of the night Rahab and her family made their way back to the house upon the wall, where the scarlet cord fluttered from the case ment.

"See, mother, this is the window from which I helped the Hebrews to escape, after they had given me a heart.

And here is the scarlet cord by which I let them down to the figround. And they fied to the mountains, and, oh! I hope they escaped the king's messengers who went it search of them."

And out of that casement from which fluttered the hit of hright, colored cord they looked longingly and anxiously, that day and the next for the coming of the Israelites.

And so they waited there, in that place which had known the shame of the outcast Pahab. But now, by the marvelous mercy of God, it had become the place of refuge for those who, turning from the gods of wood and stone, had found the living God and looked for deliverance from him.

The Roosevelt administration is paying back the national bankers for their liberal contributions to the Republican campaign funds by loaning them the public funds to the amount of over $150,000,000 to carry, on their hustness, without charging them any interrest. But in addition to that there have been special loans made to favored Wall street bankers to enable them to import gold and thus try and prevent a Wall street panie. It is not strange therefore that Mr. Haden, an Atlanta banker, demands that the southern hanks be loaned the public money to move the cotton crop. "Why," Mry Haden asks, when addrewssing a convention of national bankers, "should we not call upon the sovernment for aid as do the gambling-stricken banks when pressed by frenzied speculation?" The answer, should be plain, that it is entirely out of the province of government to, place the public funds at the disposal of any private business enterprise, for if one is aided all others would have equal right to the same treatment, and even the government of the United States would not have money enough to go around. Secretary Shaw loaning money to the favored Wall street banks is a usurpation of his powers that congress should in vestigate.

Republican Usurpation.

Republican Usurpation.

The theory of our constitution is, that all federal powers are delegated powers, and must originate in grantsmade by the people alone; or, in the language of the tenth amendment of the constitution, that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people." But President Roosevelt refeets this theory and despises this constitution; provision. In his speech at the dedication, of the new capitol at Harrisburg, Pa., October 4, he-said:

"We need through executive action, through legislation and through judicial-interpretation and construction of law, to increase the power of the fedoral government."

How can the power of the federal government be constitutionally increase through executive action, judicial interpretation, or congressional legislation? The only power which the legislative, executive or judicial departments of this government posess, or can honeatly possess, mustome through the cition of the people alone. Roosevel;'s declaration is entirely unconstitutional, and his acts in pursuance of that declaration are usurpations.

Money Circulation.

Aithough there is more money in circulation than ever. before, yet every financial center reports a tightness in the money market and high interest rates prevailing. The treasurer of the United States in his report published October 30, says the circulation on Octoher 1 was $2,812,132,3694 or a per capita of $33,08. In the last three months the circulation increased $72,487,066 and yet the frenzied financiers of Wall street are howling for more money, and our obliging sceretary of the treasury has loaned them, without charging interest, all the surplus cash in the treasury, except just enough to pay the immediate expenses of the government. This money the banks are loaning at the high rates of interest prevailing, so there is a fine profit in the transaction, which Shaw is so generous with.

The question naturally arises, why is money so scarce when the volume in circulation has increased over 50 per cent. In the last ten years? The chief reason is because the surplus money in the hanks mostly finds the way to Wall street, where it naturally gravitates in consequence of the better rates it will bring than at other points. Wall street is a rat hole through which all the spare money in the country can he absorbed. There is now awaiting a favorable money market hundreds of millions of new issues of stock and bonds by railroads and industrial corporations and the prospect for cheap money is very far in the future.

The Republicans did not receive.

Their Voices Mostly Hushed.

Their Voices Mostly Hushed.

The Republicans did not receive much help in the late campaign from those whom they have honored with seats in the United States senate. The voices of Platt and Depew were hushed in New York. Penrose and Knox urned their attention to machine politics rather than to oratory. Dryden and Kean relied upon cash in New Jersey, for that is all they know of politics. Dick, in Ohlo, under the new pact to beat Roosevelt has become a kind of "met-too" to Foraker, whose fire alarm utterances are enough for both of them. Burton is in jail and poor both of them. ETLY INDICTED

For Wife Murder, Though His Accus-ing Daughter Wavered.

Louisville, Ky.—The Jefferson county grand jury charged John Elly with the marder of his wife, Mrs. Virginia Elly. The indictment was returned on the testimony of the prisoner's daughter, annie Belle Etly, who slept in the room with her mother, and who declares that her father killed the woman. At one time before the grand jury the girl waskened, and said it was a man like her father in appearance who killed her mother. She said afterward that she did this to shield her father and reiterated that he was the murderer. The coroner's Jury, having refused to bring in a verdict, Coroner Kelly dismissed it. He returned a verdict of his own finding that "Mrs. Bity came to her death from stabs in the head and throat, inflicted by some person unknown to the coroner". The coroner's jury refused to return a vedict because the state and county such thorities would not produce Annie Etly to testify. The authorities held that to bring the witness hefore is coroner might expose the hand of the commonwealth.

An interesting state of affairs exists at Shelbyville, Ind., resulting from a temperance wave. A list of 29 names of men were handed to the saloon keepers as habitual drunkards, with notice not to sell them liquor. On Monday, November the 12th, Mr. I. W. By Saturday night he had succeeded in getting 43,000 subscribed without leaying the town. He expects this week to go among the farmers and raise ias much more, when the industry will be assured. No where is there a more logical place for establishing this industry than here at Petersburg; we have hundreds of acres of rich bottom lands that are peculiarly adapted to the production of aweet potatoes and tomatoes; then there are rich hill lands accessable that will raise tomatoes, pears and corn. Until in recent years this industry has been confined to our castern glates, which produced most of the canned goods that have been distributed throughout the world. But, in the last lew years, through tour acquisitions from the late ware with Spain, the tide of our commercial industries is moving westward towards. Captain Busby was at the kittle, as usual, with huge iron ladle, superintending the good Beckham soup. Arthur Houston had previously, nicely repaired the old blackes mith shop and Mrs. Susie Surface had swept and garnished the old lengthy huilding, and her Jamps were filled, trimmed and burning. She had a table erected the entire length of castle and laden with soup plates, bowls, tin buckets, cups, dipeler and everything necessary to fit the occasion. When Capt. Busbyt announced the soup ready, Mrs. Susie had her buckets filled and every person was filled with the set soup our neighborhood had ever made, and we were pretty mad because we couldn't drink it all. After every one was more than satisfied, W. N. Surface further extended his liberality by opening a box of cigars (not 2-fors) and passed to all. The good Beckham lady, Susie, having seen the burning deck, passed her peanuts by the peck. We almost forgot to say we had a few Col. Beckham boys present. This occasion will not fade for ages to come.

HANKS be to Thee, O God!
Not that Thou set the darken'd sky with light
Of countless stars, framed in solemnity—
But that some soul who suffers in the night
Sees one star through the window's little pane
And, by that gleam of hope, first prays to Thee.

Thanks be to Thee, O God!
For throbbing music which the world's voice thrills;
But most for melody which sings, alone—
The bird in deepest wood—or song that stills ,
A child to sleep, far from the grand refrain
Of Fame's great chorus, chanting tunes well known.

Thanks be to Thee, O God! For wondrous beauty which Thou gave the earth, But most for loveliness in barren sod; A green spot in the parch'd grass—the birth Of some pure, saintly life not lived in vain In haunts of wickedness which know not God.

Thanks be to Thee, O God!

For Autumn harvest men have toiled to reap;

For love, for home, for laughter through our tears,
But most of all for seeds which, in the sleep

Of Winter, wait for sun and Spring-time rain,
Holding potential growth for coming years.

Is the hasy rush of living very few people find time to be thankful for or realize the everyday and vital blessings that are ouring in pono them. The Puritans must have recognized this even in their day, when they in augurated a custom that has become as firmly fived as the constitution of the United States. Baybarries for Thanksgiving Candies. The revival of many an old time industry has hrought into vogue the bayberry candie, heloved of our grandmothers; and here and there along country byways men and women" may low be found garnering the aromatic perries, which some enterprising woman has engaged to make into candles, says the Providence Daily Journal. It requires a quart of berries to make one candle. They should be kept in a dry place till ready to use, then put into a preserve kettle, allowing two quarts of water to one of verries. They should be boiled for Journ hours, filling up the kettle with hot water as it boils away. Then et it back where it will simmer a while and at night set away to cool. In the morning the wax will simmer a while and at night set away to cool. In the morning the wax will have formed in a large cake on top of the water, and after metting and straining through a piece of fine iawn or cheesecloth it is ready to pour into the candle molds. These candles give out a sweet, aromatic odor, which perfumes the room.

SUMPTUOUS REPAST OF HALF A CENTURY AGO

of Our Ancestors Seems Been for Heavy Dishes and Many of Them.

At Thanksgiving time so much is heard of old-fashioned dinners that it may be interesting to readers to hear what the term signified in Philadelphia some years ago a large dinner was very different to what it is now. In the first place courses, such as we know them, were practically unknown; even in the weathlest bouses-there was rarely anything but soup preceding the actual dinner, but this soup was generally very rich.

Such a dinner consisted about as follows: First a handsome silver-covered soup tureen was piaced on the table, filled with mock turtle or perbaps venison soup, and all were plentifully helped, the great silver ladle, corresponding to the tureen, doing good service. After the soup plates were removed a great roast turkey decked with celery and cranberries and marvelously trussed and dressed was placed at one end of the table while at the other was a large plece of a is mode beef on a platter. Roast duck and apple sauce some times took the place of a is mode beef but the two ends of the table had silways their respective meats or poutry. Sweet and white-potatoes and every sort of vegetable to be had obtained a place on the festive hoard, white cunning moids of cranberries and jeitles and gravies, pickles and the like were in ahundance.

There was generally what was known as an "oyster ple"—stewed oysters served in a put-paste shell, the rich dressing of the oysters he ing made thick with egg.

There was no salad course, but of desserts there was no dearth. Pumpkin ple, mince ple, and always a wonderfully constructed meringue and either jeily or custard, sometimes both, served in glasses, white plates and nutcrackers were handed around for the nuts.

The centerplece was invariably agreat pyramid of truits arranged on a cut-glass or Dresden china epergne, and, when the table was very long, there were sometimes two of these fruit pyramids.

A little later, after the guests had adjourned to the drawing-room, coffee, lees and fancy cakes were served to them there. There were no little after-dinner co

"Mock Turkey" for Thanksgiving.
A novel suggestion for a Thanksgiving party is a "Mock Turkey." One was made last year by taking a keliting basket and covering it with brown holiand. The handle of the basket ran lengthwise, thus serving as an excellent breast bone for the turkey. The brown holiand was artistically adjusted to simulate legs, wings and a neck. It was then tinted to the requisite shades by the liberal use of burst unber paint. The sturing of this turkey consisted of trifling gifts, accompanied with appropriate rhymes. The "carving" of the turkey was attended with much pleasant excitement. The operation consisted in making strenuous preparations for it, then suddenly with a destrous movement of the fork, lifting the entire "skin." laying bare the interesting "staffing."

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when he was four months old began to have eccema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. We had all the doctors around us, and some from larger places, but no one helped him a particle. The eccma was something terrihle, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I had to bandage his limbs and arms; his scalp was just dreadful. A friend teased me to try cuticura, and I hegan to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies. He was better in two months; and in six months he was well. Mrs. R. L. Risley, Plermont, N. "The doctor gave the message to the cook, who couldn't read. She forgot to send it, and the next day the drummer came home of his own accord.

"He stayed a day or two, found his wife tionig all right, and set out on his rounds again. Nothing, as it happened, was said about the forgotten telegram.
"And at the end of the week the telegram was remembered hy the cook. With an exclamation of horror—you know she couldn't read—she hurried to the office and sent to the drummer that delayed message. When he got it that night he was terrified. What he read was this:
"'Another addition—a son; your wife very fil; return at once."
"He took the midnight train for home. He was like a man in a trance.' Another?" he kept muttering in a dazed voice. 'Impossible!"
"On getting home he was so relieved when everything was explained to him that he decided not to fire the cook, after all."

Reynard's Hiding Place.

During a run of the Essex Union Hounds at Great Burstead, England, the fox took refuge in a brewhouse, and seated liself on the copper of boiling water. Finding his position too warm, and being hard pressed by the hounds, it fied to the roof and sought safety among the rafters. Chairs were upset, plates and dishes broken and pajut pots overturned by the hounds, until the arrival of one of the whips, who caught the fox and liberated it.

In the Shade of the Sphinx.

The Egyptian pyramids will probably lose much of their magnificent and legendary appearance in the near future. The Egyptian government has given permission for the erection of homes and hotels in the vast plain stretching from Eskebich to the Nile and covered with the anotent sphinxes and structures. Already several societies have been formed to avail themselves of the picturesque view for the building of large hotels. All around the pyramids of Ohiseh there are to be erected real American styserappers from nine to ten stories in height.

WHERE WOMAN SHOWS GENIUS.

"If there's one thing," said the observant benefict, "that shows the difference between the masculine and the feminine make-up it's the way that men and women approach the matter of fact, don't approach it at all. They just leap into it when, it is impossible to avoid it further. But your true woman, who of course is a thoughtful woman, never has gifts out of her mind for a day or so at a thoughtful woman, never has gifts out of her mind for a day or so at a thoughtful woman, never has gifts out of her mind for a day or so at a thoughtful young, no one of my frequent shopping tours with my wife. One of the first things, she said was, "There's just the fur neck plece for Aunt Molly"! I remarked that I didn't start getting my Christmas presents how, she repiled, where would I be in November? Naturally I had nothing to say in return.
"And as for making things! Bless ting my Christmas presents now, she repiled , where would I be in November? Naturally I had nothing to say in return.

"And as for making things! Bless your heart the women are always making things for each other. They have the law of association better developed than we have; they know what people need, and, what's more, they act upon the knowledge. I've got a good many men Irlends, I'm glad to say, and I suppose I know their tastes in a geheral way, but I'd be scared to death to buy anything for any one of them. They feel the same about me, I guess, but my wife knows just the thing for each one of the relatives or women Irlends, that she remembers; at least, that's what they all say in their notes of thanks. "It's a genius, that's what they all say in their notes of thanks. "It's a genius, that's what It is, this faculty of gift making. The women have it and we haven't; that's all. The few days before Christmas are like a nightmare to me, and I'd be lost entirely at that festive season if I hadn't my wife to help me out. There's one thing, though, in which she can't be of any assistance, and that's the getting of a present for her that will be just what she wants and a surprise to boot. And my efforts to get this desideratum aren't helped by the positive knowledge that she has had any present decided upon and ploked out weeks or months ahead."—N. Y. Herald.

and picked out weeks or months ahead."—N. Y. Herald.

Fishes' Defensive Armor.

Two fairly well defended creatures now before me serve to explain that fish are generally seized as prey from above, because nature invariably puts the armor where it is most needed. One of these is the horned shark, which has two defensive spears, each high-up on a separate dorsal fin; and the other is the trigger fish. In both cases the bayonets are pointed for the enemy as when a battaion receive cavalry. But the trigger fish has a sort of pocket knife attachment for his. It folds down into a groove-which reaches along his back, exactly as the biade of a penknife may be turned down when its use is not required.

The trigger fish is a huge head propelled by a short, broad tall with on intermediate body to speak of; and in this questionable shape he seems as unlike a true product of ustern as the animals of the heradry office. He received his name when muskets were of an ancient pattern and when he is at full cock he is not to be triffed with—Los Angeles Times.

Almoig the valuable»-recovered, are the Imperial crown and scepter of Brazii, valued at $105,000, and the imperial mantle, bordered with gold. The box in which the treasure was found is believed to have been deposited in the treasury since 1836.

Heart Weakness

The action of the heart depends upon the heart nerves and muscles. When from any cause they become weak or exhausted, and fail to furnish sufficient power, the heart flutters, palpitates, skips beats; and in its effort to keep up its work, causes pain and distress, such as smothering spells, short breath, fainting, pain around heart, arm and shoulders. The circulation is impeded, and the entire system suffers from lack of nourishment.

An interesting Task.

Capt. Tilho, of the French colonial Infantry, who is at the head of the French nision-for the delimitation of the French nision-for the delimitation of the French Sudan from British Nizeria-has been giving some interesting particulars of the task entrusted to him. He is to work in concert with Maj. O'Shee of the British mission, to give practical effect to the Anglo-French treaty of May 29, 1906. That treaty establishes in theory the fronther between the French and English phasesions from the Niger to Lake Chad. The two missions will now define those boundaries. Capt. Tilho passessions from the Niger to Lake Chad. The two missions will now define those boundaries. Capt. Titho considers that about 18 months will be necessary for the completion of this work. His personal relations with the chief of the British mission are exceedingly friendly, and nearly all to officers speak English. Capt. Titho and his party were to reach Daker on November 4, and will proceed thenca to Ilo, the first British port on the Niger, where they will meet the British mission. From Ilio the two missions will start on their work of delimitation, which will extend over 1,500 miles. The British mission is to reach Ilo on December 10. It is expected that the work will have been completed up to Lake Chad by December, 1907, and that both missions will be able to return to Europe in the spring of 1908.

Mexico's President.

President Diaz is now 75 years of age, but he is equal to the administrative tasks of a man of 56. For more than 50 years he has been the central figure in the national affairs of Mexico, and of that time 30 years as an active soldier. Since he came into power the country has known ahealoute peace, where before it was in constant revolution. Raifroads now run in every direction, developing great industries and opening up the wonderful mining districts of Mexico. Miss upon mites of telegraph lines are given in figures that astonish foreigners. To President Diaz was given the given in figures that astonish foreign-ers. To President Diaz was given the honor of completing the great work of the drainage of the valley of Mexico, which has made the capital so notably healthy in comparison to former years. This healthy in comparison to former years. This important engineering problem was commenced 300 years ago, but owing to insurmountable difficulties the project never materialized until the present era of peace and enlightenment. To President Diaz is also due the inauguration of numerous great popt works, besides many other enterprises during recent years.

Caterpillar Fever.

"Caterpillar fever is contracted by many in rural districts," says the Medical Times, quoting the London Mail. "There is often an epidemic of 'caterpillar rash,' characterized by intense tiching of the nature and concentrations." of caterpillar rash, characterized by intense itching of the paims and sometimes of the face, with vesicles which, when they occur above the eyes, obstruct vision. Prophylaxis requires that the caterpillars be left severely aione. The 'palmar worm' for Instance, the halry caterpillar of the gold-tall moth, one of the commonest and most beautiful objects in the country at midsummer, passes from hand to hand. It leaves a few of its loosely attached hairs upon the palm; and an urticaris results, in the opinion of English rural physicians."

Protection to Workman.

Protection to Workman.

By recent legislation France takes the lead of all countries in the protection which it affords to workingmen. A workman in the discharge of his duty does not have to prove negligence on the part of his employer in order to recover damages. The government guarantees the laborer against loss through his employer becoming bankrupt, and in some cases an annuity of a vaite as nigh as 50 per cent. of the workman's wages goes to his family in case he is killed. The employers, in order to protect themselves, insure against all kinds of liabilities, and the companies which do this insurance, are, in turn investigated by the government.

MADLY HARANGUES HIS FEW FAITHFUL FOLLOWERS

in the Bellef That He is a Grea tGen-eral Grievously Wounded During Battle.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—John Alexander Dowle, founder of Zion City and first apostie of the Christian Catholic church, in Zion, its Insane. This face was demonstrated when Dowle, in an address to his followers in Shiloin house, described himself as a generat, his hearers and his soldiers and his hearers and his soldiers and his home as a tent on the battlefield. The spectacle presented by Dowle as he harangued his falthful adherents was pitiful. His eyes glared with the fires of madness, his manner was nervous and his address incoherent and reasonless. He fancied he had just conducted his hearers to victory after a frightful battle in which his general was slain and himself sorely wounded, and he pointed to his warships which lay in battle formation in the lake, their guns protecting Zion from hostile invasion.

Deacon John A. Lewis and James F. Peters, his most faithful friends, sought in vain to quiet Dowle and escort him to his chamher. He ordered them to romain quiet sind threatened to have them court-martialed for insubordination on the battlefield. He pronounced an incoherent eulogy over their common foe.

"You have naught to fear," he shouted. "In trusted soldlors" to foliow his banner to more glorlous victories over their common foe.

"You have naught to fear," he shouted. "Our general has been slain, but have I not taken his place, and, wounded as I am, led you to victory over the nemy? Now as we meet in this tent to pay our last tribute to the greatness of our fallen leader let us not forget that more battles are to be fought, and that we must stand together as a man if we hope to defeat our foee." The first evidence that Dowle's mind was hopelessly shattered presented itself when the first apostle appeared in the meeting room, garbed in hlack. His hands were swarped in flannels and his slippered feet were encased in cotton handages. Laboring under the defusion that he had received scrious wounds in a mythical balle he had acted as his own surgeon and har owned and threatening and pleading by turns, was plac

On His Public Career Made By Insurance Companies.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Before he retires from office President Roosevelt, Intends to have refunded to the policy holders of the "Big Three" insurance companies the money contributed to the republican national committee in 1904 by the Equitable Life, the Mutual Life and the New York Life. Insurance Cos.

The aggregate of their contributions, made out of the "yellow dog" funts of the companies, was $148,000. The fact that he was elected with the heip of money taken lifegaily from the policy holders of the three companies has nettled the president for many months. He feels that it has placed a taint upon his administration, as well as upon his public career.

It leaked out for the first time that the president has aiready taken steps to have the money refunded, and that this would have been done long ago but for the obstinancy of Postmaster General George B. Six Hundred Boxes of Explosives woes Up—Scores Perished.

Dortmund, Germany, Nov. 30.—An explosion of the roburtle factory near Annen resulted in the death of 40 persons. Many others were so seriously injured that there is no hope of their living. Among the wounded are about 200 employes. The damage is estimated at $500,000. Owing to the bursting of their ear drums by the concussion a number of persons have been totally deprived of their hearing. The explosion occurred at 8:20 oclock, An hour earlier fire had brecken out in the factory, which is a part of the Krupp establishment. The fire brigade arrived at 8 oclock, but was obliged to retire because of the danger of explosions. The neighboring Krupp factories were slightly damaged. At the time of the explosion 600 boxes, each containing 80 pounds of roburt, were situated in the factory. Experts declare that considering the great precautions with which the explosions were stored the disaster could only have resulted from some outrage.

Earthquakes and voicanoes are be-coming the fad in fashlonable scien-tific circles. It is a good thing to have a variety of earthquakes. Anyone who has been amid the terrors of a gen-uine upheaval of the earth's crust will has been amid the terrors of a genuine upheaval of the earths crust will never forget it. All the fine spun theories of theological hair splitters and fake experimenters who dablie with what they call science become rubbish in the presence of the stupendous facts which the earthquakes and volcances thunder forth.

In view of what has happened in San Francisco and Chill one can more sincerely appreciate the terrors of that awful display of the earth's power when its crusts are broken upward, as was recorded during the kert disasters in Java.

It will be remembered at the time of the outbreak in the straits of Sunday that a spectator standing on a high eminence nearly 20 miles away, saw the mountains burst into smoke and steam. When the vapors blew away, he tooked again and saw the sea sweeping over the place where the mountains had been.

Observing more closely he saw a mountain standing where the sea had awept hut a few hours before. A traveler just from Java brings ome striking pictures of the many craters and cones dotting the landscape around the mighty volcano of Smerce.

From these eruptions streaming from the central volcano came rivers of mud and boiling waters. In neigh-boring outbreaks great forests were upheaved and mountains made.

upheaved and mountains made.

Serpents, tigers, leopards, elephants and other animals that were roaming the lungle when the earthquake came were seen hours later roiling down the canyons of those mountains, floating, in torrents of holling hot water and roasted alive. Immense pythons and other monstrous screents from 50 to 100 feet long were among the sights. In some places the skins of leopards and tigers as well as of the serpents were all that could be found except the skeletons within. The clesh had been boiled and washet way.

An attache of the American êmbassy at London tells a story of a butier in the employ of a fine old English family whose long service had incucated in him a personal and proprietary interest in the sons and daughters of the house.

Once, on the occasion of a large dinaer party, the conscientious butier observed that one of the members of the family, a young girl who had but recently entered society, was devoting an amount of attention to her agreeable neighbor on the right obviously in excess of that accorded to the less fascinating man on her left. This fact perturbed the butler to a degree that could' no longer be borne in silence. So, under pretense of passing the culprit a dish, the butler managed, to whisper respectfully in her ear:

"A little more conversation to the left, miss."

"You're extravagant," said uncle.
"These cigars are a lot better thanthe ones i smoked at your age."
"Yes," muttered nephew in an illconcealed aside, "they're a, lot better than what you smoke now."

Able to Command Sleep.

With Georges Clemenceau, the new French premier, sleep is a mere matter of volition, in which facility he resembles Gladstonc and the great Napoleon. He drops oft to sleep at any odd moment—in his private carriage and even at meetings of the cabinet when only routine matters are under consideration. This ability to go to sleep when and how he pleases is the secret of his tremendous ability as a worker. He learned English in this country and speaks—it perfectly, though with reluctance, feeling that his accent is not exactly to his liking. ing.

Japan's Empress Popular.

I sis doubtful: If any viyal consort is more loved by her people than is the empress of Japan. Educated according to feudal-ideas and skilled in all the secomplishments befuting one of her social eminence, her indeed the social eminence, her majesty strongly favors the broadness of the new education for women and strom her private purse gives large sums toward the maintenance of women's schools and universities. During the war with Russia the empress visited the hospitalism samy times and every day passed hours making bandages. The effect of these bandages upon the wounded soldiers has been of deep interest to, medical and selentific men, for the soldiers honored by them seemed to ruily under a peculiar mental influence. All other bandages were destroyed after their first use; those made by the empress were sterilized and used again for the simple reason of their effect on the recovery of the soldiers.

LIKE A FAIRY TALE.

The Story of Postum Cereal in Words and Picturas.

The growth of the Postum Cereal Co. is like a fairy tale, but it is true, every word of it.

"The Door Lipbolted" is the title of a charming little booklet just issued by the Company which tells, and illustrates, the story of this remarkable growth. It takes the reader from the little white barn in which the business was started Jan. 1, 1896, through the palatial offices and great factory buildings of the "White City" that comprise Postumville, Battle Creek, Mich.

The little white barn, so carefully preserved, is a most interesting building, for it represents the humble beginning of one of the country's great eat manufacturing enterprises of today, an enterprise that has grown from this little barn to a whole city of factory buildings within but little more than ten years.

No less interesting is the quaint of ficial home of the Postum Cereal Co. The general office building of Mr. Post and his associates is a reproduction of the Shakespeare house at Stratford-on-Avon, and upon the house-and its furnishings has been expended vastsums of money, until the rooms are more like the drawing rooms of the mansions of our multi-millionalres than like offices.

That Mr. Post has believed thoroughly in the idea of giving to his employes attractive and healthful work rooms is proven not only by the general office building of the Company and its furnishings, but by his factories as well, and, of all of thesethings this beautiful little booklet tells the interesting story. It will be sont to anyone on request.

SERMONETTE.

SERMONETTE.

There is a beautiful picture, nere in this service which the Reubenites and the Gadietes and part of the tribe of Manasseh performed for their brethren. It emphasized the vital relationship which one bears to others about him, and the responsibility which one must share in securing blessings for the lives of others.

These men had found their inheritance. They were at home with their wives and little ones, and flocks and herds. From a purely selfish standpoint they had nothing more to gain by war and conflict.

But they must needs cross Jordan, too, for their brethren needed them. These had not yet found rest. They had not yet come into possession of this inheritance, and so the Reubenites and the dadiets and the men of Manasseh willingly left their possessions behind to serve their brethren and help them obtain the blessing in which they were already rejolcing.

There is nothing which is receiving so much emphasis today as the days when he was to his brethren. Every man owes something to his fellow man.

Have you attained the land of promise, and come into your rightful possession? Then your duty towards your brother who has not yet obtained the blessing is increased many fold.

You must not, you cannot say:
This is mine, i will enjoy it. Let my brother look out for himself. Nay, the fact of possesion is the call to duty outside of yourself and for the sake of others.

of yourself and for the sake of others.

"And they passed over armed before the children of lessel." It is one thing to be willing to go armed and prepared for the conflict.

The preparation which these men made was the earnest of their purpose to face danger and to be of real service. They didn't hold back but they took the lead. There was not a coward among them, and no shirk, watching for the opportunity to escape hardship and toil.
"As Moess spake unto them." Here was a piedge made months before which was now being fulfilled.

Lead to be the complete the complete of the complete complete the case of the complete complete before which was now being ful-filled.

It is easy to promise something, but how hard to fulfill. In the fush of gratitude and de-light at coming into possession of so pleasant a land, no doubt it was easy to say: "We will go." But when the weeks had sped by, and they were occu-pled with the enjoyment of their inheritance, then it was hat the test came. Israel found them true men, and doubtless their enjoyment of their posses-sions was enhanced by the con-sciousness of faithfulness. They had promised, therefore they would serve. Ah, if only all our promises which we are so ready to make were as faithfully kept.

THE STORY.

FOR three days the children of Israel had beer encamped by the side of Jordan. The swift-moving stream—flood full, for it was the time of the spring freshets and the waters had overflowed their banks—seemed to separate them effectually from the regions which stretched out on the other side in verdant beauty as far as the eye could see. And more than ever did the people turn with half envious eyes upon their brethren of the tribes of Reuben and Gad and part of the tribe of Manasseh as they saw them comfortably settled upon their inheritance. Their flocks and herds appread themselves over the plains and seemed to share the feelings of their masters that sat last they had found reat and were at home.

To be sure Moses had granted their request in asking for inheritance upon that side of Jordan, but it seemed to the people waiting there by the side of the swollen Jordan, separated from their own hheritance, that the tribes of Rouben, Gad- and Menasseh- were getting quite the best of matters. And now it was the third day since Johnsh and summagned the people together and had detared that within the days they should cross Jordan. And they would be days they should cross Jordan days they should cross Jordan in the camp, and how the people had made haste to move from Shittlim, where they had been encamped for so many weeks, and to come to the very brink of the revenities, and to the Gadites, and to half the irribe of Menassel, and to half the tribe of Menassel, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Menassel, and the servant of the Lord commanded the servant of the Lord commanded obediently, the people struck their tents and prepared for the conward march.

In the meantime there was a testing time going on for the unen of the tribes of Reuben and Gad and Manisasch, to whom the call had come to leave their families and their possessions and go before their brethren to help them gain possession of the land on the other side. Jordan. God had blessed them, and gived them rest in a goodly land. They must show their gratitude by helping their brethren in the harder task of winning possession of their inheritance. They must leave their possessions, even while they were guit beginning to enjoy them. They must give up their rest which was so sweet after the long weary years of wandering. But they would do it because they had promised. While any of their brethren were still without the borders of the land God had promised to give them they could not enjoy their own longers of their own possessions must depend upon their brethren taking possession of the land as Moses had parceled it out. Thus during those three days did they purpose to loyally support Joshua. And on that third day while the people waited by Jordan's brink with their focks and their little once until the priests should set forth bearing the safe of the land as moses had parceled it out. Thus during those three days did they purpose to loyally support Joshua. And on that third day while the people waited by Jordan's brink with their focks and their little once until the priests should set forth bearing the propose to their backs upon their own possessions they set their faces steadfastly in helping their brethren in obtaining the rest into which they had already come.

The result of a low tariff on crude fron and steel would naturally reduce the present production in this country, but would not stop the manufacture of: those finished products, like machinery, tools and cuttlery, upon which the tariff could be reduced to a reasonable rate of say five per cent. of the present rates to begin with and further reduction as the business was prepared for it, and the American people would be benefited.

When & Er zemembered that every.

pie would be benefited.
When it is samebered that everyone is made to pay his share of the increased price of iron and steel, which is used in the manufacture of so many articles of necessity, from a tin pan to transportation by land or sea, it is of the greatest importance that no artificial obstacle like the tariff should be imposed to increase the price.

Unfortunates Suffer.

Highly protected Germany, like the United States, has discovered that the protective tarial fosters trusts and combinations which force up prices. In consequence, there as here, the great increase in the cost of living is forcing the workmen to demand higher wages and many people are denouncing a policy that unnaturally advances prices beyond what limited incomes can bear without privation. There is in Germany, as here, a large number of endowed chafttable institutions which find under this increased cost of living a partial stopping of their activity, It costs nearly 50 per cent, more both in Germany and here to feed and citohe charity patients in hospitals, and inmates of homes for the axed and helpless, the orphan, the blind and others, whose care devolves upon society. The incomes of these institutions being practically stationary they are competed to decrease the number of those unfortunates they shelter, or reduce expenses, so that suffering is inevitable. This is one of the many disadvantages of the tariff fostered trusts and protecting them in unduly advancing the price of their products.

advancing the price of their products.

Increased Business World-wide,
The British board of trade has issued a statement on the remarkable expansion that has taken place in the world's commerce this year, which shows that all the leading countries have participated in the improvement in exports. The matter to be especialiy noted is that the increase shows a greater per cent. in most other countries than it does in the United States, so that the Republican party are responsible for the prosperity here is, idle, for the movement is world-wide and is doubtless caused in a great measure by gold infation and is hindered rather than helped by our protective tsriff.

SEEK POSTAL LAW CHANGES.

The newspaper publishers, bold daily and weekly, will have to keep basy or they will suddenly discover that a Republican president have changed the postal laws so as to increase the cost of mailing second-class matter, or so curtailed the service as to interfere with the business of distributing newspapers to the public. That an organized attempt is to be made to do this is patent from the recommendations in the reports of the assistant postmaster general. The claim is made that second-class matter costs more than the postage charged produces and therefore the rate should be raised. But this has been shown not to apply to the legitimate newspapers which in many cases are carried by the railroads and express companies on secount of individual publishers at rates as low as one fourth to one-half cent a pound, for distances within the average range of circulation; and this goes to prove pretty conclusively that the one cent a pound now paid to the government is ample. If the price paid the government for this service dees not cover the cost the failt must be with the service, or its failure to secure fair terms from the railroads.

There has always been government contracts with the railroads for carrying the mail and of the efforts made by the railroad agents to pad the rives for fixing the saverage weight carried. The rent authorized by congress to be plaid for postal cars is a perennial scandal and of the railroad is a clean steal and unfortunately Democratic congressmen as well as Republicans are responsible for it. The Southern railroad is compelied to make fast time to compete by the Southern railroad is compelied to make fast time to compete by the Southern railroad is compelied to make fast time to compete by the Southern railroad is compelied to make fast time to compete by the Southern railroad is compelied to make fast time to compete by the Southern railroad is compelied to make fast time to compete by the Southern railroad is compelied to make fast time to compete by the Southern railroad is compelied

CRAZE FOR MINING DEALS.

The Boom is Getting Too Active; Pre

The financial journals have all arrived at the conclusion that money will not loan at the low rates that have prevailed for some years after the present stringency is ended with what its known as the endy-moving season. They pretty generally agree that the increased output of gold has reduced its purchasing power, and therefore interest rates, or the earning power of gold; have to meet this depreciation by being increased as other commodities have also advanced under the present gold infiation. Inflation of the currency always begets apeculation, and the craze for dealing in mining stocks is the greatest example of this effort to vicke much out of little. All the daily newspapers published in the greater citles are filled with alurrist, advertisements of the enormous profits and resulting advance in the price of mining stocks. Many of these miles are being boomed on "prospects" and have already reached pices much above par. Those who have been fortunate enough to purchase before the boom began can now escape with a profit, and it would seem to be wisdom to do so. Some stocks may go higher, but it is certain that most of them which are not dividend earners, will be difficult to sell much below par before long.

Those who are the sellers of this muchly advertised mining stock would not be rushing the sale of the stock of the valuable properties they depict, if one-tenth of what they impliedly promise were true. Instead of selling such get-rich-quick propositions they would be offering to buy the stocks instead of selling them. Gold is always salable, and there is no slumn in its coinage value, however much is produced, although it will not buy as much of other commodities, by an average of nearly 50 per cent, of what it would ten years ago. So it is not the fear of too much gold being produced and a fall in value that urges the second of the mining boom, for it is being overdone, or at least will take the precaution to injecting bound for such season the fear of too much gold being produced and has a fair prospec

As a majority of the people have decided they are saysfied with the tariff that protects the trusts, the balance of us will have to be satisfied for the next three years with the greatly increaser cost of living. Those with limited incomes will therefore have to economize, and the laboring man will have to demand higher wages to come

Recently a respresentative of the rectifiers sent a sample of whisky, mixed with neutral spirits, prune juice and burnt sugar, and asked for a decision—the first of the act. Several other letters and telegrams were sent to the secretary asking for a decision, but it is claimed the department, while acknowledging the receipt of inquiries, has so far decind to give a decision. The Kentucky distillers of straight goods are taking a deeper interest in the pure food law than appears from the surface. They claim that within the past few years the rectifiers have made millions of dollars by sending out rectified goods, marking it Kentucky Bourbon or Rye, when in reality it is nothing but a mixture of prune juice, burnt sugar and neutral spirits. This organization, in the interest of farmers, is attracting considerable attention. Its chief purpose is, through concert of action, to obtain profitable prices for the products of the farm, orchard and garden. Other purposes are to have puilt and maintained granaries levators, warehouses and cold storage houses on the farms, in principal market cities, and all localities where necessary, so that farm produce may be held and controlled for an advantageous price.

After reaching his old home Mr. Porter at once set about to make a living for himself and two children, devoting his time to the carpenter's trade of which he was a master, a fact that gave him all the work he could do. RECORD PRICE

May Be Paid For White Bur ley In Short Time.

Reach Sixteen Cents.

Prediction Made That It Will Reach Sixteen Cents.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 28.—The movement to organize the growers of white Burley tobacco in the bluegrass region has already resulted in a decided advance in price of this year's corp. Becoming alarmed at the progress which has been made in inducing the planters to join the American Society of Equity, agents of the manufacturer's are already in the field and are offering prices far above those of last year for the to-bacco, even before it has been stripped. Fourteen cents is now offered for grades which last year sold for from seven to nine cents a pound. Even at these prices, however, very little tobacco has been sold, as most of the farmers have joined the organization, and will act together. It is estimated by the promoters of the organization that the advance in prices will give to the growers of white Burley tobacco almost $5,000,000 more than they received for their cr-p last year, this estimate being based on the usual white Burley yield of 160,000,000 pounds. Only Result That Could Foliony Conflict With Japan—No Precautions Being Neglected.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Oncials of the state department were somewhat astonished to read in the newspapers a dispatch from San Francisco stating that Henry B. Miller, United States Consul General at yokohama, said in an interview in the former-city that "the Japanese are highly incensed over the segregation of Japanese school children, and, to save the national digatity, are willing to go to war." If Miller was correctly quoted and the language used actually reflects his sober judgment, the situation would appear to be assuming a seriousness not realized before in Washington.

Ellminating the questlon whether the consul general was discrect in salking that way, and the possibility of his being called upon by the state department for an expinantion, his interview has had the effect of providing considerable speculation as to how keenly Japan feels over the matter, and whether she seriously would contemplate a rupture of friendly relations with the United States if her protests are not satisfactorily adjusted.

§ Specter Causes Wonder.

Administration officials have always been, and still are, loath to believe that the counseiors of the mikade have gone so far as to consider the possibility of war as a result of the action of the San Francisco school authorities, nevertheleas the specter of an armed conflict between the two nations has been flaunited so frequently of late that some of them have begun to wonder whether the school incident might not prove to be the forerunner of conditions leading to such an unformate culmination. The school incident might not prove to be the forerunner of conditions leading to such an unformate culmination. In the state, apprehended such an eventuality over the present situation, for they are hopeful that dislomacy will be equal to the emergency. The fact remains, however, that so long as the impression prevails that Japanese self-assion prevails that Japanese self-assion prevails that Japanese leading to the semestre menage to the continuation of cordial international relations, the president should, and doubtless will, experience little, if any, difficulty in persuading congress to make any provision annually for the main-ple provision annually for the main-ple provision annually for the main-ple provision annually for the main-feahnce of a large and efficient may. It goes without saying that Japan's first objective in case of war would be the Phillippines, and, although some American statesmen have always questioned the wisdom of acquiring the archipelage and holding it indefinitely was a dependency of this government, none of them would fixe to see us lose it as the result of liability to protect it from an enemy.

to them would have used to see it as the result of inability to protect the from an enemy. Ever since Dewey felt impelled to deliver what practically amounted to an ultimatum to Vice Adm. Von Diedrichs, the commander of the German squadron before Manila, in the spring offices, the commander of the German squadron before Manila, in the spring offices, the neval authorities have had this eventuality in mind.

The relations between Germany and the United States are extremely condink to be sure, but behind this outward evidence of amiability always lurks the auspicion in the minds of Washington officials that the emperor in his heart has martial designs which a defiance of the Monroe dectrine would reveal.

A BRIDGE OF MAHOGANY.

As mahogany is among the most costly woods in the world, it may be inferred that this tropical material is not very extensively employed in the construction of buildings, etc. A bridge constructed of solid mahogany is certainly a rarity, a curlosity. There is one, claimed to be the only one in the world, built of that material. This structure is located in the department of Palenque, state of Chiapas, republic of. Mexico. This district lies in the extreme southwestern part of Mexico, near the boundary line of Guatemala. The mahogany bridge is constructed entirely of that valuable wood, except some iron braces and nalis that are necessary. The bridge spans the Rio Michol and its total length; including approaches, exceed: 156 feet, while the width is 15 feet. It is used by both teams and pedestrians and, though somewhat rude and primitive in construction, it is every substantial. None of the timbers of the flooring were sawed, for in that region there are no sawgills, but were hewn, and split.

In that section of old Mexico there are several every large and the split.

were sawed, for in that region inter-are no sawgulls, but were hewn, and split.

In that section of old Mexico there are several very large rubber planta-tions, and mahogany trees are quite common. In clearing away the trop-ical forests for setting out the young rubber trees the mahogany growths are also cut down and removed. As this wood is quite abundant, some of it was used in building the bridge.— American Inventor.

NEW YEAR'S CALLS.

A New Drink to Replace the Old-Time "Apple-Jack."

A New Orink to Replace the Old-lime "Apple-Jack."

Twenty-five years ago the custom of making New Year's calls was a delightful-one-for all concerned, until some of the boys got more "egg-nog" rapple-jack" than they could successfully carry.

Then the ladies tried to be charitable and the gentlemen tried to be as chivalrous as ever andistand up at the same time.

'f anyone thinks there has not been considerable improvement made in the last quarter of a century in the use of alcoohlic beverages, let him stop to consider, among other things, the fact that the old custom of New Year's calls and the genteel tippling is gently obsolete.

The custom of calling on one's friends, however, at the beginning of the mew year, is a good habit, and another good habit to start at that time is the use of well-made Postum-instead of coffee or spirits.

A Staten Island doctor has a sensible daughter who has act Postum before her guests as a good thing to drink at Yule Tide, and a Rood way to begin the New Year. Her father writes:

"My daughter and I have used resulting the sure it contains wholesome. food material.

So many Cincinantal wives have been deserted by their husbands of late that the, city council has taken steps toward putting a check on such runaways. It has been found that mortgage loan sharks are contributing factors in a great-many cases. A man's ability to mortgage his furniture without the knowledge of his wife is a strong temptation to husbands of weak will. An ordinance has been introduced making such mortgage of no avall unless they bear the signature of both husband and wife.

The Quality of No. 1 Hard Wheat Cannot Be Beaten.

The Quality of No. 1 Ha.d Wheat Cannot Be Beaten.

The Canadian West in the past five or ten years has given a set back to the theory that large cities are the backbone of a country and a nation's best asset. Here we have a country where no city exceeds 100,000, and where only one comes within easy distance of that figure according to the census just taken and where no there city reaches a population exceeding 15,000. The places with a population over 5,000 can be counted upon the fingers of one hand, and yet the prosperity that prevails is something unprecedented in the history of all countries past or present.

The reason for this marvelous prosperity is not hard to seek. The large majority of the $10,000 people who inhabit Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have gone on to the farm, and have betaken themselves to the task of not only feeding and clothing themselves, but of raising food for others less happily circumstanced.

The crop of 1906, although not abnormal, is an eye-opener to many who previously had given little thought, to the subject. Ninety million bushels of wheat at 70 cents per bushel—$268,900,000-17,000,000 bushels of barley at 40 cents per bushels.

A Live Wire

Every nerve is a live wire connecting some part of the body with the brain. They are so numerous that if you penetrate the skin with the point of a needle you will touch a nerve and receive a shock—pain it is called. Aches and pains come from a pressure, strain or injury to a nerve; the more prominent the nerve the greater the pain. When the pain comes from a large nerve it is called Neuralgia whether it be the facial nerves, whether it be the facial nerves, or the heart, stomach, sciatic or other prominent nerve branch. To stop pain, then, you must relieve the strain or pressure upon the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do

POINT TO CONSIDER

REPUBLICANS CANNOT EVADE RE

President Havemeyer of the sugar trust stated to the industrial commission in 1898 that the tariff is the mother of trusts, but now comes the belated opinion of Attorney General Moody that "not the tariff but the helated opinion of Attorney General Moody that "not the tariff but the ráilroad rehate is the mother of trusts." Whichever of these important Republican opinions is the right one is not of Juch consequence, for all impartial investigators are agreed that the tariff and railroad rebates are both closely related to trust plundering and either may well be the mother and the other the father of these predatory corporations. But the chief thing is to remember that the Republican party her been standing pat while the trust fostering was incubating and now the trust infants have grown to the stature of giantic the Republican party is still continuing to prevent legislation that will take from the trusts the monopoly they enjoy through tariff protection.

There is no escape for the Republicansleaders, from President to state legislator, from the fact that since coming into power an 1897 and enacting the Dingley tariff, that the trust since the tariff was so greatly increased in 1897 it has been accompanied that trust-fostering law. Nor can it be denied that since the tariff was so greatly increased in 1897 it has been accompanied by a similar advance in the price of nearly all commodities, until now the cost of living, according to Dun's and Bradstreet's index figures, is close upon 50 per cent. higher than hefore the Dingley law was passed.

As the Republican leaders have taken all the credit for any advantage to business from the trust boom and have even attempted to appropriate the lessing from favorable seasons and resulting good crops, they must in return he held responsible for the enormous increased cost of Hving and they are the seasons and resulting good crops, they must in return he held responsible for the enormous increased cost of Hving and they are the seasons and other farm products and their pr countries that have like products to dispose of.

A revision of the tariff is obviously demanded so that the trusts shall lose their enormous protected and the consumers—farmers and other people alike—will be protected from paying the high prices that the trusts are protected by the tariff in imposing on all the American people.

all the American people.

Extraordinary Voting.

The most extraordinary election returns from Pennsylvania, where the people voted to endorse the Penrose machine and condone the grafting of over $5,000,000 from the money expended in furnishing the new capitol. And most extraordnary of all was this result was largely hrought about by the sympathy and assistance of the president of the United States in virtually endorsing the rule of the ring, on the ground that the defeat of the machine would jeopardize the Republican ontoriol of congress. How the addition of a few machine Republican members of congress will help President Robsevett carry out any measures he may have in contemplation has not been explained and never will be to the satisfaction of genuine reformers.

Ship Subsidy Encouraged.

The election by the people of another Republican congress will encourage the ship-subsidy lobbyists to "persuade" congress at the coming session to pass the ship-subsidy bill which the senate has already passed. Many Republicans helleve, some perhaps honestly, that our shipping instance of the session to pass the subsidized directly, as the trusts are indirectly by the New Orleans Picayune hits the nail to the head when it says:

This country can never hope to possess af ocean-going merchant marine until American capital is free to buy ships wherever they can be sessioned at the most reasonable cost, and operate them under the American fag free from onerous exactions and restrictions."

PRESIDENT AND PANAMA.

A Gilmpse is Needed at Actual Conditions.

A number of newspapers, both of the Democratic and Republican faith, are criticaling President Rooseveit on account of his Panama trip. Many different reasons are given for the criticism, but none seems; of importance enough, unless there are legal obstacles to the president absence from the country and doubtless that has been investigated by the law officers of the government. So why should not President Rooseveit visit Panama? He knows that but little has been so far accomplished towards the work of accomplished towards the work of accomplished towards the work of hullding the canal, although there has been a very large expenditive of money. He is told different tales by different men of conditions there and he wants to see for himself, by going over the ground. It would seem he allowed himself much too whort a time to discover what is the matter at Pan ama, for in three or four days he could only have a glance at the surface and at that with everything put in the besis shape possible, to prepare for his com in the continuous of the conditions at the with the expension of the conditions at the surface and the will have no opportunity to make in quiries and personal investigation. Or he will have no opportunity to make in quiries and personal investigation of the canal; he had all he could a buses, under the surface, and any examination, after only a few days' examination, which the administration folined, for denouncing the conditions we will not of the canal; he had all he could obefore that was added to his other duties and necessarily had to rely upon men has appointed to delive the work. He is hampered by an unwield, ly and apparently worthess commission and has made had appointments and there is a serious question if the present officials are competent, or as effective as could be found.

The fact is the president should ash, congress to relieve him of the responsibility of the construction and place the management of the labor question and have been completed to the two the president has discovered that can thus have the glory of completing this gigantic undertaking.

Woman Suffrage.

The result of the elections in Colerado, Idaho, Utah and Wyoming does not make Democrate warm up to the granting of women suffrage in other states. In Colorado the result show that a large majority of the women who voted indorsed the corrupt methods employed by the Republicans when they counted out Alva Adams, who they control the control of the control of sweed rates, when that issue arises, refuse to sanction it.

Tariff Reform Coming.
The latest Republican converts from the standpat doctrine hefore elected with the standpat standpat doctrine hefore elected in standpat days." They may now he counted as helonging to the Republican outs, but are looking with long ing glances for the chance to he the las, when the political pendulum swings their way. They redently see that tariff reform must come, and think that President Roosevelt has made a great mistake in surrendering to the trusts and protected monopolists. The tariff issue is no doubt those two worthles and the president and all the Republican leaders except the ardent standpatters seem ready to change their tariff cats as policy dictates. There is no doubt that a very large number of the Republican voters favor revising the tariff schedules that shelter and protect the trusts, but their wishes for the present, at least, have been nullified by the allience and adout maneuvering of the president and Speaker Cannon to prevent tariff revision. But tariff reform is on the eve of accomplishment and the fact that standpatters like Heath and Dover are forced to see it, is the best of evidence that the tide is running that way.

GERMS IN MILK

How They May Be Kept Out by Rea-sonable Care.

Feeding hay and dry grain just hefore or at milking time fills the air of the stable with dust. This dust settles into the milk pail carrying bacteria with it, thus increasing the germ content of the milk. Feeding dry corn stover at milking time has the same effect as the feeding of hay and grain, only in a more marked degree, since corn stover usually contains more dust.and bacteria than does hay and grain.

corn stover usually contains more duat and bacteria than does hay and grain.

Wiping the finank and udder of the cow with a damp cloth just hefore milking will help reduce the number of bacteria which fall into the milk pail. The practice of brushing cows at milking time is undesirable. The hair and dust which are thus set free into the atmosphere settle into the milk pail during the process of milking and very materially aid in making it spoil.

Stripping a cow dry, says Farm and Home, tends to reduce the number of hacteria found in the milk at the next milking while leaving a small amount of strippings in the udder increases the number of bacteria the next milking while leaving a small amount of strippings in the udder increases the number of bacteria at the next milking. This is probably due to the fact that the greater manipulation necessary to thoroughly strip the cow removes many hacteria which would otherwise remain in the udder to multiply during the time before the next milking.

thiy during the time before the next milking.

Farmers are often called conservative hut it needs a stronger word to describe the patrons of a cheese factory who vote to discontinue paying for milk on the basis of the butter-fat test. I have in mind a certain-factory where milk had heen paid for according to test for two or three seasons, conclusively proving to some of the patrons that their herds were a losing proposition, and to others that they were securing a good profit. Did the owners of the worthiess cows dispose of them? Not at all. They voted to return to the old order of things and sell their milk by weight. In plain words, because they were in the majority they forced their more enlightened neighbors to give them aims, to have their profits to make up the deficiencies of the worthless cows. Unfortunately for the interests of good stock there are still too many factories that buy milk at so much a hundredweight. Needless to say they are not located in the best dairy sections.

Keeping the Cows Clean.

Cows can he kept clean in the stahles by a little attention to the length of the standing doors and the height of same. If the place on which a cow stands is too long she will become dirty and it will be practically impossible to keep her clean. If the length of the platform is just, great enough so that the droppings will fall heyond it, the cow will be kept clean with ease. Cows differ in length, and this difference may be made up for by adjusting the tying arrangements of the cows to suit can case. It is a great thing to be able to keep the cows clean, through the entire winter, but this can easily he done.

The quality of feed for farm animals is as important as quantity.
Under salting butter, is poor economy. Nothing is so apparent as the lack of sait in dairy products.
Never closely cover milk still warm with animal heat. This will cause it to hold a fetid, cowy odor, and promotes the growth of bacteria that haaten souring.
The average size of the farm dairy herd is three or four cows. These can he made a source of great profit. Roots and sligac ser about equal in value for fattening wether lambs. If any difference it is in favor of the roots.

Larger Herds.

The urgent need of the dairy interests are larger herds, hetter care and feed, utmost cleanliness and application of practical business methods.—

The best way, however, of enterminate, the merits of any dairy cow, says Farm and Home, is to use > pair of scales to ascertain the quantify of the milk and a Bahocok tester to ascertain its quality, or percentage of fat The ancestry of the cow is also well worthy of some attention; for if she comes of good dairy strains of blood, similar qualities are to be expected in her. As to the particular family to which she may belong, it is well to remember that there are good Jerseys to be found in all families.

NEW MILKING MACHINE.

Device That is Winning Favor in New Zealand.

From New Zealand comes the report of a new milking machine that is heing installed in one of the dairies. The new machine does not follow the pulsating method at all, but milks by the pressure of air bags on the teats. The process of milking is a silent one, and the milk is drawn thoroughly, according to witnesses of the operation of the new machine. It is planned to milk 12 cows at a time with this machine and with it little power is required. The owners of the new invention claim for it the following points;

(a) as campared with all suction mechines:

1. The teat is not congested by the unnatural action of vacuum as a milk extractor. Hence the cow liet down'. Treely instead of resisting, and therefore (a) there is no need for hand stripping; (b) the cow is not 'dried off,' and (c) no harm whatever is done if the machine is left on longer than needed.

2. Cleanliness—the milk does not pass through rubber tubing.

(b) As compared with all known attempts at non-suction machines:

1. Absolute softness of fluid pressure as contrasted with pressure of anything solid.

2. Absence of wheels, pistons or other mechanism in region of teat.

3. No harnessing around the cow's body is included in the attachment gear.

Some Reasons Why They Are Main-tained at High Figure.

Some Reasons Why They Are Maintained at High Figure.

Much speculation is indulged in about the fact that with all the supposed great increase in commerce the prices of hutter still hold up. Those who speculate forget two or three things, says Hoard's Dairyman:

(1) That the cow is the source of the hutter supply, not the creamery.

(2) That the more dense the cow population heemes in any section, the less proportion of helfer calves are raised,.

(3) That the increase in milk consumption has been so great that a very large share of the cow of the country have heen diverted from hutter-making to that, business.

(4) That the increase of cows in this country is only about five percent, yearly, so it takes about 20 years to double the cow population.

(5) That the progress of dairy ideas among farmers is teaching them to weed out the unprofitable ows, thus reducing very perceptibly the mift supply for unprofitable butter-making.

(6) That the percentage of increase of population is much greater than the percentage of increase in cows, while the consumption of milk and butter per capita has been steadily on the increase. All these things tend to strengthen the dairy business in all its parts and keep prices to a healthy grade.

CANDIDATE FOR MISSIONARY WORK FULLY TESTED.

level Examination Showed He Wai in Possession of All the Qualities Requisite for Success in Chosen Work.

Successful missionary work in heather countries is done only by missionaries who possess a rare combination of personal traits. In too many cases the examination of the candidate figis to reveal the presence of this combination. But the following story shows how an unusual examination made known that a certain young man was just the sort of missionary needed. It was winter. The examiner sent the candidate word to be at his home at three o'clock in the morning. When the appointed man arrived at the appointed, time, he was shown into the suddy, where he wated for five hours. At length the examiner appeared and asked the candidate how early he had come.

"Three o'clock sharp."

"All right, it's breakfast time now; come in and have some breakfast."

After breakfast they went back to the study.

"Well, sir," said the examiner, "I was appointed to examine you as to your fitness for the mission field. Can you spell, sir?"

The young man thought he could...
"Spelt baker, then."
"Ba ba, keer ker—baker."
"Al right; that will do. Now, do you know anything about figures?"
"Yes, sir, something."
"How much is twice two?"

"Yes, sir, something."
"How much is twice two?"
"Four."
"All right; that's splendid. You'll do first -rate. I'll see the board."
When the board met the examiner reported: "Well, brethren." he said, "I have examined the candidate," and I recommend him for the appointment. He'll make a tip-top missionary—first-class. First, I examined the candidate on his self-denial. I told him to be at my place at three o'clock in the morning. He was there. That means getting up at two o'clock, or earlier, in the dark and cold. He got up, and never fisked me why. Second, I sx-amined him on promptness. I told him to be at my place at three o'clock harp. He was there, not one minute behind time. Third, I examined him on patience. I tel him wait five hours for me when he might just as well have been in bed, and he waited and have been in bed, and he waited and showed no signs of impatience. Fourth, I examined him on the temper. He didn't get excited, me the perfectly pleasant; didn't ask me why I kept him waiting on a cold morning from three to eight o'clock. Fitth, I examined him on humility. I asked him to spell words a fiveyear-old child could spell, and he didn't show any indignation; clidn't ask me why I treated him like a child of a fool. Brethren, the candidate is self-deny-lag, prompt, patient, good tempered, humble. He's just the man for a missionary, and I recommend him for your acceptance."—Kansas City Journal.

Oces Not Approve of "Mission."

Rev. Eigene Vetronfile, an Italian priest, who was the pastor for many years at Eartport. Mass., and who was well known for his missionary labors among the Passanaquedy Indians, and aiso for hig educational work in their isaquage, having compiled a dictionary and a grammar in that tongue, was extremely conservative in all mattetrs relating to his church, and was violently opposed to anything that might change its routine.

A young lady of his congregation once urged him to establish a "mission" in Eastport, in order to rouse some of the lethargic members of the church, whose spiritual condition the good father had been deploring. "No, no!" he replied, with his quaint accent. "I do not approve of missions. Dey make de extitement, but their effects are not lasting." "Oh, yes, they are!" she insisted. Feet Long in the Teiling.

Rimeses II died 4,000 years ago, but spme facts concerning the life are just becoming known. One of these is the story of his marriage, which has just been revealed by Prof. James H. Breasted of the University of Chicago, in his first preliminary report of the expeditions which he has been making among the temples and hieroglyphics along the Nile. He found the account of this in the Sun temple of Abu Sinbel, which is one of the principal buildings erected by King Rameses. To tell the story it required an inscription of 41 lines, each about eight feet long. Prof. Breasted finds it impossible to give the complete translation of this story in his article, but reports the use of a word for "snow" is found here in snowless Egypt for the first time in human history—American Journal of Semitic Language and Licerature.

A New Sleeping Car Story.

Among the railroad visitors in town yesterday was F. A. Miller, general passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. He visited all of the general offices in town and at the Holienden Hotel yesterday told a story of one of the sleeping car porters who was recently found asteep while on duty. This is contrary to the rules of The St. Paul Road, and the negro man was in trouble when found by the inspector on The Pioneer Limited. He had his wits about him, however, and in response to the inspector on The Pioneer Limited. He had his wits about him, however, and in response to the inspector in futury as to what he was doing asleep, he said: "I'll tell you how it was, boss. I have only been with the company a short time and before coming here I was working on such and such a railroad. The line was no rough that I could not get any sleep. Since I have been working for the The St. Paul the road has been so smooth that I just could not keep awake."

Mr. Miller says that while the negro, had violated the rules, he was permitted to keep his job on account of his wit.—Cieveland Leuder.

Wages of Skilled Labor.

Wages of Skilled Labor.

The quarterly bulletin of the state labor department of New York, just published, shows that the rate of wages for skilled labor is the highest ion record in New York. The returns are based on a third of a million hands in factories, stores, hotel and railway service and construction work. They show the average earning as $212 for the first quarter of 1906, or three dollars a day when employed, as against $187 for the same guarter of last year, and $2.85 a day then. Wages have increased and lost time has lessened. The New York World, which summardzes these figures, says the fill-paid trades are included like clothing makers and cigarmakers, as well as the well paid like printers, bullders and railroad men. The high wage trades laveraged $347 a day, with only four days lost time. Additionally a plumbers' union in the city is now striking for $5.25 a day, and there was a general advance in building trades wages that went into effect the first of May, which does not show in this quarterly report. The average throughout the state is not so high as in the city. The which does not show in this quarterly report. The average throughout the state is not so high as in the city. The reverse of the picture is that rents and the price of foods have risen. In almost every growing city of the state rents have increased sharply, while every other necessity of life-is higher than it was five years ago.

A Memory for Faces.

It is fairly well known that King Edward has a remarkably good memory for a face or a voice, for he has given evidence of this on many occasions. An instance which a Marlenbad correspondent gives is as much illustrative of his diplomatic friendliness, perhaps, as of his mental retentiveness. His majesty went into the post office there to dispatch a telegram. Behind the counter was a man who saluted respectfully. "Why," exclaimed the king, looking up suddenly, "it is Payne," and he shook the hand of the gratified official with every sign of condibility. Twelve of fourteen years ago, it appears, the postal official was a page at Sandringham, and King Edward renewed the acquaintance delightedly. "Bring your wife to see mee," said the king, when he learned that his former servant was married, and he chattled at some length before he left the office. The young man introduced his wife accordingly, and received from his majesty a signed photograph.

Sergel Nicolalevitch Mendelson, a Russian journalist and political prisoner, lost both his arms and legs in an accident at Odessa. With rare determination he learned to write by holding the penholder between his teeth. Removing to St. Petersburg he started an advanced radical newspaper. A few months ago the paper was suppressed and the armless and legiess editor imprisoned. His utterly helpless condition left him absolutely at the mercy of the brutal prison wardens. His panishment has now been commuted to close arrest in his own house.

JAP QUESTION NOT FOR PRESIDENT

Chicago Jurist Asserta Legislat Aione Should Act—Attacks Simplified Spelling.

Baltimore, Dec. 6.—Judge Peter Stenger Grosscup, of Chicago, is spending a few days in Baltimore, as the guest of John M. Blankenship, super-intendent of the Merchants' and Minder's Transportation Co. When saked for his opinion of the message of President Roosevelt to congress, Judge Grosscup replied:

"It's like a crazy quilt. It covers almost every possible subject, and many of them are hardly important enough for a president's message. It seems to me," continued the judge, with a laugh, "that the question of providing schooling galleries for school of the providing schooling galleries for school children might safely have been left to the school directors.

"The trouble with the message is that it is out of proportion. Little things are placed side by side with bix ones, and all are treated from a preaching attitude. The president himself has no sense of proportion. "He thinks everything under the sun that interests him is important enough to be put in a message to congress. Understand me, I am not saying anything which conveys the least feeling against him. His great power with the people is held by his intense sincerity."

After reading what President Roosevelt had to say on the Japanese question, Judge Grosscup said:

"That is a question for the legislature. The national government has no right to make a treaty that will interfere with the regulation of schools by a state."

Judge Grosscup's attention was calluder the treaty with the public school privilege therefore should be theirs. He then said:

"So far as the treaty is concerned, it is the claim of the Japanese that under the treaty with agent, and in the treaty or contract there should be theirs. He then said:

"So far as the treaty is concerned, it is the old question of a contract made with an agent. The agents power should be closely understood. In this case the United States their cilizens are entitled to the same treatment as those of the winted States they agent, and in the treaty or contract there should be theirs. He then said:

Zanesville, O., Dec. 7.—A helpleas

Muskingum county.

The decedent is Miss Sarah. Wiley, the invalid daughter of a widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Wiley, who with her

New Corcord, the mother and the two children living there alone.

The farm is sloated to a certain extent the nearest neighbor living almost

Mrs. Wiley and her son drove several at home. She was a helpless paralysic, unable to move about in the rooms. They left her sitting in an invalid's chair, Returning home late Mrs. Wiley and her son were horrified to find the greater portion of the house reduced to ashes. In the debris they found, the charred remains of Sarah Wiley. The interior of the room in which she was left was wholly destroyed, but he position in which the charred body was found indicates that she had been brutally tortured and mallefously burned to death by some unknown person.

The theory is that robbers entered the home after discovering the absence of the mother and son and looted all the rooms in search of valuables. It is intriber believed that they sought by all manners of cruel means to compel the invalid girl to disclose the hiding place of the supposed valuables and money and that upon her refusal or inability to statisfy them the fiends set fire to the bed and other inflammable articles in the room.

The family's coal oil can was found just outside the door, empty, and it is surmised that the contents of this can were used to start the blaze.

The girl's body was found several feet from the invalid chair. It is not known whether the burglars secured any valuables. Mrs. Wiley is uncommunicative on this subject; besides. None of the neighbors learned of the tragedy until John Wiley aroused them from their sleep and told them what had occurred, The community is greatly exicted over the tragedy. There is no clew whatever to the probable robbers. The empty oil can be thus for the respective evidence.

Little Story with a Sequel That is Hard to Guess.

Upon a certain day there was an author-man who needed the money; so he sat down and took up that object which is reputify to be mightier than the sword and wotoe a piece. Having finished his article, he went to the post office, purchased some milling stamps and malled the piece to the editor. Then he waited for the child of his brain to make its way back to his mantel plece, accompanied by a warm note from the editor saying that, owing to a redundancy of similar matter, he was compelled to reject the piece, although this action wrenched his heart strings to such an extent as to almost drag that organ from its moorings. However, this rejection was to be considered as in nowise a condemnation of the merit of the article, etc., etc.

The near-author waited a spell, but the letter that he looked for but dreaded, never came. Now, dear reader, we give you three guesses as to the fate of the manuscript. Nope: all wrons. The piece was accepted. This is it.-Judge.

BIRD TRAVELS WITH GIRAFFE

BIRD TRAVELS WITH GIRAFFE Red Billed Weaver Constant Compan-ion of Animal Skyscraper.

Red Billed Weaver Constant Companion of Animal Skycraper.

The red-billed weaver bird is a constant companion of the giraffe, perching itself upon the withers and flying along when its host takes to flight, and immediately alighting again on its back at the first opportunity. The only means of defense or offense by the giraffe is by means of its boofs, and the blows it can deliver by kicking are of tremendous power. The old males during the breeding season fight in this manner a good deal, and the female. employs—the same means in defending fier young against carnivorous animals.

Giraffes are very swift of foot, and it requires a very fleet horse to run them down. Experienced hunters, however, charge them at full speed, and by this means are often able to run into them, and if, the giraffes are fat they will soon become "blown." When running, the tall is twisted in a conscreew fashion over the back and the hind legs at each step are thrown on the outside of the forelegs, giving a very grotesque straddling appearance. The giraffe is much, but, he has a very keen sense of hearing and of smell.

But Change of Food Gave Final Relief

But Change of Food Gave Final Relief.

Most diseases start in the alimentary canal—stomach and bowels.

A great deal of our stomach and bowel troubles come from eating too much starchy and gressy food.

The stomach does not disgest any of the starchy food we eat—white bread, pastry, potatoes, oats, etc.—these things are digested in the small intestines, and if we eat too much, as most these, and if we eat too much, as most of us do, the organs that should digest this kind of food are overcome by excess of work, so that fermentation, Indigestion; and a long train of alls result.

Too much fat also is hard to digest, by excess of work, so that fermentation, indigestion; and a long train of alls result.

Too much fat also is hard to digest, and this is changed into acids, sour stomach, belching ges, and a bloaty, heavy feeling.

In these conditions a change from indigestible foods to Grape-Nuts will work wonders in not only relieving the distress but in building up a strong digestion, clear brain and steady nerves. A Wazh, woman writes:

"About dve years ago I suffered with bad stomach—dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation—caused, I know now, from eating starchy and greasy food." doctored for two years without any benefit. The doctor told me there was no cure for me, I could not eat anything without suffering severe pain in my back and sides, and I became discouraged.

"A friend recommended Grape-Nuts and I began to use it. In less than two weeks I began to feel better, and inside of two months I was a well woman and have been ever since.

"I can eat anything I wish with jeasure. We eat Grape-Nuts and pleasure. We eat Grape-Nuts and pream for breakfast, and are very fond of it." Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pags. "There's a reason."

Farmers's Pica Had Weight Among Brother Agriculturists.

Brother Agriculturists.

In the early forties, on a certain "town meetin' day" in one of the small farming communities of the Grantie state, there was more than the usual interest and excitement. Some audactous Philistine had secured the insertion in the warrant of an article "To see if the town will appropriate $500 for a new schoolhouse."

The sturdy yeomanry were out in force to fight down this proposition. The sympathetic moderator didn't "moderate" them worth a cent. The so-called "toney" advocates, conscious from the start of their numerical weakness, were conciliatory and persuasive, in the hope of thus winning to their standard sumfeient of the opposition to carry the day. These hopes were dashed, however, when a veteral farmer, the Nestor of the guild, got the floor, and shouted in fogborn tones:

"What do you want of skulehouses, anyway? This eddication talk is rais-in'the old Harry with the boys on the farm! There's that Danny Webster—'s likely a young man's everalised in these 'ere parts! Got this dedication idee into his head—left the farm—never's heard of afterward!" This was a settler. The "toneys" fied the scene, and the "Mest" had it.

In their excitement and alarm the 40,000 fighting men which had crossed the river in advance had been magnified into a great army, and quickly he orders were given that the city gates be closed tight and a double guard be placed upon the wall. All the fighting men of the city were speedily summoned and slept upon their arms that night, expecting that an assault might be made upon the walls under cover of darkness.

But no, it could not be, for that evening as the sun had set and Rahab had gone to the window to see that the scalest cord, the pledge of her deliverance, was still in its place at the side of the ceasement, she had looked out across the plain and had seen the farnelites peacefully encamped.

"But they will come to-morrow," she thought, and as the tumult without larcased, she turned to preasure her relatives gathered about her, when a loud pounding upon her outer door was heard. Chidren in Big Cities.

The family living outside of the larger cities can thank its stars for one thing, and that is that its children are not made a reproach to it. In New York, asys the Montreal Herald, there are plenty of apartment houses where they will not permit families with children to rent an apartment at any price; and there are others where children, while not excluded, are made yery unwelcome. But in the wide country, children cannot be in the way. The farm house is joyfully made the bigger for their accommodation, and the long days of winter are the cheerier for their presence. Their mothers are not so westfed by rushing from "bridge parties," to theaters, and from receptions to balls, that their "nerves" cannot endure the pratie of the little folks; rather do they take the keenest pleasure in their merry company. The farm house would be very empty without them; the city fait is crowded by their incrusion. Then, too, the child is always a financial burden to the city man, unless he imprisons it in a factory or a store, but, to the farmer, it is generally an asset as soon as it grows old enough to take its share in the healthful labors of the farm.

A World-Wide Conquest.

Not only the English language, but our alphabet, seems to be destined to become the prevailing one of the world. In all likelihood the Japanese will soon legally establish our alphabet for the ampire. The government has had in mind for some time the substitution of the Latin alphabet for the clumsy and uncertain Chinese characters which have been in use since time immemorial, but without waiting for government sanction, leading men in the empire have been since time immemorial, but without waiting for government sanction, leading men in the empire have been pushing forward a movement for this substitution which is taking a deep hold upon the people. The Latin siphabet which we and most of the European nations use is in reality an Irish alphabet, says the National Tribune. It is based upon the writing of the Irish monks in the early centuries, and which was so clear and beautiful that it rapidly gained popularity over the crabbed and laborious characters used by the monks in other countries in the transcription of manuscripts. It will be greatly to, the advantage of the world to adopt this Irish-Latin alphabet and make it universal, and at the same time giving every letter a certain and unchangeable value.

Worthy Russians in Want.

The future historian of the Russian revolution will find the advertising columns of the St. Petersburg or Moscow newspapers in 1966 a rich source of information as to actual social conditions. Thus the daughter of a nobleman advertises that: "Robbers have killed my parents and stolen everything. I am an honest grir; will not some rich family adopt me or let me do honsehold work or nursing?" Many "want" advertisements begin: "I come from the starving province." The appeals for immediate aid are incessent: "I have expended my last penny for this advertisement," begins one announcement, which makes one wish that there were a St. Petersburg Charlity Organization society to respond. That many others of a similar character come from respectable women genuinely in need of immediate aid is vouched for by a German observer. The terrible crisis of the last year of two has avidently. vouched for by a German observer The terrible crisis of the last year of two has evidently reduced man; worthy men and women to absolute want and despair.

In connection with the death of Archduke Otto, second nephew of the emperor Francis Joseph, it is interesting to take note of the curious chain of succession to the throne of Austria. When Archduke Franz Ferdinand, who was heir to the throne of the contracted a morganatic marriage with the Countess Chotch, and so lost the right of transmitting the syccession, Archduke Otto became helt-presumptive. It was soon ovident, however, that if ever he came into the tive. It was soon evident, he that if ever he came into ever, that if ever he came into the order of succession he would be forced to renounce it in 'avor of his son, Archduke Karl, now 19. Thus it comes about, says the London Globe, that while the present emperor was the nephew of the Emperor Ferdinand, he will in all probability be succeeded by Archduke Franz Ferdinand, his nephew, and he in turn by his nephew Franz.

DISCARDS THE SPELLING HOBBY.

ROOSEVELT YIELDS TO

For the Orthography of the Good Old Days-Passed Without a Dis-senting Vote.

Days—Passed Without a Dissenting Vote.

Washington, Dec. 14.—President Roosevelt will withdraw his simplified spelling order to the public printer, and hereafter all documents from the executive departments will again be printed in the old-fashioned style. Representative Landis, of the joint committee on spelling, had a conference with the president, when the latter said that he did not wish to have spelling overshadow matters of great importance, and expressed a willingness to revoke the order for the new spelling overshadow matters of great importance, and expressed a willingness to revoke the order for the new spelling in case the house of representatives should go on record as opposed to the style. Accordingly, Mr. Landis introduced the following resolution to the house:

Resolved, That It is the sense of the house of representatives that hereafter in presenting reports, documents or other publication a further dead of the control of the case of the house of representatives, and independent officers of the government, the government rulning office should observe and adhere to the standard of orthography prescribed in generally accepted dictionaries of the English language."

Not a Dissenting Vote.

The measure was passed without a dissenting vote, although Mr. Gillett, of Massachusetts, who made a fight for simplified spelling before the house committee on appropriations, and has been regarded as the champion of the president's artitude, explained that he did not wish to give the impression that he had changed his mind. Mr. Gillett and he saw thist, the house was overwhelmighty against the innovation and consequently he bowed to its will.

The system of reform spelling was put his offerct by the president during overwheimingly seamet—the indoor thom and consequently he bowed to its will.

The system of reform spelling was put into effect by the president during the recess, of congress and all public documen's supplied to the executive departments have been printed in the simplified way. These documents have been pouring in on congress ever since the opening day, much to the dissatisfaction of a large majority of the members of the house. As a result the government printing office was using two forms of spelling in public printing, the staid old method for congress and the reform method in the executive documents. This caused a confusion and comment unfavorable to the reform, and finally was made an issue between the legislative and executive departments, the judicial department having previously frowned upon the president's order.

The Progress of the Farmer.

Among the strongest proofs of the progress of the world is in the elevation of the status of the producture and horticulture a dignity that accords with their importance. In the medieval ages this was denied to them, and laborers in the field were serfs. The gentleman was one who did not work. Under the influence of democratic government, civilization has progressed and the class that was once treated as inferior has achieved the status it deserves in social consideration. In times not very far in the past the man who performed manual labor for a livelihood was assigned to a low social grade. It is different in democratic America where there are no peasants, but where all are citizens and equals in the recognition and under the protection of the laws.

Popham's land across Gumpowder near Pleasant Hill, sold last Wednesday, to the Rising Sun huyer for the American Tobacco Company for $12 50 per one hundred pounds all round. He delivered it at Rising Sun hast Monday. The price Mr. Mullins got for his tobacco is equal to $14 or $15 per hundred several months hence, as the weight he got thus early in the season is very much in excess of what it would have been after the tobacco passed through the series of freezes this winter. When he marked his crop at $12 several thought he had placed his figures considerably beyond what he would be able to get, but the result shows that he had a good idea of the quality of goods he had on hand. The Progress of the Farmer.

Among the strongest proofs of the progress of the world is in the elevation of the status of the producers from the soil, in giving sgriculture and horticulture a dignity that accords with their importance. In the medieval ages this was denied to them, and laborers in the field were serfs. The gentleman was one who did not work. Under the influence of democratic government, civilization has progressed and the class that was once treated as inferior has achieved the status it deserves in social consideration. In times not very far in the past the man who performed manual labor for a livelihood was assigned to a low social grade. It is different in democratic America where there are no peasants, but where all are citizens and equals in the recognition and under the protection of the laws.

By SUSAN HUBBARD MARTIN

There were three girls of them, all merry, light-hearted and thoughtless, but this evening a new seriousness to was upon them. For one thing, mother had gone to bed with a sharp nen ralgic attack that semehow was becoming, of late, a too frequent occur rence. Another was that father had fust given them their Christmas allowance, for it was the 18th of November, and they had already begun to plan for the great day.

"Girls," he had said, as he handed each one a crips $10 bill, "this year you must really make this do. Don't spend it and expect more, for it will not be forthcoming. Times are hard, money not easy to get and necessary expenses must be met, so remember that while we all love Christmas, as indeed we ought, yet we are not expected to give more than we are able. "Peace on earth, good will to men, means more than a mad rush at bargain counters, when one endeavors to make $10 do the work of $25. We all try to do too much, and under the strain the sweet old merry Christmas of long ago has lost its charm."

He had put on his overcoat and gone out, and Mag, Joyce and Fan sat and looked at one another.

"I've simply got to give Bess a more expensive present than I did last year," said Mag, gloomily, gazing at the fire. "Just imagine my humillation Christmas day when she sent me that beautiful watch fob, and all I had given her was a little picture in a plain oak frame. I blush now at the thought of it."

"Don't say a word," broke in Fan, tragically. "I suffer mortification of the supil's a hundred dimes when of that beautiful watch fob, and all I had given her was a little picture in a plain oak frame. I blush now at the thought of it."

"Don't say a word," broke in Fan, tragically. "I suffer mortification of the spirit a hundred times when I think of the little I can give. Ten dollars and 27 friends and relations to make presents to."

"Joyce looked up. Joyce was the youngest, and she wore a brown school dress. Her chestnut curis were tied with scarler fibbons. "I say," she began quickly, "that's time the Christmas reformation began in this family. Three girls, Fan 17, Mag 16 and 144%. Not one of us able to earn a penny, and all straining every nerve to make it harder for father and do something we can't afford. I'm like dad. Christmas don't mean a madrush at bargain counters to buy things for people who, half the time don't care for 'em when they get 'em. Useless and impossible articles, too, most of 'em are, but we poor misguided mortals will take 'em list because they're marked down from $1.15$ to 45 cents. The facts in our case are these father's poor, he works hard, and mother isn't well. I say it's time to stop. She swent the wrapper off the chair and took up the little worn silippers, then she went down into the sittlingroom. Mag and Fan were still there, "Girls," cried Joyce, dramatically, holding up the old wrapper, "do you think we girls ought to make Christmas presents when our mother has to wear clothes like this." See how she's patched the sleeves, and the collar, too, and fust, look at these silippers!" The girls did look, and as Joyce held them up, the poor shaby little slippers, a stillness fell npon them. Each girl remembered the patient gure in the worn silippers that went about a ceaseless round of duties day by day, with no thought of relaxation of endoyment. The work must be done, father's meals must be on time, the girls must have their company and their holidays. There was little time or money left for her when three young girls were properly fed and clothed. And as Mag. Fan and Joyce looked at the patched, threadbare wrapper, it told a tate more elequenthan any words, representing to these three hithert thoughtless. Mag forpag up. "Yes, i will, Joyce," she cried, "and I will give $5 too. I never realized that mother was wearing quite as poor clothes as these."

There is something cycitic in the beauty of this whole story. It reads in St. Matthew's gospel like a foreign levend. If you spend the winter in the tropics, don't forget to look the cow tree up. "said a globe trotter.

"The cow tree?"

"Yes; the palo de vaca, or cow tree. It gives milk."

"The very best. Listen to what Humboldt, in his work on South America, says about it.

And the globe trotter took down a book-sad read:

"Among the many curious phenomena that I beheld during my journey, there was hardly any that struck my imagination so forcibly as the cow tree. It grows on the rocky side of a mountain, securely insinuating its roots in the stone. For many months not a shower of rain falls on its dry leaves; the branches seem dry and dead; but pierce the trunk, and a sweet and nourishing milk flows. At sunrise this vegetable source is most abundant; then the blacks and native people hurry from all parts provided, with jugs to catch the milk, which turns thick and yellow on the surface."

The globe trotter, replacing the volume, went on:

"I've tasted the cow tree's milk and found it good. This milk has been analyzed.—It contains, besides the fat proper milk, sugar caseln and phosphates. So rich is it that ordnary milk is as nothing beside it. In fact, it is as rich as cream.

"The Canary Islands, Memerara, Ceylon and such like places all have cow treos."

SERMONETTE.

"Make confession unto God."
This Achan had to do. This every soul must needs do.
Sut cooffession at the judgment bar of God and confession at the mercy past of God are as different as life is from death.

at the mercy spat of God are as different as iffe is from death.

The confession which is wrung from the unrepentant heart brings with it no claim for mercy, but the repentant feart as it pours out its confession of guilt may claim the promise: "If we confess our sine God is faithful and just to forgive us our sine and eleanse us from all unrighteousness."

It is a solemn thought that all things are to be revealed before God. (Luke 12:2-5). "We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God. So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God."

Let us fix this thought in mind, then, O soul: That confession of the hidden things of thy heart and life must be made to God. It may be delayed, but it cannot be evaded. It must come.

But whan? The time, the place, see within the choosing of every marcy seat where Christ that crucified one stands to blot out the transgression and save from sin.

"Choose you this day." Will you unfold your heart and life to God and receive his mercy and grace, or will you with rebellious heart shut him out and turn a deaf eart to his cry as he pleads: "Turn ye, turn ye, for why will ye die?"

For such there waiteth the day of wrath and vengeance from God. The day of grace sinned away, the soul must at last appear before God, there to make confession to the sins of the life and the heart. It will no longer be a matter of choice, but of absolute necessity, for the searching eye of God will discover every hidden thing.

But oh, how vastly different will that scene be from that which it might have been the privilege of the foul to enjoy. No longer does the voice of God sound forth from his seat of mercy. The day of mercy has passed. The day of judgment has come, and the gullty soul can find no refuge in which the scene of God sound forth from his seat of mercy. The day of mercy has passed. The day of judgment has come, and the gullty soul can find no refuge in which the voice of God sounds from the unrepentant heart, and the voice of God sounds from the judgment seat saying: "Depart from mis, ye that work iniquity."

THE STORY.

ACHAN looked about him. No other traesit to get into the midst of Jericho he had left his commades quite in the rear, and as he went about applying the torch that the city might be burned as the Lord had commanded, curiosity led him to enter, a wing of what was evidently the kibs's palace, and there before his eyes were gold and silver and rich garments scattered about in reckless profusion.

scattered about in reckless profusion.

"They had gathered their treasure, and then had to leave it behind in heir effort to escape," muttered Achan as he stooped and dug his ingers into the silvery pile at his feet, and then let the coins sift through them with a merry lingle.

"Beneath the coins thus displaced he caught the gleam of gold, and pushing the silver aside, eagerly, there soon lay revealed before him a great bar of rich yellow gold. He took it nis hands. It was more wealth than he had ever held in his hands before, and the wish half formed came into his heart that it belonged to him. Suddenly a voice seemed to speak right at his slow, saying:
"And ye, in any wise, keep your-seves from the accursed thing, lest ye wake yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel a curse, and trool but it was a standard to the course of the securse of the property of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel a curse, and trool but it was a standard to be a curse, and the belong the standard to the accurse of the property of the course of the property of the course of the accurse of the property of the course of the property of the course of the course of the property of the course of the property of the course of the accurse of the property of the course of the property of the course of the property of the course of the property of the property and again the words of Joshus econed in his ears:

With a start Achan looked about him, letting the wedge of gold fall upon a pile of silver with a clatter, but he gaw no one, and partly reassured, be turned his eyes again upon the glittering gold at his feet.

"Keep yourselves from the accursed thing lest ye make yourfelves accursed."

Impatient with himself over his reproving conscience, Achan stooped and began gathering the silver and gold in piles, saying as he did so:
"No one else, I dare say, will bring so much treasure into the tabernacle to-day as I. Why, there is almost more here than I can carry."

In his search for something suitable in which to piace the gold and silver his eyes fell upon an exquisite garment.

in his search for something suitable in which to piace the gold and silver his eyes fell upon an exquisite garment.

"That must have belonged to the king himself," he exclaimed, feeling its soft texture and noting the delicate work covered the entire garment. As he continued gathering the treasure together, his thought was upon that wedge of gold and that fine garment, and somehow, these two did not get into the bundle which he was preparing to deliver to the priests. The temptation had come, and instead of turning from it resolutely, because the state of turning from it resolutely, we and heart fix themselves upon these treasures. And ere he had finished gathering the gold and silver for the treasury of the Lord, he had persuaded himself that that wedge of gold and that garment really belonged to him for his loyalty for turning in such a goodly sum. It never would be known, and as he placed the gold and the garment within the folds of his own clothing his avarice grew and he placed some of the silver there, also. Then, shouldering his burden, he made his way back to camp and presented himself before the door of the tabernacle, where the priest suspected him, for he asked whether this were all. How that gold and silver and garment hidden within his clothing sensed to weigh him down. Feverishly he duy deep in the ground underseath his tent and placed the treasure there, and went about his suual tasks of the camp.

The next day all was excitement in the camp, for Joshua had called for volunteers to go up against the city of Al.

Achan heard the words, and there cchoed in his heart the words of Joshua:

"Lest ye make the camp of Israel a curse, and trouble it."

"Oh, bother," he exclaimed under his breath, "what difference can the little gold and silver! have in my tent make with these my brethren in their fight upon A1?"

And silently and half silently, for his heart was greatly troubled over this thing which he had done, he watched the little company of 3,000 picked men depart in full confidence for Al. He wanted to shout after the men not to go, but the thought of the gold within his tent and the desire to keep the asane held his tongue. No, he would not tell. None should ever know.

In his troubled condition Achan wandered off from the carup, and it was late in the evening when he returned. He found the camp in disorder, and the people weeping, and he learned that deefat had been met at Al, and 36 of his brethren had been slain. "Was he responsible?" he asked himself, and then as quickly he tried to defend himself and persuade his troubled conscience that he had done nothing wrong. "And none shall know of the gold." hel-added.

He was roused from his troubled thoughts by the crier passing through the catup asying:

"This is the word of Joshus, calling upon the people jo sanctify themselves against the morrow, for thus saith, the Lord Good of Israel: There is an accursed thing from and hefore thine nemies until ye take away." Achan Ilsiened with blanching cheek, and a great fear selezed his heart. Every eye seemed to be turned upon him as he passed through the camp and sought the section of his cent. VISION SHOWED SON DEAD.

Italian Mother's Dream Followed by Discovery of Body.

A strange case of tolepathy in connection with a murder is arousing much interest in Milan, Italy. A woman named Lazzaroni awoke suddenly at three o'clock the other morning, and calling her son John, who lives in her house, told bim that his younger brother, Leopold, living in the outskirts of the town, was dead. The mother was deeply affected, but John tred to comfort her by ascribing her fears to a bad dream. At dawn, however, Leopold Lazzaroni, a handsome and strong young man, the owner of a dairy, was found dead at a spot some distance from his dwelling. After having made an examination of the body, the doctors affirmed that Leopold had been murdered actually at three o'clock in the morning.

The next day the sulprits were arrested.

The facts of the mother's vision, which have been duly authenticated, are the subject of endless discussion.

Now yhen all outdoor farm work has ceased in the north, the term "sunny south" and all that it means, appeals with full force to the northern farmer as he realizes that with him it is a case of remaining indoors for the next several months consuming everything that has been produced during the growing season. In the "sunny south" something can be raised every month in the year, and practically every day can be spent out doors. No bilizzards. No sunatroites. Cattle-raising its very profitable. Large profits are made with little labor in growing fruits, vegetables, etc., for northern markets. Strawberries and cantaloups are great revenue getters. Water unsurpassed. GALLATIN COUNTY IN LINE.

90 Per Cent of The Crop Pledged to The Society of Equity.
The tobacce growers of Gallatin County met here last Saturday to take up the signatures of those who intend to poof their tobacce for a fifteen cent price, and there was a large attendance. Our, of an estimated acreage of two thousand acreatised in Gallatin county last year, it is grated as been probed with the Society of Equity, and that means 50 per cent of the local crop. If all other places will be as faithful and carnest as Gallatin county the movement is sure to be a success—there is nothing that can prevent it. The matter six with the growers them selves and if everyone would stand firm for fifteen cents they would get it. Saturday night M. C. Kankin, of Themps of the court house and encouraged them with a good old fashioned talk that evoked much applause.—Warsaw Independent.

HURLED STRAIGHT IN THE TEETH OF THE OHIO SENATOR.

LETTER ON NEGRO TROOPS AFFRAY, ned At Foraker, Who Fires Bac Resolution To Probe His Action in Face of Evidence.

Washington, Dec. 20.—What promises to develop into a memorable contest to develop into a memorable contest between Senator Foraker, of Ohio and a group of his republican colleagues, on the one hand, and the national administration and its friends in the senais, on the other, began in that body. It was precipitated by the thansmittal by the president and Secretary of War Taft of reports hearing upon the melee at Brownsville, Tex., last August, which resulted in the dismissal of a battallion of colored troops belonging to the 25th United States infantry. The issue involved is whether the president was justified in discharging nearly 200 men without hoor from the army. He insists that his action was perfectly proper. In view of all circumstances, Senator Foraker, on the contrary, Berlously doubts it, and has asked for a senatorial investigation. He expects to demonstrate that the evidence appon which the president acted was wholly insufficient to convict the battallion of the complicity in the "shooting up" of the Texas town.

The senator is proceeding as a train-

ident acted was wholly insufficient identification of the complicity in the "shooting up" of the Texas town.

The senator is proceeding as a trained lawyer does who has a client to acquit. For his part the president, like a proceeding the president of the process and very likely just as much feeling and bitterness will determined to prevent his case crumbling to pieces, and very likely just as much feeling and bitterness will develop as is usually manifested between rival counsel. However, in this particular instance a much bigger game is being played and a greater stake is involved.

Accompanying the information which was requested of him the president sent a letter, which for virility of inarguinge and expression excited much wonder among senators. There is no doubt that when he was dictating the continuous and in many passages he structude is uncompromising and strenuous, and in many passages he structude is uncompromising and strenuous, and in many passages he structude is uncompromising and strenuous, and in many passages he structude is uncompromising and strenuous, and in many passages he structude is uncompromising and strenuous fraight at Senator Forsker. He knew that the senator intended to demand a full investigation and it is clearly apparent that he was preparing to accept the gauge of battle. His allusion to Mal. Blocksom, one of the officers who conducted the inquiry for the war department, is clearly a thrust at Mr. Foraker, but the senator doubless will have something to say in reply. In fact, he is prepared to make an equality vigorous response to every assertion made by the president. After the reading of the reports which he is a member, he instructed to take additional testimony on the subject of the shooting at Brownsville, and immediately, friends of the president. Interposed chiections. The resolution to investigate was finally laid on the table at Mr. Foraker's own suggestion and will be taken up later.

London, Dee, 21.—Both the friends and foes of Joseph Chamberlain, the former colonial secretary, were shocked to learn that the mind of the McKinley of Sngiand has become a blank. It was known that he was bedridden with gout and other aliments, and it was said that he would never again enter the political arena. But that the great advocate of protection had lost his memory is an astounding revolation.

Battle Royal On Negro Question.

Washington, Dec. 21.—Senator Joseph B. Foraker delivered one of the most powerful and dramtic philippies ever heard in-the United States senate. The senator's subject was the recent wholesale discharge of colored troops without trail for alleged participation in riots at Brownsville, Tex. For two hours Mr. Foraker discussed the affair. The conclusion he drew at every turn of his argument was that President Roosevelt-far exceeded his legal and constitutional rights in what he did, and that the colored battallom was far more sinned against than sinning. The speech was well received, and at its conclusion the senator was warmly congratulated.

Of these measures there will be but few bills that will be brought to a vote, and the Smoot case, the Santo Domingo treaty and the reduction of Philippine tariff will be ample to ecupy all the time the senate can spare from the consideration and passage of the necessary appropriation bills.

In the house, legislation dependa upon the will of the speaker, and any bill he approves can be put through in abort order, and such as he is opposed to is hardly likely to be considered. His opposition to the ship subsudy hill at the last seasion prevented its report from the committee, and unless Speaker Cannon has changed his mind, a faverable report and a special rule for its consideration will be impossible in spite of the efforts of the steamship trust and other predatory interests to have the hill brought to a vote. It is quite possible that there will be enough Republican votes, added to the Democrats, to defeat the bill I hany case, on similar lines to the division of the committee, which is exactly evenly divided.

Another matter that looms up for the consideration of congress is the currency bill proposed by the Wall street and other bankers. It is a subject which the majority of congress will be very loth to deal with, so it is quite probable no such law will be passed at this session. Such great measures as an income tax, or an intertument of the condication of congress is the necessary of the serious consideration and therefore will not be seriously attempted.

The fact that many reform measures are being discussed by Republican under the mass of the people. The old Republican votes towards more liberated and the proposed of the election in several states, showing a general trend towards Democracy, may have a useful effect in influence, are being discussed by Republican can be reform that will prevent the trust and corporations from plundering the people will will willingly receive their sanction.

THE COST OF LIVING

arity Organization society of finds so many people in that out adequate incomes, al-oustantly employed, that a e of 11 made up of such men r Folks, former tenement liew York Inds so many people in that city without adequate Incomes, although constantly employed, that a committee of 11 made up of such men as Homer Folks, former tenement house commissioner, and Prof. Frank-in H. Giddings, of Columbia college, have been selected to investigate. It is intended to find out just what it costs a family of five persons to live on in comfort in these times of high trust prices. That having heen ascertained, the society proposes to enter upon the important task of persuading employers to pay at least a corresponding minimum wage scale. It will be well for the investigators to also discover the cause of why this army of clerks and employees on small salaries and all the great lower middle class of the republic cannot make both ends meet, although practicing the greatest economy. What has caused this great advance in prices? Where is the boasted prosperity produced by the Republican party, when one of the greatest charity organizations of the country finds it necessary to ald a large class of the committee will discover the cost of living has not only been advanced nearly 50 per cent, but is still florysaving. Nor are the people of the cities the only sufferers for all consumers feel the same pinch of these increases of prices. The wages of organized labor have been increased though only in the very well organized trades has the advance been equal to the large and the crease of wages of all labor being only about 20 per cent, while the increase must he 50 per cent. to bring them out, even.

When this committee has discovered how much it costs an average family to live, before attempting the task-of inducing employers to pay higher wages It should hring its powerful influence to work on the Republican standpat senators and representatives to revise the tariff that has fostered and protects the trusts in advancing the price of their products so that while there is prosperity for the corporations, there is destitution for many.

DEMOCRATIC GAINS.

Indicate General Trend Against the

The election news, since the full returns have been reported, shows great Democratic gains. The election of all the state officers in New York, other than governor, by small Democratic majorities in spite of all the weight and influence of the administration, indicates that the great heart of the Empire state still best per interest of the interest of the state is likely to be in the Democratic column.

But the most wonderful change from abited surrender to the trust and corporation to the retwing influences of government is in New Jersey. A tabulation of the votes by countles shows a Democratic majority of 11-280 in the state. The Republican pixers of the state of the state is the year was 51,978 and Rocaevelt was offected by 80,000, and there was $1,000 majority for the Republican governor. This is the first Democratic majority in the state of the ring of corruptionists and gratiers that have infested and gratiers that have infested and gratiers that have infested and states of the ring of corruptionists and gratiers that have infested and only in the process of Kansas was only defeated by 2,000 votes, a gain of 65,000 over the vote of 1904. The Democratic gain of over 50 members of congress shows the general trend of the country to swing toward Democratic outpiles and when the stand-pat doctrine of the Republican congress further indicates that real tariff reform is impossible as long as that jowity controls the legislative branch of the reverse of the stand-pat doctrine of the Republican congress further indicates that real tariff reform is impossible as long as that jowity controls the legislative branch of the country to swing toward Democratic of the several states that will see that Democrate voters go to the polis and their votes are honestly counted.

Democratic voters go to the polls and their votes are honestly counted.

Republicans and Labor Legislation.

Now the excitement of the election is over and Republicals politicians can for the time open their banks of the protected trust magnates, we are beginning to learn some truths about labor legislation. Congressman Little-field told a convention of manufacturers and employers at New York that if Mr. Gompers' labor hills, which the congressman as strongly opposes, could be reported from committee they would pass the house "today" by "an overwhelming vote.

But perhaps Congressman Littlefield is trying to magnify his own importance as an opposent of the demands of organised laborator of the Republican party so seared that it is at last ready to concede everything and anything to appears the wrath of the work igneral.

SERMONETTE.

Aside from the questlom of religious principles which is involved in this incident in the life of the young man Daniel there are others of a moral character, which emphasize important leasons for young manhood of today. First of all there is the lesson of loyalty to God in whatever place and whatever circumstances one finds himself. When at Rome to do as the Romans do may be the most politic and the most popular and pleasant, but it brings no such reward as comes to the brave soul who when away from home and amidst conditions of moral chaos, stands firm for clean living and pure thinking. Then we find here the lesson of self-control; the mastery, of the animal appetites and developed, Plain living makes for clean thinking. Where the stomach holds the scopter, mind and heart can be developed. Plain living makes for clean thinking. Where the stomach holds the scopter, mind and heart are but vassals, never rising above the plane of the mere sensual- and temperal. Self-control is "marked by three elements. First that of good from bad, wholesome from the unwholesome." Where there is lack of moral sense, failure to draw a sharp line between those things which lift up and those which lower and degrade, there can be little of self-control is the scond stage of self-control, who never those things which lift up and those which lower and self-control is the second stage of self-control, who never which beings them to the place of willing to do the right. There were many Jewish youths other than Daniel and his three friends at the king's palace who knew the right course. Multitudes of young men know right from wrong who never reach the second stage of self-control, who never each the second stage of self-control is the second stage of self-control who howe when the side of righteou

If he ate not he would incur' the displessure of the prince under whom the Hebrew captives had been placed and perhaps endanger his life with the king. And then, what was he to eat if he did not eat that which: the king had so bountifully and so generously provided?

And the change had been a welcome one, for these Hebrew princes had been accounted to the comforts and luxuries of the royal court at Jerusalem, and when it was told them that they were to be educated in all the learning of the Chaldeans, they all folt, especially Danlet, more reconciled to their lot. So it was that when the evening meal was served all were in quite a cheerful mood, and fell to eagerly partaking of the rich bounties apread before them.

All but Danlet. The food before him remained untouched, and as we have already and this conscience troubled him, for it was an abomination for a Hebrew to partake of food which had been formed to the heaten Gods, and was not food from the king's table rendered sacred by reason of having a portion offered to their gods?

This fact had been emphasized and impressed upon his mind during the formal ceremony that afternoon when they had been received into the palace, for each had been given a new name in token of their dedication to the service of the king in the names of the Babylonian gods. To him had been given of the god Bel, and now they were expected to partake of meats and drink offered to idols.

"But what else could be do?" he asked himself again. "Why should he, a Hebrew slare in a heathen cour, draw such fine distinctions? Did not circumstances absolve him from his obligations to the God of the Hebrew's. And thea too, how templing did the viands took before him. He til impatient with himself for letting such thoughts trouble him from his obligations to the God of the Hebrew's. And thea too, how templing did the viands took before him. "But why may not plain food which has not been offered to the gods be given thy servant to sat?"

"Plain food." exclaimed Ashpenaz. In airm. "Phain food Dost thou not know that thou art to be prepared to go before the king? and why should he see thy face worse looking than these thy brethren? Then shall yo make me endanger my head to the king. I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink."

With these words Ashpenaz dismissed Daniel and he returned to his place but the food before him remained method. That night three of his friends came to him and inquired of him why it was that he had not eaten and what it was that. Ashpenar had said to him, for they had observed what had transpired.

"I am resolved," replied Daniel, simply, "that I will not defile myself with the king's meat."

"Then what will you eat," demanded Mishael. "We are in Babylon now, not Jerusalem, and we cannot starve."

"But the God of the Hobrews still lives. I will serve him," Daniel responded, firmly.

"Is it antique?"
Susanse trailed her fingers tidly over the piane Keys in a little impromptu preduce of troublone chords before she asserted the quiral, she said, crossly. "I'm sure I can't tell whether it's real antique or not. It tooks old and dusty and is all covered with heavy carving, if you mean that sort of thing. Why, less," she turned to the questioner with sudden energy, "I wouldn't have thought a thing about it if he had shown it to me or even mentioned it. He told me about everything else in the house, and I'd never have known a thing about this if I hadn't told Nora to clean out that 'catch all," as she allied, as the turned to the garret stairs. There is a large windowless space over the diningroom wing, and it was in there."
"And locked," concluded Bess, positively.
"Every drawer: I asked Nora how paused.

"Of course not," assented Bess
"warmly, "or suspicious."
"Only interested."
Bess nodded her head wisely over the interested sigh.
"It is kind of mysterious, Bob's not telling you a word about it, and hiding it in there out of sight, and then the fact of it being locked shows that someone didn't want it opened."

As she gave her conclusive point of logic Bess arose. She was pretty and petitie, with a decisive tilt to her chin, and the confidence of 18 in her blue eyes.
"Of course, you'll do as you please,
Sne. You always did. But if I had only been married a month and had found a locked desk in my house that I knew nothing of, I know what I'd do."

Young Mrs. Sheldon left the plano with an impatient movement. She was tail and siender beside her sister, and the indefinable charm of a bride was visible in her dainty negligee toliette of white crepon.
"I believe absolutely in Bob," she

The elieve absolutely in Bob," she declared.

Hess raised her eyebrows and smiled mischlevously.

"Of course you dα it may be only some old love letters or souvenirs that he doesn't care to part with. Do you remember Adelaide Gifford!"

"That was two years ago."

Bess isaughed.

"Good by, sis. Believe in Bob all you want to. He is a dear, and if it were i, I'd hunt a locksmith, all the same. Mrs. Sheldon attood at the window and watched the small girlish figure as it vanished down the streek among the flustering snowflakes. It was dusk. The room was unlighted as yet, and a audden seense of loneliness atcle overher in the semi-gloom, the first she, had experienced since the loyous wedding, of a month ago. If the affaity of moods and colors were true, she was in harmony with the soft velvet gray of the twilight tone that was stealing over the world.

New Year's eve, and Bob away. The tears blinded her eyes. Of course, it was business; merely a flying trip to Now York for the firm, made all the more imperative by his neglect of business during the honeymoon, but she let a vague rebellion in her heart against even the separation of a few days.

against even the separation of a few days.

And there was the locked desk.

Bess' words and arguments ran swittly through her mind. Come-to think, Bob had told her not to tire herself by rammaring white he was away. Rummaring: That meant hunting in the garret and running the risk of discovering the desk.

And Bess had spoken of Adelaide Gifford. There had been talk of a summer engagement, she remembered

Mrs. Bluebeard. Bob and been jesious of the copperate millions, and had married her in a fit of prime. She turned from the window with

It was dark on the garret stairs.

Ble stopped at the door of Bob's dressing-room and took a candlestick from the mandel. It was a wedding sitt—a formation of the mandel. It was a wedding sitt—a stain of the mandel in the sain of the wedding stand spiral, sinuous tall.

As and eled it to the gas jet to light the fold it to the gas jet to light the sain of the picked it up. It was a small, old-fainhoused ordinary brans key. She looked at it hesitatingly has been seen in Bob's ling, and the sain of the sain of the wings of he bronse griffin was a ciever idea of concealment.

The see ther lips closely and went up the garret, sains with candlestick in one hand and the key in the other. Half way there was a turn at a small landing, and it was at the angle made by this that she had found the little low door, leading to the "catch all." She opened it now anneenered, half closing-the door after her.

The deak was pushed to one side with some trunks and boxes. It was a quaint, antique affair of mahogan, severely colonial in style. The mah body was crescent-shaped, supported on hand-carved legs. There were four drawers, two on each side, and a small, low cabinet of pigeon-holes on top.

Susanne stood motionless before it for several minutes, trying to make up her mind to insert the key. When she did so, in the lock of the nearest top drawer, her hand trembled slightly and she held her breath. The key turned easily and the draw was ready for inspection, but she did not open it. Thoughts whirled like the nuttering snowfakes through her mind, and she stood again irresolute.

She had told Bess that she believed absolutely in Bob. Higher than her love for him had been her unfaltering belief and confidence in him. It was the very keystons of her marriage faith, and yet, at the first blow of suspelion, it gave way.

Bess was a child, with the impuisity degment of a child. She had been wrong to even tell her of the deek, wrong to discuss Bob or his motives with her at all, or to listen for an instant to any doubt of him, iar and masculine. She nearly let the candle fall her surprised recognition of it.

"it's only I, Sue. What on earth are you doing in there?"

She stood mute and motionless as he bent his head and entered the low door. It was Bob, and he was smiling and happy, his clear eyes seeking for the glad welcome he expected.
"I only ran down for tonlight," he added. "I couldn't let you face the first New Year alone, sweetheart."

His arms reached for her, but alse shook her head and handed him the key.

You don't have to tell me what's in the old thing. I'll believe in you fust the same, and don't want to know.
"Know what?" he demanded. "Don't cry, Sue." He drew her to him tender-ly. "What's up, anyhow?"
"That desk," she sobbed. "It's locked."

"Is it?" He stared at the desk in bewilderment. "Well, the key was on my mantel, dear. You found it all right, didn't want you? Couldn't you unlock it?"

"I could, bnt—but I don't want to know your private affairs." She tried to draw herself away, but he took her hands and held them from her tearwelf face so that he could see her eyes. "Sue, darling," he said. "You blessed little Mrs. Bluebeard, that deak is a wedding present to you from Graidmother Hadleigh. It's been in the family since the year one, I guess, and there isn't a single thing in those drawers. It came the last minute the day we were married, and was, so heavy and unwieldy I told father to send it along with my things and have it put away somewhere until we came home. And I laid the key in the griffin for safe-keeping. What did you think was in it?"

But Suzanne silenced trather questioning in her own effectual way. The keystone of her happiness was firm and immorable. But as they went downstairs to dinner she registered one New Year's vow in her heart. In the future she would let iove laugh at locksmiths.

The Sunny South.

Now when all outdoor farm work has ceased in the north, the term "sunny south" and all that it means, appeals with full force to the northern farmer as he realizes that with him it is a case of remaining indoors for the next several months consuming everything that has been produced during the growing season. In the "sunny south" something can be raised every month in the year, and practically every day can be spent out-doors. No blizzards. No sunstrokes. Cattle-raising is very profitable. Large profits are made with little labor in growing fruits, vegetables, etc., for northern markets. Strawberries and cantiloupes are great revenue getters. Water unampassed. Work plentifat. Lands chap and productive. For re-liable laformation, address G. A. Park. General Immigration and Industrial Agent, Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, Culstville, Ky.

How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed tamilies, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainy printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size offy. Eating Up The Sheep.

Eating Up The Sheep.

The markets look very much as were eating sheep as mutton faster of that they were growing them. In orferring to the tremendous demand for mutton the Drover's Journal of Chicago says the weekly enormous marketing of sheep which recently reached more than 179,000 head, again calls attention to the tremendous capacity of this country for mutton. This marketing stands almost 12,000 head above the heaviest week's run ever before recorded at this market, yet, it has been handled with a reduction of only 10 and 15c in prices. Such depression of value has been less than would have been certain a half dozen years ago under receipts less than half that volume. In fact, the marketing six years ago this last week at Chicago showed a total of $3,557 head, which was considered heavy marketing at that time.

The Christmas tree at the Baptist Church on Christmas eve was a treat of candies, nuts and oranges for the pupils. The exercises preceding the distribution of small bags containing the oranges, &c., consisted of songs, recitations and a locture on Christmas by Dr. C. G. Skillman. The occasion was of great moment with the children, who returned to their homes as well satisfied as ir they had been loaded with costly presents.

The day of "piatol toting" seems to have passed in this section, as it has been almost universally practiced at the New Year ever since the seventh century. In Chius bells were cast and used ages before the Christian era, and in every large city there was a bell of justice, hung usually at the gate of the governor's palace, with long ropes along the principal streets, and any aggrieved person rang the bell as an appeal for justice. There were also bells at the temple doors, and the entering worshiper gave at ug at the rope to call the attention of the deity within to his pressure and wants. In Europe bells were first used as signals for public worship, as fire alarms and to give notice of assemblies of the people, but their cheerful clanger led to their use as an expression of rejoicing, and hence to their employment at the New Year.

Superstion, however, soon played a part, in the use of the speel. About A. D. 900 Pope John IX, ordered them to be rung in the churches as a special precaution against danger from thunder and lightning. Girls who wish to know if they will be married in the coming year, should go out to the chicken house on New Year's Eve, at the stroke of midnight, and knock thrice at the door, listening carefully for the sound of any stir among the fowls. YOUR WORK SOLICITED.

Keep Your Nerve

It is nerve energy that runs the organs of your body. The storage battery is the nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord, and from this battery nerve force is sent out through the system of nerves. To keep the body healthy you must have plenty of nerve force; if you have not, the organs work imperfectly, the circulation is sluggish, digestion bad, appetite poor, kidneys inactive, and aches, pains and misery are the penalty.

You can keep the system strong with Dr. Miles Nervine. It assists in generating nerve energy; it strengthens the nerves and makes the whole system strong and vigorous.

"I take plassing to those suffering merves and makes the whole system strong and vigorous."

"I take plassing to those suffering from nervous prostration, insemnia and meisanchely room here with the depression bove diseases I tried this medicine and found immediate relief. It so sothes and strength suffering the sufferer renewed strength and helps. It is a superb nerve resource."
